Hitler Sweeps Reich, Polling 93 Per Cent Of Electorate

Nazi Foreign Policy Wins 40 Million Votes; Nation Quiet.

Decisive Victory Not Unexpected

Germans Wait in Line for Hours to Cast Their Ballots.

Berlin, Nov. 12 (AP).—Overwhelming indorsement of Chancellor Hitler's foreign policies and the Nazi regime came in early returns today from the German electorate in what was obviously the largest vote in the history of the nation.

The final vote as reported by Wolff's Agency showed well over 90 per cent of the ballots in favor of Nazi political domination and an even larger portion of "yeses" on the national plebiscite.

The final vote exceeded 90 per cent of the qualified electors, which numbered 45,106,168. The vote count stood:

For the Nazi slate of candidates in the Reichstag: 39,621,437 or 92.2 per cent; invalid votes 3,348,125 or 7.8 per cent; total, 42,969,562.

In the plebiscite: "Yes," 40,583,430 or 93.5 per cent; "no," 2,052,100 or 4.7 per cent; invalid 789,999 or 1.8 per cent; total, 43,425,529.

Faulty Ballots Invalid.

Ballots were considered invalid if they were unmarked, if the method indicating the voter's intention was technically incorrect or if a ballot was so marked that clerks were unable to discern the voter's intention.

In the early hours bugle blasts awakened German citizens to ballot. It was the second national election since the Nazi advent to power. The election meant but one thing—indorsement of Hitler and his party and approval of his stand for peace with honor and equality among nations.

This was the chancellor's description of his position when he announced last month Germany's withdrawal from the League of Nations and the Disarmament Conference.

The ballot count proceeded with surprising slowness. By early evening only a little more than 3,000,000 votes had been counted, which was considerably less than at the Campus Death Laid to Crowd

Youth Believed Killed in Rush to Leave Princeton Game.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 12 (AP).—Authorities today began their investigation of the death of Jay F. Towner 3d, 23, of Perryman, Md., whose body was found on the university campus several hours after the end of the Princeton-Dartmouth football game.

Officials believe Towner suffered his fatal injuries in the crush of spectators leaving the game. An autopsy established that internal hemorrhages resulting from a ruptured liver and spleen caused death. His wrists also were broken. Police believe he was crushed against the railing of a ramp as the football crowd departed.

Someone picked up the youth after he was hurt, police believe, and started to take him to the university infirmary, near where the body was found. En roue Towner evidently died, they believe, and the person who was carrying him abandoned the body.

Perryman, Md., Nov. 12 (AP).—The body of Jay F. Towner 3d, who was found dead on the Princeton University campus last night, was brought to the home of his father here today.

Kidnaping Victim Tortured, Released

Head Shaved, Teeth Pulled, Proving Wrong Man.

Georgetown, British Guiana, Nov. 12 (AP).—His head shaved, his eyebrows plucked, and three teeth extracted, L. Vernon Lawrence returned today to report he had been kidnaped while bathing. He said his captors, whom he thought were smugglers, mutilated and tortured him when they learned he was not the man they sought.

Lawrence said they thought they had Dr. C. R. Sabryan, district government medical officer and a brother-in-law of Lawrence, whom they had planned to hold for ransom.

While bathing at a coastal village, a small boat nearly struck him, and he jokingly shouted at four men in it, declaring he was Dr. Sabryan, and threatening to have them arrested.

He said he did not think he would recognize his captors because he left his glasses on the beach.

Spanish Fascist Chief Escapes Assassination

One Slain and Four Are Wounded in an Attack on Primo de Rivera as 2,000 Admirers Watch; Attacker Flees Crowd.

Cadiz, Spain, Nov. 12 (AP).—A spectacular attempt to assassinate Jose Antonio Primo de Rivera, leader of Spanish Fascists and son of Spain's late dictator, brought death to one man and serious injury to four in the neighboring town of San Fernando today.

Two of the wounded are members of the famous winegrowing families Domecq and Gonzalez. They are Mrs. Natalia Larois de Domeco and Stanilaus Domecq Gonzalez.

The man killed by the bullet aimed at De Rivera was Sigismundo Garca Mantilla.

Under cover of an ovation with which 2,000 persons greeted De Rivera and other speakers at a Fascist meeting, a lone, unidentified assailant fired several shots at the speakers' platform from the audience.

Mantilla, Gonzalez and Mrs. Domecq slumped at the feet of the group of leading townspeople on the platform. Pandemonium seized the audience. In the confusion the would-be assassin escaped from the building. Sending another bullet into Henriques Costa Congora, who tried to stop him.

Joined by a companion once he gained the street, the man fled through the crowds, pursued by the 30 guards stationed around the building. Finally one was captured.

The guards were about to march their captive off to prison, when part of the crowd intervened. Simultaneously the biting fire from a sub-machine gun burst upon guards, crowd and prisoners from an adjacent building. In this melee, the prisoner escaped.

Dry-Cleaning Prices in D.C. Rise to Dollar

Doubling of Charges Is Prohibited by NRA After Protests.

The new price of dry cleaning here under the NRA code probably will be $1 for men's suits and $1.25 for women's dresses, Samuel Rubenstein, treasurer of the National Association of Dyers and Cleaners, revealed last night. Present prices are 75 cents and $1.

These prices have been agreed upon by local dry cleaners, he said, and will be acted on this week by the directors of the association. The first meeting is tomorrow.

At the same time the directors will act on price proposals for other States. These range, according to Mr. Rubenstein, from 75 cents or less to $1.25 or more for men's suits. The basic for the variation, he said, is the difference in labor costs.

The $1 price in the District, if approved by the National Association, will be subject to change, the treasurer explained, if a trial proves it too high or too low.

Mr. Rubenstein insisted that the NRA dry cleaners code did not fix a "normal" of $1.50 for men's suits, but that Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson merely had indicated that $1.50 had been considered a fair price in 1929.

"Prices will be fixed to meet local conditions," Mr. Rubenstein said. "In New England the charge may be $1.25 because of higher labor costs, while in certain Southern sections it may be 75 cents or less.

"If, after a fair trial, these prices are found to allow too great or too little profit, they can be changed. In fact, the directors have authority to modify the proposals as submitted by the various local areas."

Following publication of the code approved indicating prices for cleaning men's suits might be doubled in Washington protests flooded the NRA headquarters.

NRA officials indicated, following the deluge of protests, that the $1.50 price would not be permitted at this time.

London Believes Roosevelt Bluffs

London, Nov. 12 (AP).—The Daily Mail said today British treasury officials believe President Roosevelt is playing a gigantic poker game with the dollar.

Unable to find trace of gold purchases by the President, the newspaper said, and inasmuch as the Bank of England could give them no assistance in discovering any such purchases, British officials are inclined to think the President is bluffing and relying on the psychological effect of alleged gold purchases to depreciate the dollar.

Bolivia's Former Chief In Serious Condition

La Paz, Bolivia, Nov. 12 (AP).—The condition of Gen. Ismael Montes, former president of Bolivia, was very grave today following development of thrombosis and gangrene in the right leg.

Santa's Plea Prompts Post To Start Fund

Asks D. C. Provide Poor Kiddies With Toys at Christmas.

A trim messenger boy, his face glowing with excitement, dashed into The Washington Post City Room last night and placed a radiogram on the City Editor's desk.

"It's from the South Pole," he announced, "and from Santa Claus!"

"From Santa Claus," echoed the City Editor, who long ago had learned not to be surprised at anything that might happen anywhere, anyhow and any time. "What's he doing at the South Pole?"

"Read it," urged the lad. The City Editor saw these astonishing words:

Headquarters Christmas Expeditionary Forces,
South Pole.

Editor, The Washington Post:

May I count on your aid again this year to get every child in Washington out of the nontoy trenches by Christmas morning? Thought I could do the whole job myself, but times have been too hard. Therefore, urge citizens of the National Capital, through Washington Post, to help me put a Merry Christmas for Every Child Program over the top.

Am at the South Pole for a few weeks waiting to welcome Admiral Byrd and his brave men. Please radio me. Will you open The Post columns again this year and start The Washington Post 1933 Toy and Doll fund at onee? The need is so great, we have no time to lose.

Yours gratefully in advance
SANTA CLAUS.

Things began to happen in The Washington Post. Within five minutes the answer was on the way to Santa Claus and this is what it said:

Santa Claus,
South Pole, via Little America.

The Washington Post is proud to serve as your aid in bringing a Merry Christmas to every child in this city. Thanks for the chance to help you.

As the messenger boy left, with

Mother Says Mrs. Eiszner Was Critically Injured.

Chicago, Nov. 12 (AP).—The mother of the socially prominent Merry Fahrney Pickering Eizner today said that her daughter was critically injured in the automobile crash on her elopement Friday that resulted in the death of the brother of the bridegroom.

"She is very ill," said Mrs. E. L. Fahrney. "She has suffered a concussion of the brain, a dislocated spine, three fractured ribs and severe bruises."

She eloped with Frank Van Sands Eiszner, of River Forest, a few days after she returned from New York and found plans to marry Giorgio DiGiorgio, of Chile, had been checkmated.

Rare Relics of Ancient Goths Found by U. S.-Russian Savants

Philadelphia, Nov. 12 (AP).—Digging on the Crimean Peninsula near historic Sebastopol, a joint American and Russia archeological expedition has unearthed approximately 3,500 objects on the site of what is believed to have been the ancient city of Duros, capital of the Goths.

Announcement of the discoveries was made today by Horace H. F. Jayne, director of the University of Pennsylvania Museum, which is cooperating with a Leningrad school.

During the two months of work just completed the expedition excavated 60 burials in catacombs, mounds and stone cists, Jayne said. The relics found there and 100 skulls, prized for anthropological study, are being sent to the museum.

All the material was unearthed at Esske-Kermen, one of the so-called "cave cities" in Crimea. The objects, ranging in age from 1,500 to nearly 3,500 years, include jewelry, pottery, coins and architectural fragments.

Mr. Roosevelt, an outstanding economist, recently completed a month's tour of the farming regions.

Gang Bombs Ohio Paper In Crime War

Mansfield Shop Blasted Again After Editor Gets Warning.

Racket Crusader Told to Desist or More Will Follow.

Mansfield, Ohio, Nov. 12 (AP).—The plant of the Mansfield News-Journal was bombed today, eight hours after the editor of the newspaper received a racketeer warning to "lay off or you'll get yours." The bomb exploded in the mailing room at 4:06 a. m. The floor was ripped up and windows in the plant and in nearby buildings were shattered.

G. J. Kochenderfer, editor of the News-Journal, has been a consistent crusader against racketeering of all kinds. In frequent editorials he has called for more strict law enforcement and for eradication of bootlegging, slot machine and other rackets.

Bombed Two Years Ago.

The Journal plant was bombed two years ago, and shortly thereafter a smoke bomb was exploded in the building occupied by the News. Since that time the papers have been merged.

John Richards, night watchman, had just passed through the mailing room when the bomb exploded. He escaped injury, but suffered from shock.

Mr. Kochenderfer received a telephone call last night from an unidentified person, who, after heaping abuse upon him, said "lay off or you'll get yours." At 10:30 a. m., today, the wife of the editor answered the residence telephone in his absence. The caller said:

"How do you like the present? We have plenty more of them."

First Bombing Unsolved.

The bombing of the Journal plant two years ago also was attributed to racketeers who sought to quiet the crusading editor. The smoke bombing in the plant of the News followed in two weeks.

A total of $10,500 in rewards was offered at that time by the newspapers for the arrest and conviction of the bomber. One suspect was arrested at Toledo but later released.

The News-Journal is owned by S. A. Horvitz, president, and David Gibson, publisher, also owners of the Lorain Journal. Prior to the merger the News was controlled by Brush-Moore, Inc.

Gov. White's Son Is Killed

Ohioan, Princeton Senior, Dies When His Car Crashes Tree.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 12 (AP).—Robert White, 21, son of the Governor of Ohio and a senior at Princeton University, was killed near here last night in an automobile accident.

While White was driving near Belle Meade his car swerved and struck a tree. His neck was broken and he died immediately.

Goodrich Lowry, of New York, and Miss Evelyn Higgins, of Rochester, N. Y., also in the automobile, were slightly hurt.

Arrangements were made to send the body tonight to Marietta, Ohio, the family home.

His brother, George White, jr., had planned to be married in New Jersey this week and Robert was to have been best man.

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 12 (AP). Robert White, killed today, celebrated his twenty-first birthday Friday. He was a noted swimmer.

Gov. George White and his eldest daughter, Miss Mary, First Lady of Ohio, heard the news at the Executive Mansion. Robert is survived also by his brothers George, jr., of St. Louis; David, an instructor at New York City College; and a sister, Charlotte, who is in Vienna with her husband, Dr. F. E. Hamilton, of Columbus.

Admiral McLean Dies Aboard Ship

Formerly Budget Officer at Navy Department.

San Francisco, Nov. 12 (AP).—Rear Admiral Ridley McLean, commander of battleship division three of the United States Fleet, died aboard his flagship, the Nevada, in San Francisco Bay tonight.

Because of his death, the scheduled departure of the fleet tomorrow to engage in tactical exercises off the California coast was postponed to Tuesday.

Before taking command of the battleship division recently Admiral McLean was budget officer of the Navy Department at Washington, D. C. He lived at 2121 Kalorama road northwest.

Boy, Fatally Wounded, Walks ¾ Mile for Aid

Alton, Ill., Nov. 12 (AP).—Mortally wounded by his own shotgun while hunting rabbits, Leroy Calvey, 14-year-old schoolboy, walked three-quarters of a mile and climbed a high fence to obtain aid.

Disappears

BROOKE L. HART, son of a San Jose, Calif., merchant whose abduction is laid by Chicago police at the door of an Illinois kidnaping ring headed by "Handsome Jack" Klutas, who has successfully evaded arrest for months. D. C. Woman Shot to Death; Husband Held

He Claims Wife Shot Self Following Quarrel at Apartment.

The fatal shooting early yesterday of Mrs. Nellie Etta Bishop, 33, was under investigation by homicide squad detectives last night, while the woman's husband, Earl E. Bishop, 32, was held for questioning at the Second Police Precinct.

The shooting occurred in the Bishop apartment at 21A Bates street northwest, shortly after 3 a. m. Bishop, a filling station manager, told detectives his wife shot herself as the climax to a quarrel.

Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy performed an autopsy and declared the bullet pierced Mrs. Bishop's heart, lodging in the back.

Burns on Hand.

Admitting the possibility of suicide, Murphy said he found powder burns on the palm of the woman's left hand and on the inside of her fingers. There were also burns on her left breast.

Two ways in which the powder burns could have been inflicted were outlined by the deputy coroner.

One was that the woman could have held the pistol, a .32 caliber weapon, in her right hand and steadied the barrel with her left hand and then placed it against her heart. The burst of flame at the moment of discharge could have scorched a hand holding the barrel, the deputy coroner said.

The other way, said Dr. Murphy, was if Mrs. Bishop were warding off a pistol held menacingly close to her, in the hands of some other person.

Inquest Tomorrow.

Acting Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald ordered an inquest for tomorrow at the District Morgue.

Detectives said there were no witnesses. A guest of Mrs. Bishop, Mrs. Theresa Schmid, was in another room at the time of the shooting, as was her son, Billy Schmid, 12.

Mrs. Schmid and her son said they heard the shot.

The pair had disagreed early in the evening, investigators said, as to their attendance at a party given by friends. Mrs. Bishop had remained at home, while her husband left.

When Bishop returned, detectives said, he had been drinking, although they declared he was not intoxicated. A controversy arose because of Bishop's tardy return. The shooting followed.

Acting Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said he understood they had been married a year and a half.

Thirty Offer Blood For Grid Player

Denver Youth Improves After Transfusion.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 12 (AP).—Thirty persons today answered an appeal at a Denver College football game for a blood transfusion to aid Wilbur Rocchio, injured high school football player.

At the hospital where Rocchio has been seriously ill, the blood of one of the volunteers was found to be suitable and the transfusion was made. Later the youth's condition was described as improved.

Rocchio, a half back, was injured on the arm during a game two weeks ago and blood poisoning followed.

Cubans Free American Arrested During Riot

Havana, Nov. 12 (AP).—Humberto Allen, son of an American resident of Havana, who was arrested during mopping up of rebellious elements, was released today.

He said he was taken Tuesday night while driving in a car with three friends and did not know the reason for his confinement. No charges were filed.

Soviet Envoy, Roosevelt Renew Talks

Unexpected Parley Lasts 2 Hours; No Word Is Given Out.

Further Sessions Seen; Roosevelt to Leave City Friday.

President Roosevelt and Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet foreign commissar, held an unexpected two-hour conference at the White House last night. It was the fourth conference between the President and the Russian representative on the subject of Russian recognition.

Litvinoff arrived at the White House at 9:15 and left exactly two hours later.

Wearing a broad smile, he remarked as he left the White House: "I can't talk tonight. It is Sunday."

Following the conference it was indicated other conversations would follow. Whether these will be with the President or with State Department officials was not indicated. It was said further appointments have not been made.

President Leaves Friday.

The recognition question "may or may not" be settled before next Friday, when the President plans to go to Warm Springs, Ga., it was said following the conference.

Litvinoff arrived at the White House following a dinner party given in his honor by Henry Morgenthau, jr., governor of the Farm Credit Administration. He was followed a few minutes later by William C. Bullit, of the State Department, who stayed through the conference.

Accompanied by his host, Boris Skvirsky, and the men who made the trip from Moscow with him, Litvinoff set out at noon yesterday for a long drive through the country.

Visit Mount Vernon.

First the party went to Mount Vernon where, upon explaining the circumstances, they were admitted to the Washington home and grounds. Usually, visitors are not admitted on Sunday.

Litvinoff asked to be shown the tomb of the founder of this country. He and his party stood with bared heads a few minutes before the burial place of George Washington.

Then they sped to Baltimore, lunched and returned to the Capital by way of Frederick. Litvinoff gazed interestedly at the home of Barbara Frietchie in Frederick, but he made no comment. It was learned that the visitor expressed himself as delighted with relaxation the drive afforded him.

High Officials Present.

Among the guests at the Morgenthau dinner were Attorney General Cummings, Secretary Ickes, Senator Pittman, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee; Ahmet Muhtar, Turkish Ambassador; Senator Wagner, of New York; Donald Richberg, counsel for the National Recovery Administration; Mr. Bullitt, Arthur Sulsberger, Henry Oliphant, Henry Morgenthau, sr., Mr. Skvirsky, Ivan Divilkosky and Constantin Umansky.

Meanwhile, the initial blast of Congressional criticism of Russian recognition entered the picture last night in the form of a statement

McDonald in Geneva To Take Relief Post

Geneva, Nov. 11 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency)—James G. McDonald, former head of the Foreign Policy Association of New York, arrived today to assume his duties as high commissioner of the refugee body to provide relief for Jewish refugees.

Delegates of 15 nations, including the United States, will meet at Lausanne for the opening session of the refugee commission late this month.

Wedell Will Attempt Air Record Saturday

Miami, Fla., Nov. 12 (AP).—James Wedell, who yesterday was forced down at Raleigh, N. C., while attempting a speed flight from New York to Miami, arrived here as a passenger aboard another plane today and said he would try for the record again next Saturday, after his own plane is repaired.

Retreat on Gold Policy Foreseen To Steady Bonds

Monetary Expert

PROF. GEORGE F. WARREN, Cornell professor and author of gold purchase plan, who conferred at the White House yesterday.

Advisers of President in White House Conference.

Modified Buying Plan Is Expected

New Methods to Spur Commodities Believed Considered.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Apparently dissatisfied with the results of his gold purchase policy as a method of raising prices, President Roosevelt yesterday summoned to the White House eight of his foremost financial advisers and for almost three hours he made a minute survey with them of the monetary and economic situation.

Although the White House was silent about the meeting and the conferees referred all inquiries to the Presidential secretariat, the impression prevailed after the meeting that Mr. Roosevelt's confidence in the effectiveness of the gold purchase policy had lessened and that the plan would be advanced in the future with greater caution.

It was not thought any sharp change in policy had been agreed on or that any announcement of an altered approach to the problem of raising prices would be made. But it was believed in circles that have closely followed the gold purchase developments that the Administration would gradually retreat from this policy in order to escape retaliation from abroad and further depression of United States Government bond prices.

Alarmed at Bond Drop.

Apprehension over the sharp decline in Government bond price levels last week, along with disappointment over the continued sluggishness of commodity price levels, were understood to have prompted the President to call in his financial advisers for a thorough examination of what had been done and what should be done in the succeeding weeks.

As the President was closeted with his financial advisers, Senators Elmer Thomas (Democrat, Oklahoma) and Ellison D. Smith (Democrat, South Carolina), leaders of the Senate inflation bloc,

Olson Hurries To Minnesota Strike Area

Governor Confers With Meat Plant Captors; Troops Ready.

Austin, Minn., Nov. 12 (AP).—Gov. Floyd B. Olson of Minnesota came here tonight to take a personal role in efforts to settle peacefully a strike of 2,500 workers at the George A. Hormel & Co. packing plant here.

While 300 Minnesota National Guardsmen were held in readiness for possible service here, following yesterday's disturbances at the plant, Gov. Olson went into conference with members of the executive board of the independent union of all workers.

The governor hoped to settle amicably the differences between the company and the union workers, who ask a 10-cent-an-hour wage increase, which the company said it could not grant.

The striking employes, who took possession of the plant yesterday, continued to picket the place today, but there was no disorder.

One concession was made by the picketers today when they permitted two company engineers to enter the plant and turn on the refrigeration system, thus saving from spoilation many tons of stored meats. The refrigeration was shut off yesterday when the workers took charge of the place and ousted company officials.

Decision to permit resumption of the refrigeration system was reached after Representative F. H. Shoemaker, Farmer-Laborite, had appealed to strikers to let the system be turned on, pending negotiations.

Lundeen Fears Trouble.

(Associated Press.)

Representative Lundeen yesterday predicted serious trouble impended unless farmers' demands for price-fixing and refinancing of farm debts at low rates were met.

Lundeen, who hails from Minnesota, said in a statement that he favored immediate cash payment of the soldiers' bonus and certain war bonds in currency, a moratorium on farm and home mortgages for a year and refinancing of such mortgages at 1 per cent, with annual amoritzation at the same percentage.

He condemned the records of both major parties on farm legislation, calling them "13 years of broken promises," and said a National Farmer-Labor party would rise to power unless the present Administration adopted the proper measures.

Lundeen said he had presented his demands to the White House.

Tiger Reported Seeking Truce

Farley Believed Cold to Tammany as Long as Curry Leads.

New York, Nov. 12 (AP).—The New York Times says Tammany has made "overtures for a truce, if not peace," with Postmaster General James A. Farley, chairman of the national Democratic committee.

The Times adds that indications are the overture will "not be acceptable and the Roosevelt faction will decide to go along without Tammany so long as John F. Curry continues to be its leader."

The overtures, however, states the paper, have "been interpreted by Mr. Farley's friends to indicate that Mr. Curry is not likely to go much further in his attempt to oust Mr. Farley as chairman of the State Democratic committee."

The whole situation was coupled in the story with the appointment of William B. Riley as collector of internal revenue for the Albany (N. Y.) district.

This appointment was made on recommendation of the O'Connell brothers, Albany County Democratic leaders, and "marked definitely the alliance of the O'Connell brothers with Mr. Farley and their desertion of Mr. Curry."

Mr. Curry attacked Mr. Farley's leadership following upon the recent mayoral election.

Publisher's Agent Killed.

Houston, Tex., Nov. 12 (AP).—William Hartman, 25, of Rochester, N. Y., representative of a New York publishing concern and former English instructor in Rice Institute here, was killed in an auto collision near here last night.

Guinan Plays Her Last Date; Muted Broadway Sheds a Tear

New York, Nov. 12 (U.P.).—"Texas" Guinan played her last date on Broadway today—played to her greatest crowd on a stage banked to the ceiling with flowers.

There was no laughter, no paper hats, no raucous piping of tin horns, but only the muted music of an organ in the gold room at Campbell's funeral parlors, and a hushed murmur drifting up to the room of death from the throngs massed in the street she loved.

In the room itself they were packed solidly. The profusion of flowers formed an immense backdrop and a shaft of warm sunlight touched the gray casket in which the night club hostess lay.

Helen Morgan wept silently. Belle Livingston wandered fitfully about, and to all who would listen, she sang her lament:

"Isn't this awful! Isn't this awful! Isn't this awful!"

Paul Whiteman sat and stared at the casket. Heywood Broun slumped in his seat.

In the front row, kneeling, Tommy Guinan, Tex's brother, wept constantly. Tears coursed down the cheeks of Texas' old mother, but she resolutely waved aside those who would lend help. Texas' father, however, seemed in a daze, and had to be guided as he walked slowly from the chapel.

It was a Broadway crowd. Numerous girls of Texas' "gang" cried softly at the simple ceremony. There were movie people, producers, hoofers, writers, musicians. There were floral pieces from Peggy Joyce, Bill Duffy, George

Cuban Leaders Press Pursuit Of Rebel Bands

Round-Up of Insurgents Follows Report of New Revolt.

Havana, Nov. 12 (AP).—Spurred by renewed reports of rebellion in the interior of Cuba, the government and the army concentrated their efforts today on a national rebel roundup.

A steady stream of prisoners continued arriving at Santiago, a center of rebel activity and a Cuban gunboat was pursuing a boat filled with rebels in the vicinity of Cienfuegos.

Soldiers were reported in pursuit of a band of 40 dissidents armed with rifles, pistols and hand grenades which yesterday captured a ranch near Cienfuegos.

Another rebel expedition was reported on foot near Cardenas. A truckload of sailors was dispatched in search of them.

More rebels in the vicinity of Holguin dynamited a railway bridge. Government officials at Santiago sent 40 soldiers to Holguin in a special train. Others in the vicinty of Tunas captured a store.

Comparative quiet ruled in Havana as public interest centered in trial of 34 soldiers from Camp Columbia, charged with rebellion.

Col. Fulgencio Batista, head of the army, appeared as a spectator at the trial. He heard the court sharply censure one of the officers defending the accused.

Air Force Capt. Diego Rodriguez had accused one of the defendants, named Gonzalez, of active participation in the revolt, and asserted he "saw him enter an automobile with 10 rebels armed with machine guns, and since he was a ranking officer, presumed he was one of the leaders of the movement."

Lieut. Urbano Soler, defending Gonzalez, remarked:

"Rank means nothing. How was it that a stenographic sergeant (Batista) headed a revolt against his superior officers.

The court sharply rebuked Soler, who subsided.

Confession of Sins Cited in Scripture

Dr. John T. Bowen Speaks in Franklin Park.

"The practice of confessing sins to a priest has its foundation directly in the words of Christ when He said 'Whose sins ye shall forgive they are forgiven them, and whose sins ye shall retain they are retained,'" said Dr. John G. Bowen yesterday in speaking on "Confession" in Franklin Park. "Unless the minister of God knows the sins, he can not exercise the commission he has received.

"A sin is an offense by man against God and therefore God is to determine the method to be used to get rid of the sin. He has done this in establishing the Sacrament of Penance, which includes the confession of sin."

Leo A. Codd and Edward Heffron were the other speakers, representing the Catholic Evidence Guild. The guild conducts meetings in Franklin Park every Sunday.

U. S. to Launch Big Cruiser Wednesday

15th 10,000-Ton Ship to Be Called Tuscaloosa.

Camden, N. J., Nov. 12 (AP).—Uncle Sam's fifteenth 10,000-ton cruiser will slip from the ways of the New York Shipbuilding Co. at high tide Wednesday noon.

As the 588-foot hull starts sliding into the Delaware River it will be cristened the Tuscaloosa by Mrs. T. L. McCann, a native of the Alabama city for which the warship will be named. She is a niece of Representative William Bacon Oliver, of Alabama.

Built at a cost of approximately $10,500,000, the cruiser will be about three-fourths completed when launched. Delivery is expected about next May 1.

U. S. Policy Studied By World Bankers

Directors of International Institution Meet Today.

Basel, Switzerland, Nov. 12 (AP).—President Roosevelt's gold buying policy was under intense study by governors of the central banks preparatory to tomorrow's meeting of directors of the Bank for International Settlements.

Reports of Germany's possible withdrawal from the Bank of Settlements were viewed with doubt, but it was felt that Chancellor Hitler is undoubtedly on the eve of important decisions which may effect Germany's relations with the bank.

It was learned that George L. Harrison, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, is likely to become a director of the Bank for International Settlements.

U. S. Fleet Starts Maneuvers Today

100 Warships to Move In "Graveyard of Pacific."

Navy Base, San Pedro, Calif., Nov. 12 (AP).—Grim old Point Arguello, headstone of the "graveyard of ships in the Pacific," will be the pivotal point off which more than a hundred ships of the American Navy will engage in maneuvers this week.

Ever since Hernando Cortez, discoverer of California, lost a galleon there 400 years ago, ships have been piling up in disaster on the point.

To the five score warships and their hordes of planes in the maneuvers starting tomorrow the old point will serve as a landmark.

Few Farmers Are Hopelessly In Debt, Economist Asserts

Less Than Half of Farms Mortgaged; One-Eighth Are in Real Distress; Their Bills Small Part of U. S. Total.

By Nicholas Roosevelt,

Former Minister to Hungary, outstanding economics writer and cousin of former President Theodore Roosevelt.

[This is the second of 10 articles written by Mr. Roosevelt after a month's tour through the Middle Western agricultural States.]

"Reduce the burden of our debts or we go under!"

This is the cry in the farm belt.

When inquiry is made as to the nature and extent of this debt burden the inevitable reply is: "Nearly all the farmers are hopelessly in debt."

What are the facts?

Briefly as follows:

Not more than 45 per cent of the 6,600,000,000 farms in the United States are mortgaged.

Of these 3,000,000 mortgaged farms a quarter are mortgaged for 25 per cent of their value. A somewhat larger proportion of the farms are mortgaged for from 26 to 50 per cent of their value.

Of the remaining 1,500,000 (or less) farms, about a half are in acute distress.

One Eighth Hopeless.

This means that about a quarter of the mortgaged farms in the country are hopelessly indebted. This means, in turn, that about an eighth of all the farms in the country are hopelessly indebted.

A study entitled "The Internal Debts of the United States," edited by Evans Clark, shows that the distribution of the mortgaged farms in the United States is heaviest in the Middle Western States, nearly 60 per cent of the farm mortgage debt being concentrated in that region. Inasmuch as the total farm indebtedness of the country is only about $8,500,000,000, it follows that only about $2,000,000,000 of farm debts is in serious jeopardy.

Mr. Clark's study brings out the highly significant fact that the total farm indebtedness of the country amounts to scarcely 7 per cent of the total internal debt of the country. This means that the distressed farmers in whose interest so many pleas have been made for reduction or readjustment of debts represent less than 1 per cent of the total indebtedness of the country.

While traveling in the Middle West I took occasion to check up on the actual number of mortgages at present in default held by institutions. The average was about one-third.

"What chances are there that these mortgages will be repaid?" I asked the head of a big insurance company.

"It is impossible to prophesy," was the reply, "but I doubt if more than a quarter of the delinquent payments are irretrievably lost. Most of those now in default will be cleared up if we have even a small rise in farm prices. You know, the American farmer pays his debts. Last July, when prices were higher, we received large back payments. Our policy is to be as lenient as possible and help them over the distress."

"I have been told that there have been lots of foreclosures."

"On the contrary, very few," was the reply.

Laws Curb Foreclosures.

When I sought information on this point I found that, partly out of self-interest, partly because of laws to prevent foreclosures, and partly due to popular resentment against foreclosures the actual number of foreclosures on mortgaged farms during the last few years has averaged scarcely 3 per cent of the total farm area. In Iowa, one of the states where the mortgage problem has been most acute, one out of nine farms came under the sheriff's hammer during the 12 years since 1921. Many of these were foreclosed prior to 1925 for the farm mortgage problem, especially in Iowa, goes back to the wild speculation in farm lands during the period of 1917-1920.

Speaking generally, it is to this boom period that may be traced a large portion of the present distress of the farmers whose land is mortgaged. When the prices of farm products soared as a result of the war, the farmers, abetted by their friends, the local bankers, were confident that they had at last "come into their own." They saw prospects of easy money from their farms, and so, being only human, they became eager to enlarge their farms and so make more money. That was the time of heaviest borrowing.

Lender Shares Blame.

And right here let it be said that in much of this borrowing the lender was as much at fault as the borrower. Some of the smaller bankers in this region assured me that they made large loans on excessive land values solely because the Eastern banks were begging them to place their surplus funds for them. But in the extreme cases the creditor, whatever the impelling reason of his action, can not escape his share of the responsibility for what happened.

What is the solution of this farm debt problem?

In speaking with persons in the various State agricultural colleges, and with bankers and others who had studied the question, three main solutions invariably were brought to my attention: (1) Blanket refunding at reduced interest rates; (2) refunding through direct negotiations between debtor and creditor under the supervision of a board of arbitration; (3) currency inflation.

The second procedure seemed to command the widest support. The first is already in process on a small scale as one of the points in the new deal. The third—inflation—has an enormous number of supporters. As will be shown in a later article, it may prove unavoidable whether or not the President desires it.

Problem a Grave One.

Even though the number of farmers who are in danger of losing their lands through foreclosure is much smaller than the country realizes, it is idle to deny that the farm mortgage problem is a grave one. For the individual farmer now in default or who is threatened with insufficient income to make his next payments, the distress is very real. In many cases the situation is hopeless, and no increase in farm prices can be expected to enable the debtor farmers to pull out.

Foreclosure under the circumstances is probably the only solution. But others will be helped by a number of factors, of which the most constructive is a sound increase in farm prices. Until that happens, however, a measure of farm relief is necessary, as well as leniency on the part of the creditors. The big institutions, which hold about 70 per cent of the farm mortgages, are being lenient. For the individuals who hold the remaining 30 per cent leniency often means ruin for themselves. Herein lies another part of the tragedy of the farm indebtedness.

Editor's note—In his next article Mr. Roosevelt will discuss real vs. fictitious price raising.

Reds Threaten To Bomb Japan

Strong Warning Against Invasion Issued by Far Easterners.

Moscow, Nov. 12 (AP).—A threat by the Far Eastern sector of the Communist party to bomb Japanese centers of population from the air if Japan attempts aggression into the Soviet Union is regarded here as the most outspoken warning yet voiced against the possible violation of the country's Far Eastern frontier.

The threat is contained in a Communist party manifesto published in Vladivostok during recent celebrations of the October revolution anniversary.

It charges Japanese imperialists with creating an armed base in Manchukuo in order to begin war and declares that Japan lays herself open to "immeasurable catastrophe" if its military party should put into effect its adventurous policy.

It is understood that the Far Eastern Red army is equipped with a large number of powerful bombing planes, capable of a flight as far as Tokyo and return.

The manifesto was issued two days before the reported flight of nine Japanese military planes over Soviet territory provoked a formal Soviet note of protest to Japan.

In an early statement, the foreign office today denied reports abroad that Japanese planes had been shot down on Soviet territory.

There have been no further reports of Japanese flights into Soviet terrritory since the government warned Tokyo November 6 to beware of infringing the Siberian border

Public Parks Income Probed

Officials Considering New Contract for Holders of Concessions.

With the transfer of the Office of Public Buildings and Grounds to the Department of the Interior, the Welfare and Recreational Association of Public Buildings and Grounds, a private organization is being investigated as to its methods of handling of money received for concessions in public buildings and parks.

The association has a contract with the old Office of Public Buildings and Grounds and the Interior Department attorneys are inquiring into what form any new contract might take, according to F. W. Hoover, general manager of the association.

Hoover said the old agreement was drawn up in 1927 and that the investigation was being called chiefly to bring the contract up to date. It provides that the Government shall get half of all that the association makes in operating the concessions.

Officials said that the investigation is under way so that a clean bill of health may be established. Secretary Ickes is behind the inquiry, the authorities asserted, to make sure that all moneys intrusted to the association are being handled according to the best business methods.

African Gold Miners Lose Pay Boost Fight

Johannesburg, South Africa, Nov. 12 (AP).—The Rand Chamber of Mines has rejected gold miners' claims for a 40-hour week and a 20 per cent wage increase.

The rejection was on the ground that the Government, by heavier taxation, is taking the lion's share of the increased profits that have been made in the last year since England went off the gold standard.

Vienna Jails 225 Socialists, Calms Holiday

Disorders at Minimum as Republic Celebrates 15th Anniversary.

Vienna, Nov. 12 (AP).—Prepared to cope with serious disorders on the fifteenth anniversary of the Austrian republic, police and heimwehrmen arrested hundreds of Socialists in various sections of Austria today.

In Vienna alone 225 were arrested for attempted demonstrations. Many were subdued by industrious clubbing.

Among prominent persons subjected to police treatment was Hugo Thaler, Socalist vice president of the lower Austrian Diet, who was taken to a hospital after a beating.

Daytime disturbances in Vienna were scattered and desultory. Although the garrison was augmented for emergencies, the soldiers were kept within barracks.

Vienna was without the machine guns and barbed wire so evident in the May Day demonstration.

Up to 8 p. m., no reports of serious disturbances had been received from provinces.

Friedrich Adler, Socialist leader, who assassinated the chancellor of the Austro-Hungarian Empire in 1916, and who now is a popular idol in Vienna, was arrested.

Adler, a son of Victor Adler, father of Austrian socialism, came to Vienna yesterday from Zurich to observe the fifteenth anniversary of his father's death, and with others participated in a demonstration. It was dispersed by the police.

Adler and a Socialist editor arrested with him were released after two hours in jail.

Ousted Berlin Pastors Back

Suspension Rescinded Due to Effect on Vote for Hitler.

Berlin, Nov. 12 (AP).—On direct intervention by the Reich chancellory, the suspension yesterday of two popular pastors, Martin Niemaeller and E. F. von Rabernau, who dissented in certain matters from the Reichsbishop's policies, was rescinded at midnight.

Earlier last night the Rev. Joachim Hossenfelder, president of the Nazi German Christian movement, who issued the summary suspensions, informed all ministers of the Gospel in Berlin that they must refrain from mentioning the affair from their pulpits.

Friends of Niemaeller appealed to the government, pointing out that these measures might have disastrous effects on the Reichstag and foreign policy plebiscite vote today. The chancellory thereupon intervened with the Prussian ministry of education and culture which in turn put pressure on Hossenfelder.

At first Hossenfelder's office changed the suspension order so as to make it effective on Monday instead of immediately When it was pointed out, however, that this notice, read from 3,000 non-Nazi pulpits, would cost the Nazis thousands of votes today, the bishop's office shortly before midnight informed Niemaeller and Von Rabenau their suspension had been rescinded.

Small Freighter Sinks in Lake Gale

Boats Hurry to Shelter as Storm Increases.

Quebec, Nov. 12 (AP).—The small freighter Susa sank today near Anticosti Island, the crew of 16 escaping in a rowboat to a lighthouse.

Reports from Sault Ste. Marie said northwest storm warnings were posted at the canals and all craft were tying up for one of the worst gales in years.

A dozen vessels were reported in anchorage at Whitefish, and those in open water were scurrying for shelter.

Couple Believed Dead In Car Dive Into Lake

Leamington, Ont., Nov. 12 (AP).—Bodies of Miss Thelma Brown, 17, and Donald Hope, 24, were sought today in Lake Erie near a pier off which their automobile skidded.

The couple had been missing since Friday night, but their disappearance was not reported until today. Police found a broken railing at the head of the pier. The car was located under the water. Searchers said the bodies probably had washed away.

Trawler Captured After 24-Hour Search

Campbeltown, Scotland, Nov. 12 (U.P.).—The authorities tonight announced that a British trawler, which fled after kidnaping a British naval officer and two sailors from a fishery cruiser yesterday, had been captured and the three men taken off safely.

The announcement came after the destroyer Viceroy had searched nearly 24 hours for the trawler and the victims of this strange case.

Car Dealers Back NRA.

New York, Nov. 12 (AP).—Faith in the NRA was expressed in a joint resolution adopted by 10 automobile dealers' associations, having approximately 1,600 members in New York City, Westchester County, and nearby New Jersey, and made public today by J. B. Hulett, code authority for this district.

Tries Suicide Leaping Off Train.

Chicago, Nov. 12 (AP).—John Massa, 40, a laborer of Norway, Mich., attempted suicide today, police said, by jumping from a railroad train. He was seriously injured in his fall down the embankment.

Church Society Plans Smoker in Clarendon

The smoker to be given this evening by the Holy Name Society of St. Charles Church at Clarendon, will be featured by an address by Mgr. Albert Smith, editor of the Baltimore Catholic Review.

Entertainment will include songs by John P. Jones and Frank Young, both radio artists.

Accused of Killing Wife.

Eagle River, Wis., Nov. 12 (AP).—Charged with first-degree murder in the death of his wife, Virginia, Richard Budde, tavern and florist shop operator, will be given a hearing tomorrow.

Owed by Chicago, Boys Turn Hoboes

Lifeguard Pay Withheld, Had to Quit College.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 12 (AP).—Claiming to have left the University of Illinois because they had not been paid $500 owed them by the city of Chicago for service as lifeguards, Edward Tula, 20, and Chester Tula, 19, brothers, of Chicago, were held by police here today, after they had been pulled from the tender of a New Haven Railroad train.

With them was Irwin Hyrt, 20, of Chicago, who said he had been a student at Northwestern University until lack of funds compelled him to leave.

Major Blame For War Clouds Placed on U. S.

Educator Indicts Japan, Germany and France as Aiding Danger.

Toledo, Ohio, Nov. 12 (AP).—Four nations were charged today by President Philip R. Nash, of the University of Toledo, as guilty of failure to guarantee world peace.

Until recently a director of the League of Nations Association, he told a gathering of the Toledo Council for the Cause and Cure of War that the United States, France, Japan and Germany are responsible for international insecurity.

"Mankind, not wise enough to capitalize the victory of 15 years ago, is now apprehensive that another war ten times more horrible than the last is sure to come," President Nash asserted.

Major Blame on U. S.

"The United States must bear a major responsibility for the tragedy because of its isolation policy," the educator said. "We had an opportunity to lead the world to permanent peace, but we failed to grasp it.

"We refused to join the League of Nations. We refused to adhere to the World Court. We failed to ratify our arbitration treaties with Pan America. We refused even to join the other nations in stopping the shipment of arms to an aggressor nation.

"We did take the lead in promulgating the Kellogg pact, but our Senators voted for it only when they were sure it was nothing but the pious aspiration which events have actually shown it to be."

France was accused of a refusal to make any vital concessions to Germany in time to prevent Hitlerism.

Japanese Accused.

President Nash said the Japanese had broken their treaties and had scorned the condemnation heaped upon them by the Lytton report.

Nash leveled an accusing finger at Germany for "dealing the final blow to present hopes for peace" by its withdrawal from the league, departure from the disarmament conference, the Nazi declaration for regaining lost territory and for rearming.

Nash said the stage is set for war in Europe and in the Far East, and that American trade relations are such that "the United States is in danger of being sucked into either or both."

Declaring the recognition of Russia is proper, the educator warned it will carry the danger of war with Japan.

"One of the first things Russia will want to buy of the United States will be war supplies to be delivered at Japan's back door. If such a deal is carried through, Japan's probable retaliation would be seizure of the Philippines," Dr. Nash predicted.

Man Takes Poison, Attacks His Family

Wounds Two Daughters, Then Dies in Hospital.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 12 (AP).—Thomas Monroe, 61, died in a hospital here today of self-administered poison, after he had shot and wounded two daughters, attempted to stab his wife, and sprayed his home with shotgun slugs.

Florence, 19, eldest daughter, was wounded when she attempted to aid her brother, Robert, 22, in disarming their father, and another sister, Margaret, is suffering from minor head wounds.

Police said Monroe apparently drank poison just before the attack.

Mrs. Monroe obtained an injunction recently restraining her husband from entering her home, but recently relented and permitted him to sleep there.

U. S. Plans Loans On Optional Cotton

Farmers Who Cut Crops Get Further Benefits.

(Associated Press.)

Farm officials have decided to make loans on cotton on which options were given farmers as part of their benefit payments for plowing up more than 10,000,000 acres of their growing crop last summer. It was disclosed last night that a tentative commitment of $37,000,000 from the Reconstruction Corporation has been arranged.

The loans will be made through the Commodity Credit Corporation. Details are expected to be completed within 10 days. It is intended to make possible loans of 4 cents a pound on more than 2,200,000 bales.

This is the third of the major farm-loan programs being arranged through the Commodity Corporation. It is now making loans of 10 cents a pound on actual cotton held by farmers and soon will begin making loans of 45 cents a bushel on corn.

Alliance Calls On U. S. to End War Training

Nation Urged to Adopt Policy for Scrapping Offensive Arms.

Philadelphia, Nov. 12 (AP).—The World Alliance for International Friendship has called on the United States to take the lead in fostering peace by strengthening the Briand-Kellogg Pact and abolishing military training in educational institutions.

The organization also recommended that the Nation announce as its policy that it will not send its troops beyond its borders and that it is ready to abolish all offensive armaments as soon as other countries will do likewise.

These proposals were contained in a report adopted after submission by Dean Luther A. Weigle of Yale University School of Theology, chairman of the committee on recommendations.

Dr. William P. Merrill, of New York, was elected president. Other officers chosen were, vice presidents, Dr. S. Parks Cadman and Gen. John F. O'Ryan, New York; Justice Florence E. Allen, Ohio Supreme Court, and Dr. Clifford W. Barnes, Chicago; treasurer, William E. Speers, New York.

Indianapolis was selected as the site of the 1934 convention.

Dr. F. Ernest Johnson, of New York, told the Congress that social justice is not "equality of man," but "an opportunity for every human being to reach the limit of his capacity." Not until this is realized will peace be permanent, he said.

Hitler Winner In Record Vote

same time in previous elections, although today there was only one slate.

Preparations had been made for a vote total of about 40,000,000.

About 10 per cent more voters participated in the plebiscite than in the ballot for the Reichstag. Many Jews, for instance, while agreeing with Hitler's foreign policy, could not bring themselves to indorse the Reichstag, which, in the nature of events, will be anti-Semitic.

Just what the chancellor plans to do concerning his policy of international relations was being kept secret for the present.

There were indications, however, that the good offices of Premier Mussolini would be invoked as a preliminary to resumption of contact with other nations. The recent visit of Reichminister Hermann Wilhelm Goering to Rome was regarded as an indication of this.

League Overture Hinted.

There were also hints that Foreign Minister Konstantin von Neurath and the foreign office were ready to submit a set of suggestions for making the League of Nations a workable instrument in international intercourse.

An outstanding feature of the elections was the unanimnity with which Germany cast its ballot. Although outstanding it was not unexpected, because election day had been preceded by a campaign which utilized all devices known to propaganda to obtain a 100 per cent vote.

Hitler's appeal to the nation was put into Braille, so even the blind could understand what they were voting for. In many cases queues in front of election booths were so long the voters had to wait for hours to get in.

Motor lorries with storm troopers and brass bands dashed to and fro in Berlin, entertaining the crowds at the city's 2,663 polling stations. At a late hour no untoward incidents had been reported anywhere in the Reich. Very few election posters had been torn down, even in former Communist strongholds.

The first voter in Berlin was the minister of propaganda, Paul Joseph Goebbels, who presented himself at the stroke of 9 at the cafe "Fuerst Bismarck." Volleys of cheers greeted his appearance.

A little later came President von Hindenburg, accompanied by his secretary. Another ovation. A number of disabled war veterans in wheel chairs whom the venerable president affectionately greeted with a "good morning, everybody," were especially profuse.

Hitler slipped from the back entrance of the chancellory and voted at Siemens Htadt, an industrial suburb, where he made his windup campaign speech Friday.

Throng Cheers Hitler.

Hitler later listened to the election bulletins that marked the rising tide of his triumph, appeared at the window of the chancellory several times to acknowledge the incessant ovations of great crowds that surged through the Wilhelmstrasse. He smiled broadly, apparently delighted with the overwhelming vote that constitutes the greatest triumph of his life.

Toward midnight a report came from Dortmund that a Communist distributing handbills was shot dead while attempting to escape.

Nazi party headquarters shortly after midnight issued a statement calling the election a "miracle of Germany becoming one people."

France Fears for Pact.

Paris, Nov. 12 (AP).—France anxiously awaits the next move of Adolf Hitler.

A formal denunciation of the Versailles treaty is feared, with a simultaneous refusal by Germany to obey the treaty's military clauses. The tremenduous majority Hitler received stirred no surprise, the French press having stressed the complete control held by the Nazis.

The government is expected to make its attitude clear Tuesday when the debates on foreign affairs will be resumed.

Copenhagen, Denmark, Nov. 12 (U.P.).—German residents of Denmark chartered a steamer today to take them outside the 3-mile limit so they could vote in German elections. German citizens on the high seas are eligible to vote and mail their ballots to Berlin tabulators, provided they have registered.

Nazi Expose Promised U. S.

Dickstein Says He'll Show Storm Troops Here; Quiz on Tomorrow.

(Associated Press.)

Representative Dickstein (Democrat), of New York, chairman of the House Immigration Committee, last night shaped his plans for the opening tomorrow of the congressional investigation of Nazi propaganda in the United States.

Dickstein has announced he will seek the deportation of Nazi leaders here. He is understood to be prepared to show that Nazi organizations are well established in 14 States.

German-Americans have been asked to join the "Friends of New Germany," an organization in this country, and to pay dues amounting to $14 a year, Dickstein has asserted. Those hesitant to join, he said, are told that they "still owe allegiance to Germany." He estimated the Nazi strength in the United States at from 50,000 to 60,000.

Dickstein has promised to show that the Nazis are "drilling their storm troops on American soil."

British Fascists And Reds Battle

"Blackshirts" Attacked in Trafalgar Square.

London, Nov. 12 (AP).—A free-for-all fight between British Fascists and Communists made a battleground out of stolid Trafalgar Square today.

A union jack was pulled off a truck carrying black-shirted fascists and torn to pieces. Mounted police rode into the crowd.

Earlier in the day Communists marched to the German Embassy to present a petition protesting the Reichstag fire trial. Police scattered them.

Then the Reds gathered at Nelson's Monument and fighting started when a truckload of black-shirts arrived. The truck was driven by a woman.

130 N. Y. Strikes Ended in 3 Months

NRA Chief Says Mediation Put 250,000 to Work.

New York, Nov. 12 (AP).—Settlement in three months of 130 strikes that sent more than 250,000 men and women back to work was reported today by Grover Whalen, city NRA administrator, in a letter to Hugh S. Johnson.

From data collected on all strikes settled, Whalen said, it was estimated that the average wage discussed was $25 a week, making the weekly total involved about $6,000,000.

Employers and employes, the letter continued, displayed a readiness to get together and work out a solution through mediation where possible.

19 Alleged Reds Jailed.

Boston, Nov. 12 (AP).—Nineteen alleged Communists, three of them women, were arrested tonight as authorities said they attempted to heckle speakers at an anti-Soviet Russia mass meeting held by members of the United Ukrainian Church here.

Editors Want Press Liberty Pledge in Code

Group Votes Resolution Asking Guarantee in Agreement.

Chicago, Nov. 12 (AP).—The directors of the American Society of Newspaper Editors today at their fall meeting adopted a resolution urging that the newspaper code contain a statement on behalf of the Government that acceptance is not to be construed as "waiving, abrogating or modifying" the rights of free speech and a free press.

The resolution follows:

"Whereas, the National recovery act and its enforcement present possibilities of direct or indirect restrictions of the freedom of the press; and

Whereas, it is beyond all question that the freedom of the press was guaranteed in the first amendment to the Constitution, not to confer a special and peculiar privilege upon the press but in order to protect the fundamental rights and essential liberties of a free people; and

"Whereas, there is an effort to create an opinion that special immunities and privileges are being sought for newspaper publishing as a business under the guise of defending the liberty of the press, making a specific statement of the position of the society desirable. Now, therefore,

"Be it resolved, That the board of directors of the American Society of Newspaper Editors considers it a matter of the utmost importance to the American people, as well as to the press, that the newspaper code now being formulated under the provisions of the recovery act shall contain a specific statement on behalf of the Government, as one of the contrasting parties that the acceptance of a newspaper code is not intended to and shall not be construed as waiving, abrogating or modifying the rights of free speech and the freedom of the press as these are guaranteed under the constitutions of the United States and the several States."

Army's Dirigible Expert to Retire

Col. John A. Paegelow, 63, Served 36 Years.

Army service of 36 years will end on November 30 for Lieut. Col. John A. Paegelow, Army authority on dirigibles, when he is retired for physical disability at the age of 63.

Col. Paegelow has been commander of the Army's lighter-than-air forces at Scott Field, Ill., for the past 11 years. He is an internationally known authority on the use of lighter-than-air craft for defense. During the war he was in command of the balloon service of the Army in France, and he received the Distinguished Service Medal for the participation in the second battle of the Marne and the St. Mihiel drive.

The officer was born in Germany in 1870, and entered the United States Army as a private in 1897. He was wounded in the battle of San Juan Hill, and was commissioned in the Philippine Scouts in 1901. For his Cuban wound he received the Purple Heart decoration.

Guinan Plays Last Date on Broadway

Catholic Burial Rites.

Father Joseph F. McKenna, from St. Malachy's Church, read the Catholic ritual for the dead.

As the casket was carried to the street, the crowd had become so great that extra police had difficulty with traffic. A bugler sounded "Taps" as Texas was placed in the hearse. A stillness came over the wide street. Traffic seemed to stop, and the crowd stood almost breathless as a chauffeur started his machine and took "Texas" away from Broadway.

Two thousand persons were massed about the crypt in the Gate of Heaven Cemetery when the cortege arrived there. The crush was so great three funeral cars collided and eight persons were injured.

Fight for Flowers.

As the final service was being held inside the crypt several men managed to squeeze their way into the small room. Together they advanced upon the casket, ripped wreaths and floral blankets from it, and fled to the open air. In a moment the crowd went mad. They descended upon Tex's mausoleum, and screamed and fought for flowers.

Thus did Texas Guinan go away. As the "butter-and-egg men" of the fat days fought for her night club clackers, so did the mob fight for her flowers.

Texas, who asked in her dying breath that they demand no cover charge for her last appearance, would have enjoyed it.

Scribes All Wet, But Crash Sea's Floor and Front Page

They Start for Ocean's Depths and Discover Diving Bell Leaks.

Seattle, Nov. 12 (AP).—The men who write the news often make news themselves—take for example Ken Binns and Alex Shults, who set a world's record for journalistic deep-sea diving just because they wanted to keep their feet dry.

They got the story they were after, a first page feature about the diving bell the U. S. Navy has been testing for submarine salvage work.

"Hey, you," said the city editor, "I wish you would find out something at first hand about E. J. Romono's 'robot' diving bell. We know it looks like a marine monster with claws, and can operate on sunken ships at great depths, but we ought to know more."

They're Sports Writers.

"Yes, sir," said Mr. Binns and Mr. Shults, "we happen to be sports writers and we presume this comes under the head of aquatic sports."

So they went to the dredge where the salvage company was grappling many fathoms deep for a 25-ton railroad gondola car.

"You aren't supposed to go down in this bell," said the salvage people. "Only divers and naval officers go down."

"We are here for first-hand information," said Mr. Shults and Mr. Binns firmly. "How does the public know the bell does go down? If it goes down, we go down."

"Oh, it goes down—" and the salvage people locked the two journalists into a pear-shaped bell built for one diver, and unreeled them into the depths of Puget Sound.

"Say," observed Shults suddenly, from his seat on the floor. "This bell is leaking."

"No," said Binns, who was standing on Shults' torso, "it's guaranteed not to leak."

"We should have demanded a practice workout," said Shults. "I'm in a puddle of water. I don't think it works."

"I think it's like a parachute," said Reporter Binns philosophically, "you get no chance to practice. If it doesn't work the first time—fooey."

"Don't Worry," Says Voice.

"How's everything?" a voice remarked over the bell's telephone.

"The bell is leaking," said Shults.

"Merely condensation," said the voice. "You are only 210 feet down. I'll drop you down some more. You'll get used to it." The green water outside sparkled as the bell plunged.

"Now I'll bet it doesn't leak," said the voice.

"No," said Reporter Binns, "it's showering now. The water is coming through the iron bar over the door."

So the bell was hauled up.

"No wonder," the salvage people said, "you turned this bar the wrong way. Is the carbon dioxide eliminator going? Y'understand, you're supposed to suffocate if it isn't on. Down you go again."

Success at Last.

Once more the fish floated up, and the voice remarked: "See that big black thing on your right? That's the 25-ton gondola we're lifting."

"Go on over there so I can see it," said Reporter Binns.

"What will you do if the gondola tilts over on the diving bell?" Shults asked.

"Go home to lunch," said the voice, "I'm going anyway. Haven't you guys seen enough? You're 485 feet down now."

"We'll come up," they responded hastily.

The diving bell wasn't crushed at the bottom of the sea, but they made the front page anyway.

Haitian Minister Given Reception

Colored Citizens Honor M. Dantes Bellegarde.

A farewell reception in honor of M. Dantes Bellegarde, Haitian Minister, was held last night in the parlors of the Phyllis Wheatley Young Women's Christian Association, by colored citizens of the Nation's Capital. William H. Hunt, former consul of Tamative, Madagascar, and at St. Etienne, France, served as master of ceremonies.

Dr. Velaurez B. Spratlin, vice president of the Society of Friends of the French Language and Culture, bespoke the esteem in which M. Bellegarde is held by that organization, and by Negro Americans in general, following musical numbers by William Allen, pianist, and Louis Vaughn Jones, violinist. The Haitian national anthem was sung by Mrs. Gregoria Fraser Goins.

A token of appreciation was presented to Mme. Bellegarde by Mrs. Anna J. Cooper, president of Frelinghuysen University, after which the master of ceremonies proclaimed the Haitian Minister an honorary president for life of the society.

Propaganda Airplanes Barred Fuel in Spain

Valladolid, Spain, Nov. 12 (AP). After unsuccessful pursuit of an airplane which dropped political campaign matter, the civil governor issued an order today forbidding sale of gasoline to civilian planes until after next Sunday's election.

Military craft were sent in chase of a flier distributing literature of the Popular Action party in violation of a government edict.

Airdrome of Skies New Feature Of Mighty Naval Maneuvers

Macon, World's Greatest Dirigible, to Take Part in Mimic Battle.

San Pedro, Calif., Nov. 12 (AP).—A fast-cruising airdrome of the clouds will provide something new for the big naval maneuvers this week in which more than 100 ships of the United States fleet will participate.

Battle orders were prepared tonight for the sky, sea and undersea forces to move quietly out of their bases here and at San Francisco and San Diego tomorrow morning.

The world's greatest sky ship, the dirigible U. S. S. Macon, will provide the unusual for these three-day maneuvers off the coast of California tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday.

It will be a real test for the floating air base of the clouds, as pitted against the sea-crusing air bases of the aircraft carriers of the fleet.

Each of the aircraft carriers holds about 20 times as many planes as the dirigible, but the big sky ship has the advantage of cruising speed about three times as great, wind permitting.

In addition the sky airdrome has the secrecy advantage of cloud banks, if they exist, in which it might hide, as well as the lifting ability to soar far beyond the danger of ship fire, upon which sea carriers can not escape.

The main problem of the maneuvers involves the fighting forces of the fleet, the power of battleships, cruisers, aircraft carriers, submarines and destroyers.

The United States fleet will be divided into two forces, known as the Blue, or attacking fleet, and the Brown, or defensive fleet.

Pilot Dies, Companion Injured in Air Crash

Pasco, Wash., Nov. 12 (AP).—W. J. Fletcher, an oil company pilot, of Seattle, was killed and Claude C. Van Fleet, his companion, was injured when their plane crashed in the Horse Heaven Hills, about 8 miles south of Kennewick last night.

Play By Friendship House.

The Dramatic Club of the Friendship House will give Booth Tarkington's three-act play, "The Trysting Place," at Hine Junior High School auditorium at Seventh and C streets southeast Wednesday at 8:15 p. m. There will be no admission charge, but a collection will be taken.

D. C. Samples Coming Opera Via Broadcast

Hospital Concert Also Given by Stars Who Show Here Sunday.

Sitting by their radios or at a concert for shut-ins at Walter Reed Hospital, Washingtonians sampled last night the operatic wares of some of the stars who will appear in a week of grand opera at the Washington Auditorium, beginning Sunday night.

Both the broadcast and the concert were arranged by The Washington Post to give its readers an idea of the caliber of opera presentation it has arranged for them to hear at half-price.

Small, dark-eyed and pretty, Marie Olla, lyric soprano, opened the Walter Reed concert, which was arranged especially for disabled war veterans and hospitalized Civilian Conservation Corps recruits, with an aria from the opera "Pagliacci," in which she will be heard at the auditorium Sunday night, and "Song of Songs."

Rosita Fordieri, contralto, who will appear during the opera series in a performance of "Il Trovatore," Saturday night, November 25, was heard next in "Gay Muleteer," Lavinia Darve, soprano, followed with "Ritorna Vincitor," famous aria of the first act of the opera "Aida." Miss Darve has been cast as Micaela in the International Opera Company's presentation of "Carmen" next Monday night. Other features of the concert program were Elizabeth Girard in "Danny Boy," Ciro DeRitis, Washington barytone, in the prologue from "Pagliacci," and Carlotta Bruno, singing an aria from the opera "Faust."

The same singers, with the addition of Giuseppe Martino-Rossi, were heard from WMAL. Each presented a series of light classical and operatic numbers, preceded and followed by resumes of the day's news by The Post's news broadcaster, Harris Hull. Carmella Ponselle, Metropolitan soprano, who was to have come to the Capital for the broadcast and Walter Reed concert, was compelled by a cold to remain at the home of friends in Worcester, Mass. Her regrets, wired to the opera management, were broadcast.

Cold Kills Student On Mountain Climb

New England Outing Fatal to Rupert A. Marden.

Gorham, N. H., Nov. 12 (AP).—Rupert A. Marden, of Brookline, Mass., 21, student of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, died on Mount Washington today after he and a party of Tech students had been forced by a snowstorm and intense cold to spend the night near the summit.

The youthful mountain climber succumbed to exhaustion after the party had battled a 40-mile-an-hour gale and struggled through snowdrifts 10 feet deep to the summit yesterday, only to find descent impossible because of the storm and cold of 3 degrees above zero. They reached Hermit Lake shelter, a lean-to hut, and spent the night there.

When the others attempted to arouse Marden this morning they discovered he was dead.

West Virginia Boy, 4, Pours Oil on Fire, Dies

Gallipolis, Ohio, Nov. 12 (AP). William, 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Shaver, of New Haven, W. Va., died in a hospital here today of burns received when he poured kerosene on a fire at his home.

His parents were at a nearby barn at the time. The house and barn were destroyed by the resulting flames.

Osborne Paid High Tribute By Roosevelt

Statement of President Introduces Book on Prison Reformer.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Nov. 12 (AP). President Franklin D. Roosevelt contributed the introductory statement for a new book on the career of Thomas Mott Osborne, famous prison reformer, just released by the University of North Carolina Press.

"Osborne of Sing Sing" is the title of the book, which is written by Frank Tannenbaum, a close personal friend of Osborne, and author of the Wickersham Commission report on penal institutions.

"Thomas Mott Osborne had courage; even his enemies admit that; he had vision; even those who laughed at him 20 years ago admit that now," says Mr. Roosevelt's introduction.

"I like to think of him as the real pioneer who brought out the fact that 90 men out of every 100 who go to prison return sooner or later to our midst as members of our community, this deep principle was wholly sound—that human beings who are apprehended and punished by the state for sins against society can, in a very large percentage of cases, be restored to society as law-abiding citizens.

"He was right in holding that the prisons themselves were the key to the problem. Crime prevention is another problem and so also is an adequate system of parole and supervision after prisoners are released. It is in the prison itself, however, where the greatest opportunity lies in turning men who have sinned into men who will sin no more."

Tannenbaum's volume gives a survey of conditions in the major prisons of the country, presents the story of Osborne's career and reveals for the first time many hitherto unpublished facts pertinent to the reformer's record in prison work.

Roosevelt Asks Social Uplift

Upholds Family Welfare Work, Saying More Than Jobs Are Needed.

New York, Nov. 12 (AP).—Economic and social recovery must go hand in hand, said President Roosevelt in a letter made public today by James G. Blaine, chairman of the citizens' family welfare committee.

"Our distressed families need a good deal more than the things that merely keep them alive," wrote Mr. Roosevelt in indorsing the committee's work.

"Particularly, unemployed heads of families need the kind of social service which will maintain them in proper condition to fill jobs when jobs are opened for them.

"Only thus can the Administration's recovery program have its proper cumulative effect. For recovery does not mean just some of the people.

"If economic and social recovery do not go hand in hand, we will not be able to say truthfully that we have recovery. Yet by itself the Government—Federal, State and municipal—can not encompass recovery in the social field. The job is one which can only be handled by a partnership between Government on the one hand and public generosity on the other."

Beat-Pounder of "Seventies" Recalls Drunk "Toting" Days

No Racing Patrol Wagon Then to Aid, Says R. O. Melton.

Richard O. Melton, who pounded a beat in Anacostia before Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, was born, perused a clipping from The Washington Post under date of March 28, 1889, and pensively, rubbed his pate.

"Policeman Almost Killed," the headline announced. Private Richard O. Melton, attempting to stop a brawl in Maiden lane, South Washington, had been struck on the head with a baseball bat. He was rendered unconscious, and so serious were his injuries, the story gravely explained, that he required medical attention.

They came pretty tough in those days. And even today this 85-year-old cop emeritus is no softie. The ears don't catch everything they used to and a few teeeth are missing, but the Melton of Maiden lane still is tall and erect, a mainstay of the Association of Retired Policemen.

Second to Mahoney.

Only one other man is alive who was in the department when Melton was appointed on August 27, 1872. He is John R. Mahoney, secretary of the Association of Oldest Inhabitants, with a record of 48 years' service.

"Well, Mr. Melton, who had the more difficult duties, the patrolman of the 70s or that modern one who just passed outside?"

"Oh, we did! We didn't even have horse patrols to take prisoners to the station. We just took a hold and marched them off. Sometimes it was a few miles to go with a fighting drunk."

Too young for service in the Civil War, the southern Maryland bred rookie was the first policeman appointed after '65 who boasted of no military record. He put in his last 26 years at the District Building as license inspector, retiring in 1920.

Since the retired policemen's organization was founded in 1931, Mr. Melton has missed only one meeting. The association holds him up as Exhibit A in support of its claim retired policemen will live longer if they join. Two have died this year, one being Harry L. Gessford, former superintendent.

Good to Swap Yarns.

Among approximately 140 retired policemen not affiliated with the association, there have been eight deaths this year. Mr. Saunders attributes the low death rate within the charmed circle, whose members average 65 years of age, partly to the group's opportunity to gather regularly and swap yarns.

At 8 p. m. on the first Monday of each month, one can find "Brother Melton" at police headquarters setting memories to words with the best of 'em. When he leaves for his home at 2018 First street northwest, accompanied by Neighbor William Haller, who served a mere 33 years, he is already looking forward to the next meeting.

John Hanson Exercises Postponed Until Nov. 25

Postponement until November 25 of the exercises marking erection of a tablet to the memory of John Hanson, considered by many the first President of the United States, at Oxon Hill Manor, Prince Georges County, Md., was announced yesterday by William Nelson Morell, secretary of the John Hanson Society of Maryland.

The unveiling was to take place Wednesday at Oxon Hill Manor, owned by Sumner Welles, Ambassador to Cuba, which was the home of John Hanson.

Pastor Speaks On World Tour

Briton Finds Psychology Improved Since Last Visit to U. S.

Remarking an almost unbelievable improvement in the psychology of the American people since his visit here 20 months ago, Dr. J. H. Rushbrooke, of London, executive secretary of the Baptist World Alliance, spoke yesterday at Calvary Baptist Church. He discussed his impressions after a recent trip around the world.

Dr. Rushbrooke expressed alarm at the nationalism of the Germans. "The Germany of 1933 has too much in common with Germany of 1914," he said. Blame for the ill-boding militant spirit he laid to the severity of the Versailles treaty.

"If Europe is to be saved from war, it will be through the work of the Christian Church all over the world. Dr. Rushbrooke urged that the United States attempt to secure religious liberty for people in Russia "whose atheistic government is attempting to stifle their faith."

The minister spoke optimistically of the spread of the Baptist Church in continental Europe since its establishment 99 years ago in Hamburg. Turkey and Albania are the only European countries in which there are no Baptist churches, he said.

Two Hunters Sought By Plane and Boat

Detroit, Nov. 12 (AP).—From airplanes and boats, searchers scanned Lake St. Clair today for two duck hunters, missing more than 36 hours and believed to have drowned. Their canoe was recovered a mile off shore this afternoon.

The missing men are Ralph Ireland, 33, Detroit, and Clifford Foster, 35, St. Clair Shores. They set out at dawn Saturday. There was a heavy snow storm, accompanied by occasional strong winds, yesterday.

100 on Sinking Ferryboat Saved

Signals Bring Sister Ship to Quick Rescue.

Tarrytown, N. Y., Nov. 12 (AP). One hundred passengers were rescued today when the ferryboat City of Reading sank in the Hudson River today after putting out from Tarrytown for Nyack, on the opposite shore. The accident occurred when the steering gear snapped and the steamer was carried against a concrete anchor.

Her plates were stove in and distress signals brought her sister steamer, the Nyack, alongside from a position about 1,000 feet away.

The water rushed through the hole in the stricken vessel's side so rapidly that several passengers showed signs of panic.

40,000 Miners End Walkout

Pennsylvania Anthracite Workers Return Today to Their Jobs.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Nov. 12 (U.P.).—A strike of 40,000 anthracite miners ended here tonight.

Five hundred delegates at a special convention of the newly-organized United Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania voted unanimously to resume work tomorrow morning at all collieries in the Luzerne-Lackawanna district.

The decision brought to a close a week of turmoil and disorder, during which pickets at collery gates clashed frequently with State police. Under the terms of the return to work, all strikers are to be reinstated in their former positions at the mines regardless of whether they continue membership in the Anthracite Miners Union or return to the United Mine Workers of America.

Settlement of the strike was voted after Senator Robert Wagner, head of the labor board at Washington, had sent a message promising appointment of a Government commission to investigate complaints of improper working conditions.

Post Begins Toy Fund to Aid Santa

the answer to Santa Claus, in came The Junior Post editor, accompanied by Ding-How of Hydegree, mascot and editor of the Pets Corner of that enterprising little unit of The Washington Post. Ding-How, when told of the radiogram, barked: "Put me down as the first Washington Post Santa Claus Aid for 1933. And here's my contribution." He gave the first dollar to The Washington Post 1933 toy and doll fund.

"It's in memory of 'Igloo,' Admiral Bird's pet dog who went with him on his first South Pole expedition," explained Ding-How. "Igloo died after his return to civilization. He was a pal of mine and a brave dog and I feel sure the admiral will be proud that a dollar in memory of 'Igloo' started the Washington Post Toy and Doll Fund this year. Count on me to help in any way."

Now Up to Readers.

Now, Mr. and Mrs. Washington Post Reader, it is up to you!

Will you help The Washington Post, through cooperation with the Council of Social Agencies and other relief organizations, bring a Merry Christmas to every child in the Nation's Capital this year?

Thousands of families are on the relief rolls this year, more than last Christmas. These families will have no Christmas money, nothing for toys and dolls. The children of these stricken homes have learned to suffer gallantly, but a Christmas without Santa Claus is just unthinkable to the child mind.

Even the smallest gift you can spare, a dime, a quarter, a half dollar, all will grow into a fund that will make a barren Christmas impossible for any Washington child. Tell your own little ones, in the security and peace and Christmas anticipations you have been able to provide for them, about the fund. Let them give some of their own toys.

Miss Geraldine Frost, a member of The Washington Post staff, will be Santa Claus lady again this year. Indeed, it is hard to think how The Washington Post Toy and Doll Fund could operate without her faithful devotion to its interests.

Tuck in Good Wishes.

Address all contributions to "Post Toy and Doll Fund," Washington Post. Each contribution will be acknowledged in The Washington Post in a list printed from day to day. Give your own name, or in memory of some dear one who will not be with you this Christmas, or anonymously, as you please. Be your gift large or small, be sure to tuck in your good wishes for some child. The Washington Post wants The Post Toy Fund to represent the love of the people for needy little children.

Shortly after the radiogram came from Santa Claus this letter was handed to the city editor. It was from the Social Service League of Montgomery County, Md., with headquarters at Rockville, and it read as follows:

The Washington Post.

Dear Sirs: Last year the Post was kind enough to give to this organization a truck load of toys for distribution among the families known to this agency. If it is possible, we should like very much to put in our application for a similar donation this year. We shall appreciate anything which you can do for the children of Montgomery County.

Very sincerely yours,
VIRGINIA LEE BENNETT,
Executive secretary.

As Montgomery County is "almost" in Washington, The Post Toy and Doll Fund will do its utmost to fufill this request.

"WHY DIDN'T I SAVE $14 On CAR INSURANCE?"

"WHY SHOULD I pay $14.00 more for my car insurance than my friends who buy their insurance direct from Liberty Mutual?

"Of course my broker doesn't like it when I ask him to place my insurance in the Liberty. That's natural because the Liberty won't pay him a commission. They sell you your policy direct and pass along the savings to you in dividends. Liberty Mutual's cost to sell policies is only one-third as much as the selling cost of other companies.

"And my friends say that Liberty Mutual will accept insurance from only one careful driver out of every four car-owners, which saves many ruinous losses from reckless driving. Then, too, Liberty Mutual has no stockholders. It pays all dividends to its policyholders.

SAVINGS

made by car-owners last year on complete Personal Injury, Property Damage and Fire and Theft Insurance.

Lincoln, Cadillac, Packard Class of Cars Saved	$14.00
Buick, Chrysler, Nash Class of Cars Saved	$12.70
Ford, Chevrolet, Plymouth Class of Cars Saved	$12.50
Trucks—1½ tons or less	$17.25

Partial payments, if desired.

"Under the Liberty's plan—the mutual plan—these savings are paid back to policyholders in the form of cash dividends.

"This plan would have saved me $14.00 on insurance for my Cadillac in 1932.

"I understand that Liberty Mutual has an unbroken record of earning and paying 20% dividends off standard rates to its policyholders every year for 21 years. Furthermore, it has added substantial sums to surplus and reserves every year. The company is the largest mutual liability insurance company in the country. That's strong enough protection for anybody.

"My friends say that if they have an accident, they just 'phone the nearest Liberty Mutual office and seldom ever hear of their case again until it is settled. They tell me that 99% of its cases are settled without trial in court, which proves that Liberty Mutual must be fair and prompt in making settlements.

"Liberty Mutual must be a good company. It has more than 115,000 policyholders—responsible, careful - driving car - owners. They've saved over $37,000,000 for their policyholders—and I could just as well have had my share of it. I'm going to 'phone the Liberty Mutual office at once."

Building Code To Be Pushed By Contractors

Construction Wheels Must Start Now, Leader Says, Attacking A. F. of L.

A plan of action to push the building code now before the NRA will be considered today by the governing board of the Associated General Contractors of America, meeting here.

At a meeting of the executive cabinet of the organization yesterday this plan was presented by A. C. Tozzer, president of the organization.

The association is cooperating with the Construction League of the United States, representing various organizations in the construction business, in attempting to force the adoption of the code, which is being opposed by the American Federation of Labor.

The proposed code covers all divisions of the construction industry. The labor federation favors a separate code for the building industry and separate wage provisions for various kinds of skilled labor.

Attacks Labor Opposition.

Opposed to the Construction League code also is the Building Trades Employers Association. The Construction League yesterday made public a resolution of the Mason Builders Association of New York indorsing the league's code. The New York association is a member of the Employers Association. The resolution was signed by 53 New York contractors, including contractors who are now engaged in erecting new Government buildings in Washington.

The Construction League announced itself as opposed to the proposal of Malcolm Muir, divisional recovery administrator, that provision be made in the code for a National labor arbitration board within the industry.

"The work of 17 National organizations, hundreds of regional organizations and thousands of men in coordinating an industry hitherto wastefully disjointed, can not be nullified or destroyed by a self-seeking iconoclastic opposition by the American Federation of Labor," Carlton S. Proctor, spokesman for the league, declared.

Oppose Reopening of Hearings.

He said the keystone of the arch of success of the entire NRA program is the construction industry code. He said no other industry can absorb the unemployed millions usually employed in construction.

Proctor opposed the proposal of Muir that hearings on the code be reopened. He said the Labor Federation represents only 25 per cent of the construction industry as a whole and called its insistance that code hearings be reopened "intolerable."

"The wheels of construction must start turning at once and the starting motor is the construction code," he added.

Other Groups Gather Here

"There are no new issues at stake. Organized labor has presented no further ideas than those set forth at the public hearings on the code. NRA has given enough consideration to the representative character of the league. In view of these facts we can see no reason for a reopening of the hearings; such action would only cause further delay and a further disruption of activity in the industry."

The contractors' meeting today and tomorrow will be followed by a meeting of the board of directors of the United States Chamber of Commerce Wednesday, a meeting of the general assembly of the Construction League Thursday, and a meeting of the executive committee of the American Institute of Architects Saturday. All these organizations support the construction code in its present form

FRIENDS of the merit system are encouraged by the action taken by Gov. Gen. Murphy of the Philippines in extending that system in the islands. The order is designed to end the inefficiencies and extravagances accompanying spoils practices.

BAKER.

Excerpts from Gov. Murphy's order follow:

"It has been brought to my attention that there exists some legal provisions or riders whereby appointing officials are given the option of applying or not applying the Civil Service laws and rules in the filling of certain specified positions. Such discretion should only be applied in favor of persons with outstanding competence nad experience who may not be Civil Service eligibles.

"Attention is also invited to the fact that unless selection is made in accordance with the Civil Service rules, it has been held that Civil Service privileges are not allowable. It would therefore be in the interests of good administration and the employes concerned if the merit system be applied to all such positions, which are not expressly declared to be in the unclassified service.

The Government Basket Ball League, oldest of its type in the city, will hold its first meeting of the season tomorrow at the Federal Clubhouse, 1515 Sixteenth street northwest at 8 p. m., Vice President Vic Gauza announces.

Plans will be made for starting the season next month. All teams desiring to compete for the annual trophy offered by the National Federation of Federal Employes are invited to send a representative.

Government Printing Office is defending champion, having defeated the Bureau of Investigation in a three-game playoff series last spring

Duckpin Notes.

Marine Corps Headquarters Bowling League has been reorganized with four teams, representing the Commandants, Paymaster, Quartermaster and Adjutant's and Inspector's departments. Matches are bowled weekly on Thursday evening at the Convention Hall alleys.

Teams and members follow:

Paymaster—Gates, Hubert, Raynor, Ross and Williams.

Commandants—Sheppard, Miller, Thacker, Sargeant and Small.

Quartermaster—Harley, Taylor, McLane, F. J. Miller and R. M. Davis.

Adjutant and Inspector—Browning, Leer, Davis, Sinapoli and Brigham.

Quartermasters are leading the league with 12 victories and 3 losses. Commandants are second with 10 victories and 5 losses.

Miscellaneous Tax League.

Krazy Katz continue in lead by one game, having taken two games from Pin Hawks, last year's champions. Tobacco Scraps took odd game from Eagle Eyes, to remain in second. Capt. Charles M. Sammons kept the Eagle Eyes from a whitewashing.

J. I. STROBEL.

James I. Strobel, of Tobacco Scraps, set an all-time league record with a high game of 185 and tied for record set of 405.

• • • •

Federal League.

Jerry Cowden's 168 game with G. P. O. and Navy Yard's set of 1,786, which featured Leroy Burdette's 400 were the high spots in last week's bowling. The Postoffice five, with nine consecutive wins, further strengthened their lead as Navy Yard and Commerce, their closest rivals, were each losing one game.

In the other matches G. P. O. and Patent Office won two from National Capital Parks and Internal Revenue, respectively. Bill Miller, new leading bowler of the league, rolled a set of 381.

• • • •

Commerce Interbureau League.

Purchase and Sales team, leading in the close race, made a high game of 600 and high set of 1,645. Aeronautics, tied with Radio for second place with eight victories and seven losses, are only two games behind for Purchase and Sales.

Inge, of P. and S., bowled high set with 367. Ryan, his team mate, is second with set of 355. Holt, of Files, is tied with Ryan. Inge's game of 144 also was high for the week.

Ladies Federal League.

Doris Goodall (*), league president, and her Agricultural junior team remained in first place by some extraordinary bowling last week with a comfortable lead of 19 wins and 5 losses. Miss Goodall smashed out an individual set of 337 to trim its former superior, Agricultural Varsity. Maxine Fleming, Veterans' Administration, had high game of 130, but failed to keep her team from a 2-to-1 defeat by Commerce.

• • • •

Dynamite League.

Dr. Hugh Linder, pilot of the Little Potatoes, led in trouncing the Steam Rollers three straight. League Vice President Long, also on the spud team, shot an enviable set of 355, including a 136 game—both high for the week.

DR. LINDER.

The Sleuths rose from fourth to second place by subduing the Hill Billies. The flatties copped the first game by 84 pins. Sleuth Schultz bowled a nice set of 342 and Anchorman Spiess followed with 329.

Charley Clarke captained the Blow Hards in sinking the Wrecking Crew to sixth place.

Six Industries Ask NRA Help With Tariffs

Expected Rush for Aid Absent; Dollar's Drop Held Responsible.

(Associated Press.)

Fears that wholesale tariff concessions would be sought by American industries under the recovery act were quieted yesterday by NRA's announcement that only six industries have filed requests for aid under the law's embargo provisions.

This unexpectedly small total was attributed in part to the difficulties set up by NRA regulations, but also in great measure to the deliberate depreciation of the American dollar in foreign markets, giving the domestic manufacturer added leeway in establishing higher labor standards without running into ruinous foreign competition.

The coming week brings to NRA a number of important milestones.

The status of Henry Ford in relation to the automobile code probably will be settled.

Johnson Returns Tuesday.

Hugh S. Johnson, administrator, will return Tuesday from a campaign tour of the West.

Hearings start today on a general wholesale trade code, covering a score of lines of business.

The determined fight between organized labor and employing groups over a code for the construction industry is due for a showdown, with a decision expected from the Administration on the question of reopening hearings.

Nearly a dozen codes still await signature by President Roosevelt. Some are regarded as of major importance.

3 Tariff Pleas Hit Japan.

Yesterday's tariff announcement did not discuss policy. It stated merely that protection had been sought against cotton imitation Oriental rugs from France; rag, chenille and other cotton rugs, from Japan; matches, from Japan; wool felt hat bodies, from Italy; lead pencils, from Japan and Germany, and watches and watch movements, from Switzerland, with a large amount of smuggling alleged.

Oscar E. Ryder, chief of the imports division, noted that supporting information in several of these cases was not complete. Tariff men have complained that Ryder has established forms for the petitions so intricate that only experts could fill them out.

Princess Gets "5-10" Millions Tuesday, Her 21st Birthday

Doris Duke Will Receive Tobacco Riches From Trust Nov. 21.

New York, Nov. 12 (AP).—Princess Mdivani, the former Barbara Hutton, will come into possession of her share of the Woolworth 10-cent store fortune on her twenty-first birthday anniversary Tuesday.

Her riches, which have been held by trustees, are estimated variously at from $10,000,000 to $20,000,000. Under the will of her grandfather, F. W. Woolworth, the blonde princess will receive full control of the money at the age of 21.

The princess and her husband, Prince Alexis Mdivani, arrived last week from Paris, where they were married in June.

Friends of the prince said at the time he was getting a large settlement, but that in the event of his wife's death, his inheritance would be limited.

Another heiress, Doris Duke, will be 21 years old a week from Tuesday, at which time she will come into control of part of the trust fund established by James B. Duke, her tobacco magnate father.

Some of her fortune will remain in trust until she is 25 years old, and another portion will not be turned over to her until she is 30.

Victories Claimed By Bolivian Army

Silence Paraguay Battery, Shoot Down Planes.

La Paz, Bolivia, Nov. 12 (AP).—The army chief of staff today claimed successful artillery bombardment of a Paraguayan battery in the north Nanawa sector of the Chaco war area. The enemy was silenced, he said, and an ammunition dump was set on fire.

A Bolivian air squadron, the official announcement added, bombarded an opposition air squadron on its field and "later saw great quantities of smoke coming from the jungle field, which followed great explosions."

The bulletin reported "activity in the Arce sector was confined to harassment of enemy patrols."

Industry Backs Fixed Oil Price Citing Losses

Emergency Still Exists, Committee Declares; Delay Reported.

(Associated Press.)

A strong defense of Federal regulation of petroleum prices was made yesterday by the oil industry's planning and coordination committee, at the same time reports were heard that prices due to become effective December 1 might be postponed or revised sharply.

The committee contended in a formal statement that emergency conditions which led to the price fixing order of Secretary Ickes, oil administrator, still existed.

"The theory of the order," the committee said, "is that selling below fair average cost is destructive and unfair competition and subversive of the objectives of the National recovery act.

"We feel that it should be pointed out that gasoline has been selling considerably below cost, and that to put this commodity on a cost-of-supply basis some increases in price are unavoidable.

"It should not be supposed, however, that such increases represent added net income to the oil companies. In the main, these increases will merely make up the losses to below-cost selling. For this reason, published estimates of huge increases in oil company earnings are misleading the public and should be corrected."

Leaders in the oil business, commenting privately, based their expectation of a possible postponement of price-fixing on data asked by the Petroleum Administrative Board of all oil companies and operators in calling hearings on the proposed prices. The hearings are to open in about 10 days.

The board requested an opinion on the whole subject of price regulation, as well as objections to or support for the levels proposed by the Administration. These levels range from a base of $1.11 for average grade crude to 13 cents a gallon as the average gasoline base at retail.

IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES TO BE A CHAMPION BRONK RIDER!

RIDE 'EM COWBOY! Every second is crowded with danger for Eddie Woods, twice all-round cowboy champion at the famous Calgary Stampede. It sure takes healthy nerves to stay on board a fighting bronk! "Camels are my smoke," says Eddie Woods. "They never jangle my nerves."

"OUT ON THE RANCH I became devoted to riding and smoking Camels. Even though I am in the tenderfoot class I need healthy nerves. And Camels do not upset my nerves. That is important to a woman!"

A MATCHLESS BLEND

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW
Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

EDDIE WOODS, one of the "top hands" of the cowboy world, says:

"Ten seconds on the back of an outlaw horse is about the hardest punishment for a man's nerves that anybody can imagine. To have nerves that can take it, I smoke only Camels. I've tried them all, but Camels are my smoke! They have a natural mildness, and I like their taste better. Most important of all, Camels do not jangle my nerves, even when I light up one Camel after another."

If you are nervous... jumpy... inclined to "fly off the handle"... change to Camels. Your own nerves and taste will confirm the fact that this milder cigarette, made from costlier tobaccos, is better for steady smoking.

French Colony Holds Services For Armistice

Ambassador Hears Pastor Plead for Peace Based on Religion.

Before an audience including the French Ambassador and Mme. de Laboulaye, at the French service in commemoration of Armistice Day at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church yesterday afternoon, the pastor of the local French congregation, the Rev. Andre Frank Llotard, declared the only way to bring about a real and lasting peace is through religion.

Since peace, the speaker said, is based on order, harmony and self-discipline—qualities not inherent in human nature—the spirit and power of Jesus are needed to supply these elements in the heart of man.

A brief address was made by the former pastor of the French congregation, Dr. Florian Vurpillot.

A feature of the service was the singing by Harlen Castle of a stanza of "La Marseillaise," beginning with the line "Amour sacre de la patrie." Solos were also sung by Mrs. Amy Shepard and Mrs. Alfred W. Sherman. Music was under the direction of the organist, Mrs. Mary C. D. Johnson.

Ambassador and Mme. de Laboulaye occupied the Lincoln pew, to which they were escorted by Maj. Archibald King, of the United States Army.

Taking Charge of the Defense.

All the vile epithets that are constantly being hurled at self-appointed "Captains of the Bidding" should not make us think that it is improper for one partner to take charge of the defense. Usually the correct line of play necessary to defeat a contract is quite obvious to one player, when it can not be to his partner. In these cases, it is possible for him to show his partner the proper course to pursue by a beautiful system of inferences, which go to make up the partnership language of play. The East player in the hand I have chosen for discussion today was able to determine the exact sequence of plays he and his partner should make as soon as he saw the Dummy; and he found that by discarding in a certain way he could convey inferences to West which would assure guidance of West's play into the correct channels.

North, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

South	West	North	East
		1♣	Pass
1♠	2♡	Pass	Pass
3♠	Pass	4♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

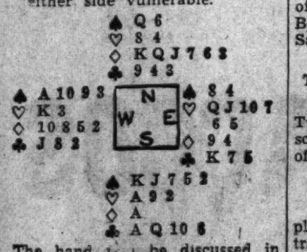
West opened the King of hearts. East knew that Dummy's club suit was solid and would afford discards for any losers South might have, for even though West might hold the King of clubs it would be trapped by a successful finesse. West was practically sure to have five hearts, so South would have two, and it was necessary that East and West cash these two tricks immediately. East therefore played the seven of hearts on West's King, encouraging a heart continuation. West dutifully played the Queen of hearts, and now East was satisfied that the heart suit had fulfilled its mission, and that a shift was indicated for the third trick, so he played the eight of hearts, refuting the encouraging inference by failing to reverse the order of his discards. West's shift at this point is obviously through Dummy's short diamonds rather than through the long club suit. On a diamond lead South could do nothing but finesse, since the Ace of spades represented a sure entry for East and West to cash their King of diamonds before the club suit could afford the two discards which would be necessary to eliminate finessing. East took the King of diamonds, and his Ace of spades represented the setting trick.

Only this exact sequence of plays could have defeated the contract, and it is interesting to note how clear East was able to make the situation to his partner.

Tomorrow's Hand.

If North is playing a contract of three notrump and West has been permitted to hold the first lead with the heart King, what return should he make, and why?

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

3 Die as Wild Airplane Dives

Youths in Evening Dress Killed After Clipping Brooklyn Roofs.

New York, Nov. 12 (U.P.).—An airplane faltered perilously across a crowded tenement district of Brooklyn at dawn today, scraping trees, a church steeple and an elevated station before it crashed in flames, killing three passengers and critically injuring the youthful pilot.

The plane had been hired by four young men in evening dress, who motored to Valley Stream Airport from a formal ball. Shortly after they took off the plane appeared to be having difficulty.

Watchers saw one wing brush the spire of the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes. Part of the wing fell into the street. The plane flew on, but the motor sputtered and it brushed an elevated station at Broadway and Eastern Parkway. Firemen watched the plane and prepared for action. A few blocks beyond, taxicab drivers scurried for cover as the plane fluttered low.

The ship crashed on the roof of a tenement house, smashed a cornice and toppled in flames into the street.

Adam Rowinski, 21, Henry Rochaboski, 19, and Louis Henry Kuhn, 19, were dead when would-be rescuers rushed up. Stanley Kayowski, 19, the pilot, was taken to a hospital.

Auto Road to Rio Predicted by Howe

Hopes Route Will Link 3 Americas in 4 Years.

With intensive work on the proposed highway from the Mexican border to the tip of South America, it would be possible within 4 years to go rolling down to Rio in the family automobile, Louis McHenry Howe, secretary to President Roosevelt, said last night. The highway will be urged by Secretary Hull at the Pan-American conference.

Howe said a considerable part of the highway is constructed through Mexico and it would be possible to extend the road to Panama within 2 years. The road from Texas to Panama would be about 3,000 miles, of which 1,000 already is built and another 1,000 requires only grading and surfacing, Howe said.

Howe also supported speedier air traffic, recalling that the Graf Zeppelin makes the trip to South America from Germany in three days, while an air trip from the United States takes about a week.

U. S. Industry Called To N. Y. Conference

St. Louis, Nov. 12 (U.P.).—A congress of American industry, at which a cross-section of the Nation's business problems will be placed under study, has been called at New York for December 7 and 8, according to an announcement today by Robert L. The administrator, who spoke here last night on the benefits of the NRA, remained in his room until after noon today.

Gibson Praises Red Cross Role

Sees Successful Drive as Aid in Improving Nation's Morale.

Success of the Red Cross roll call will do much to lift the morale of the people by reassuring them that benevolence, supported by private gifts, still plays a major role in the life of the Nation, Harvey D. Gibson, former chairman of the Emergency Unemployment Relief Committee of New York City, said yesterday.

His expression was contained in a statement he sent John Barton Payne, chairman of the American Red Cross.

"I think money given to the Red Cross certainly goes as far, if not further, perhaps, than through any other channel," Gibson said.

The District chapter announced a long list of auxiliary enrollment places at which new members will be enrolled. The list includes banks, churches, stores, and apartment houses and hotels.

Crusaders Revise Aim, To Combat Inflation

New York, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—The Crusaders, active in the campaign for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, announced today the organization would form "sound money committees" throughout the country to combat inflation.

"Inflation flies in the face of economic law as much as prohibition did in the face of moral law," said Fred G. Clark, commander-in-chief.

9 States Urged To Speed Road Job Contracts

Ickes Asks Governors to Use Up Allotments and Give Work.

Secretary Ickes yesterday made public a letter he had written to Gov. Albert L. Ritchie of Maryland and nine other governors, urging more speed in the awarding of contracts for highway works to increase employment.

Ickes directed their attention to the comparatively low percentage of road funds under contract to date in their States, although the allotment in each instance, with the exception of Georgia, was made available in July.

Maryland was allotted $3,564,527 for a share of the public works highway program, and only $834,000 in contracts has been awarded. This makes the State's percentage 23.4, which was the highest of the 10 States to whose governors Mr. Ickes wrote. Georgia, allotted $10,091,185, thus far has awarded only $165,000 in contracts, or 0.9 per cent.

Five States have awarded contracts covering more than half of their Federal highway allotments. They are New York, with 67.2 per cent of its allotment awarded; Maine, 66.2 per cent; Nebraska, 52.5 per cent; Iowa, 52.3 per cent, and Montana, 50.3 per cent.

In all States local regulations governing the expenditure of road funds and letting contracts differ. More than 1,000 road projects have been approved by the Federal authorities that have not been let to contract by State officials.

Hamilton Fish Flays Federal Housing Plans

Likens Competition With Private Industry to Soviet Communism.

The Government is experimenting with Russian Communism in its proposal for a Federal Housing Corporation, Representative Hamilton Fish, of New York, said in a statement last night. He declared ownership of apartment houses by the Federal Government would constitute State Socialism.

"The Federal Government has no more right to engage in ownership, construction and operation of apartment houses than it has in any other private business," he said. "It might just as well become the butcher, baker, candlestick maker or undertaker.

"If the policy of the Administration is to Sovietize industry, the issue had best be presented to the American people at once. What has become of the democratic principles of Thomas Jefferson, who stood for liberty of the individuals, private enterprise and the least possible interference by governmental bureaucracies?"

He said there are a number of private concerns in New York whose apartment house plans have been approved by the State board of housing but which have been prevented from going ahead by Government red tape.

"The intent and purpose of the NRA," he continued, "was to provide ample funds at a low rate of interest to aid private industry to construct modern, sanitary, low-priced apartments in congested slum districts.

"If Secretary Ickes proceeds as indicated in the public press, by incorporating a Federal housing corporation and placing the Federal Government in competition with legitimate private enterprise, it means further delay in slum clearance, additional bureaucracy and actual state Socialism. It would be interesting to know what such Democratic standard bearers as Alfred E. Smith and John W. Davis thought of this experiment of the Federal Government with Russian Communism."

2 Men Break Window, Grab Jewelry, Escape

Two men in a high-powered automobile escaped with loot of an undetermined amount early today, after smashing a plate glass window of Castleberg's Jewelry Store, 1004 F street northwest.

Stanley Brown, colored, 119 Sixteenth street northeast, told police he was standing near Eleventh and F streets, when he heard the glass shatter.

Yucatan Fliers Fail To Land at St. Louis

St. Louis, No. 12 (A.P.).—Inquiry tonight indicated Bob Buck and his companion, Robert F. Nixon, have not landed at St. Louis in their exploration flight to Yucatan.

Airport attaches pointed out flying weather was bad and conjectured the men may have landed en route.

COUGH . . . COUGH!
SNIFFLE . . . SNIFFLE!

Annoying and Dangerous To Yourself and Others

You are not very pleasant company when you have to take "time out" for a cough and a sniffle every few minutes.

Did you ever go to the theater or a bridge game and find yourself sitting next to a member of the "Coughing and Sniffling Brigade"? Rather annoying, wasn't it . . . and what's more, quite an unnecessary menace to public health.

The next time you are annoyed, whisper this sound advice into the offender's ear: "Go to the nearest drug store and get a bottle of Hall's Expectorant."

This time-tried remedy has successfully and safely relieved coughs due to colds for more than a quarter of a century. Hall's Expectorant gently soothes the irritated membranes of the bronchial tract and quickly quiets dangerous coughs.

Retail Buying Lags.

One of the most important factors in the current business situation is the sluggish movement of goods into the hands of the ultimate consumers. The spurt of industrial activity which the country experienced during the early summer has not been followed by a corresponding demand for goods in retail markets.

Retail buying was accelerated to some extent in July and August, contrary to the seasonal trend, but the increase was very moderate when compared to the gains in industrial production. In October retail sales subsided once more to the level of the corresponding month in 1932.

Moreover, the dollar value of goods moving into consumption through retail stores does not give an accurate view of the situation. The Department of Commerce recently estimated that retail prices were up 17 per cent above the level of last year. If prices are higher and the total value of goods sold is about the same as it was last year, the actual volume of goods bought by the public must be less than it was 12 months ago.

Retail sales reached a very low ebb last March, the month of the banking holiday. From March to September the index of department store sales, with the effect of seasonal fluctuations eliminated, advanced nearly 23 per cent, which is not much more than the increase in retail prices.

Pay rolls increased about 60 per cent from March to September, and employment about 34 per cent. In view of these facts and the efforts to stimulate consumer expenditures, the Department of Commerce thinks "the sales showing has been relatively unsatisfactory."

When April is used for the basis of comparison, the showing is even more unfavorable. The adjusted index for department store sales in that month is 67, compared with 69 in October.

It is impossible, of course, to determine the exact use to which the new earnings of labor are devoted. But the available facts tend to support the theory that, in the aggregate, substantial sums are being paid on debts or laid aside for future contingencies. The experience of the unemployed in the last three years tends to make them cautious when they begin earning money once more.

The desire to obtain supplies of goods before prices advanced probably was a factor in the acceleration of sales last July and August. But fear of rising prices usually affords only a temporary stimulus to buyers.

The very fact that merchants stocked up their shelves a few months ago and the public made some purchases in anticipation of higher prices tends to make buying sluggish now. Emergency buying to escape the consequences of a falling dollar or increased production costs can never afford a stable basis for business.

When accompanied by a widespread feeling of uncertainty, a rise in prices may curtail buying. The desire to buy before prices ascend still higher may be offset by lack of confidence as to the future, which tends to bring about economy in the purchase of food, clothing, automobiles, &c. It is impossible to say what part this psychological attitude has played in the present sluggish trend of retail business.

Confidence is the ultimate measure of business possibilities. Buying power may be increased, production may be accelerated and employment may be provided through the use of Government funds, and yet a background of confidence may be lacking. Uncertainty as to the future may arrest recovery when all the other factors are favorable to a business upswing. A program which ignores this vital element in the economic situation is under a most severe handicap.

A Sea in the Sahara.

France is giving attention to an interesting reclamation project that would convert part of the Sahara Desert into a sea. Reports from Paris indicate that the colonial ministry has been trying for a number of years to educate the nomad tribes of the desert as to the value of reclaiming parts of this arid region, while experts of the ministry of war have been gathering engineering data. Results of these activities now are before the colonial ministry and recommendations may be presented soon to the French Parliament.

Dwight Braman, a Boston engineer, surveyed parts of Algeria and the protectorate of Tunisia in 1928, finding that an area of approximately 47,000 square miles lies from 10 to 50 feet below the level of the Mediterranean Sea. Geologists say that the Sahara was at one time a great inland sea. It was connected with the Atlantic by a strait in the southern part of Morocco and with the Mediterranean by a broad outlet between Egypt and Italian Tripoli.

Engineering studies indicate that this large basin, which is now arid, could be flooded by waters from the Mediterranean through a channel connecting the Gulf of Gabes, Tunis, with the Choty Djerid, a lake whose surface is now 35 feet below sea level. The canal, according to Mr. Braman's study, would be about 35 miles long and could be built at a moderate cost. Water flowing through such a channel, it is said, would extend the lake over an area approximately 600 miles long and 150 miles wide.

The result expected from a flooding of this region is a tropical growth of vegetation on the littoral of the proposed new sea. It is hoped, also, that rainfall over a large area in northern Africa would be increased, thus augmenting its value for agricultural use.

European nations are interested in the proposal because the hot winds from the Sahara Desert blowing across the Mediterranean are believed to have considerable influence upon the climate of lands whose shores are washed by that sea.

Taxes and Repeal.

The effect of repeal of the eighteenth amendment upon Federal revenue can not be determined, of course, until the prospective new taxes upon liquor have been levied and the distilling industry is once more on an operating basis.

President Roosevelt will proclaim repeal of the eighteenth amendment some time in December. As a result of this action the special taxes enacted by Congress to pay the interest and provide a sinking fund for the $3,300,000,000 public works fund will be eliminated.

These levies include ½ cent per gallon on gasoline, a 5 per cent tax on dividends, a levy on corporations amounting to $1 for every $1,000 of capital stock, and an excess profits tax on corporations. The Treasury estimated that these taxes would raise $227,000,000 annually.

It is reported, also, that the Administration will seek to abolish at least part of the so-called nuisance taxes, which apply to the sale of such commodities as automobiles, confections, theater tickets, &c. A considerable part of the Government's revenue in recent months has come from miscellaneous taxes of this sort. Income taxes have become relatively less important as sources of Federal revenue. If part of the nuisance taxes should be repealed, the shift in sources of taxation would not make a large addition to the receipts of the Government.

Estimates as to how much revenue the Government can expect from liquor taxes are not much more than guesses at present. Congress is being urged to fix levies of this sort at a point where they will produce the maximum amount of revenue. But in fixing that levy State taxes must be taken into consideration. If Congress should impose a tax on liquor with a view to obtaining a maximum yield and the States without prohibition acts should establish high taxes of their own, it is obvious that the anticipated yield of the Federal impost might not be realized.

Efforts are being made to coordinate Federal and State action in this matter. It remains to be seen, however, whether Congress and the legislatures will be able to resist the temptation to establish unduly high tax rates. Such rates would be an invitation to bootleggers to continue in business. In reality liquor taxation enacted next year will be in the nature of an experiment.

In view of this fact and the heavy program of expenditures which it has authorized, Congress may be very cautious about repealing taxes that are not automatically wiped off the statute books by prohibition repeal.

Nobel Prize Winners.

Among Nobel prize winners this year in the field of physics Profs. P. A. M. Dirac and Werner Heisenberg are interesting figures.

Prof. Dirac, who now holds the chair of physics at the University of Cambridge, perhaps owes his present fame to an unemployment crisis in his youth. Graduating from college as an engineer he encountered a business depression. Out of work for more than a year, he read diligently, and the works of a noted mathematical physicist inspired him to seek renown in this field.

Some years later Prof. Dirac discovered the positron. Before his discovery scientists probing the ultimate nature of matter had broken up the atom into two ingredients—protons with positive charges of electricity, and electrons with negative ones. Prof. Dirac further decomposed the traditional atom by revealing the existence of the positron, which has the same weight as an electron but has a positive charge. The positron was discovered not by laboratory methods but with a piece of paper and formulae of higher mathematics.

When one considers that an atom tips the scales at .0000000000000000000000000-0009035 of a gram, that an electron is one eighteen-hundredth as heavy as a proton, that no one ever has seen an atom, much less an electron or proton, the use of mathematics to infer the existence of an infinitesimal particle of matter lodged in an invisible atom is as thrilling an application of deductive logic as was ever performed by the mythical Sherlock Holmes!

Prof. Dirac's inference ultimately was sustained by laboratory tests. Soon a neutron was announced—a particle of matter with no electrical charge at all. Other groups reported a dueton and alpha. And there is today a belief that there is a negatron—a mite of matter of the same weight as a proton but with a negative charge. Thus the content of the atom again is a challenging puzzle.

Prof. Heisenberg is perhaps the youngest Nobel prize winner. At the age of 25 he propounded his now celebrated "principle of indeterminacy." In its broader aspects it was a challenge to the mechanistic philosophers. These thinkers had argued that, since cause and effect ruled the world of inanimate matter, and since living cells were composed of the same chemical atoms as nonliving matter, all life had a mechanical destination. The future could be deduced from the present. There was no such thing as "free will." Everything moved in inexorable grooves and the determinism of Calvin was a scientific fact.

With pencil, pad and more mathematical formulae, Prof. Heisenberg performed what the Germans call a "gedanken" experiment—one that exists in the imagination only and can not be tested tangibly. His experiment showed that nature abhors accuracy and precision; that accuracy pushed too far turns back on itself and results in inaccuracy; that the world is filled with the unpredictable. Thus he turned the flank on the mechanistic philosophers and opened up new vistas in physical science.

Patented Plants.

It was only three years ago that the first plant was patented in the United States under the law which permits growers to seek the same protection for new varieties as that provided for mechanical and industrial inventions. Exclusive right is given by the law to one who develops a distinct plant or bloom to propagate it by grafting, cutting, budding or division, but does not prevent any one from growing the new plant from seed. Before the enactment of this law many inventors of original types of fruits and flowers saw potential profits escape them as others utilized their achievements.

Since the patenting of the first plant—an ever-blooming, climbing rose—73 applications have been approved. Roses lead in the number of patents, but the list includes various kinds of flowers as well as fruit and nut trees. The first dahlia patent was taken out by Harold L. Ickes, before he became Secretary of the Interior.

The Luther Burbank estate, which was largely instrumental in bringing about the adoption of the patent law for plants, has secured protection on three varieties of plums, a cold-resisting yellow climbing rose and an early-ripening peach. Among other patents taken out under the law are the pink flesh grapefruit, the brambleberry—a cross between a loganberry and a blackberry—colored freesias, and new varieties of cherries and apples.

The development of early and late varieties of fruit has been of benefit, not only to those who prefer fresh fruits, but to the conserving industry as well. New varieties of cherries have doubled the cherry season in some sections, with the result that the excessive rush for picking and canning has been relieved. Peaches and other fruits also have had their seasons extended.

A Constitution for China.

With the adoption of a constitution, China hopes to end the somewhat indefinite character of its present government. The first draft of this charter has just been published. It is a formidable document of more than 200 articles, which include some novel subjects not usually incorporated in the fundamental law of a nation. It holds, for instance, that "the cultivation of personality shall be equally as important as the other aims of education."

The proposed constitution provides for the election of a president and vice president for terms of six years. These officials will not be eligible for reelection. The candidate receiving the greatest number of votes is to be president and the one receiving the second largest number is to be vice president. This provision has met with opposition on the ground that it would result inevitably in putting political opponents in the same administration and probably preclude harmonious action.

The form of the new government would establish socialized democracy according to the Sun Yat-Sen principles. There are provisions for a national congress and a national affairs court which would interpret the constitution. In theory the government would be responsible to the congress.

Publication of the constitution at this time is understood to be with the idea of eliciting discussion and criticism of its provisions, many of which are expressions of altruistic aspirations rather than principles of law. However, the proposed charter of government is not to be adopted until early next year, and is scheduled to undergo several revisions which are expected to result in clarification and condensation.

From the Minneapolis Journal.

In its November issue of the magazine, nature calls attention to the way animals have recently made the front pages of the newspapers. For example, wide attention was given to a deer that was marooned on a cliff in Watkins Glen State Park in New York. Day by day, with great interest, gentle readers of the press followed the doings of the deer on the ledge. His predicament was portrayed in detail. Apparently he did not realize his danger, for he continued to munch his fodder and to enjoy life. In due time he made good his escape into the woods, while an interested public drew sighs of relief.

Why should not human beings have a fellow feeling for animals that are in distress or are puzzled by problems which perplex them? Do we not share the same sentient life?

The study of comparative anatomy has revealed striking similarities between the structures of living creatures. The paddle of a turtle, the wing of a bird, the flipper of a whale, the foreleg of a horse and the arm of a man reveal the same basic structure of bones and muscles which have merely been differentiated and adjusted to different tasks and environments.

This similarity between the animal and human worlds reaches deeper than structures. It rests in the unitary basis of all life. The great Thomas Henry Huxley wrote an essay which has become a classic of science. It deals with the "physical basis of life" which he found to be identical in plants, animals and human beings. This common stuff of life is protoplasm. It is the clay of the Potter of Life. Whether protoplasm be a simple, jelly-like substance, or nucleated and highly specialized into organs and tissues, it is the common brick with which life is built. By virtue of this, all living forms and powers are cognate.

Just because men have gone farther on the pathway of life, they should have a fellow feeling toward all lower forms. It is especially gratifying when animals in distress or trees and plants in thirst elicit special human attention.

The Once Over.

By H. I. Phillips.

"CONGESTED MOMENTS."

(In the manner of Alice Roosevelt Longworth's new book, "Crowded Hours.")

My earliest recollection of Washington is a visit to the White House to see a President whose name I think was Lincoln. Anyhow, it began with an "L." I was not impressed by him. Later, I visited the White House a second time during its occupancy by a man named Grover Cleveland or something.

• • • •

My father was always up to something and when he went to Cuba I wanted to go with him. He thought it would be rather difficult to keep track of me and I suggested that we both go on a bicycle, one of those tandems so popular at the time. He was obdurate, however, and after that I lost all interest in the old war. I never cared much for Georgie Dewey.

• • • •

When the family entered the White House I was very disappointed. The building had been allowed to run down and the banisters were so rickety it was impossible to slide down them in comfort and safety. The McKinleys had left no cigarettes or ash trays in the White House, which was most annoying.

• • • •

I was not allowed to go to England for King Eddie's coronation, as we all wished to avoid a row with Queen Victoria over the matter of precedence. I went on a tour of the Orient with the Tafts and some congressmen. Mr. Taft seemed very stiff and formal. I couldn't get him to play leapfrog on the promenade deck and once when he seemed about to unbend and play hide and seek with me in the engine rooms, Mrs. Taft interfered. A strange woman, Mrs. Taft.

• • • •

The Progressive campaign I recall distinctly. Mr. Taft became President despite father's opposition, which just goes to show. The Tafts immediately took the attitude that they had a rightful place in the White House, which I thought rather snooty.

• • • •

Then came the Wilsons. They were all right, I guess, if you like people named Wilson. The Hardings followed. They often came over to my place to play poker. Mrs. Harding used to crack the ice and yodel. Once I went to the Harding study and found him playing cards with Harry Daugherty, Jess Smith, Lillian Russell and Nicky Arnstein. They all played in their stockinged feet and wore lumberjack shirts. Harding was not a bad man, just a slouch.

• • • •

Then there came a President from Vermont or Massachusetts or some place like that. He was an authority on maple syrup. I think the name was Cooley. Anyhow, he was a terrible dancer and no fun at all when it came to a snowball frolic in the park.

Daily Talks About Books and Authors

Two Years Before the Mast.

Exactly 100 years ago there was an undergraduate at Harvard named Richard Henry Dana, jr. His father and grandfather were both distinguished graduates; the grandfather was a famous statesman and diplomat, and an Associate Justice of the Massachusetts Supreme Court. His father lived to be over 90; he had given up law for literature, was an editor of the North American Review when it was founded and published several volumes of original poems.

His son had an illness when an undergraduate, that affected his eyes, so that he was told to give up all study for a long time. Not knowing quite what to do, he shipped as a foremast hand in August, 1834, bound around the Horn for California, returning in September, 1836. He began this experience not only as a landlubber, but as a young man in rather delicate health, who had been brought up in cotton wool. He returned full of health and vigor, courageous and self-reliant.

He continued his work at Harvard, became eventually district attorney for Massachusetts and wrote important legal treatises; and also took part in many public questions. He is remembered, however, for none of these things to which he devoted a long and busy life, but only and wholly for the diary he kept while a sailor.

He kept this diary for his own diversion, but when it was published in 1840 it immediately took its place as one of the best books ever written on the sea. It is a classic, and is as thrilling today as when first published.

It is absolutely truthful; the reader himself takes the voyage with Dana, and shares all his hardships and experiences. It has a perennial charm, because of its simplicity and reality.

Tomorrow—Hamlet.

The More Game You Shoot, the More Wary the Survivors Are.

By Robert Quillen.

As a rule, the worth of a conviction can be determined by its effect on people who hold it.

If you assert that the habit of speaking truth and keeping agreements is essential to success, some cynic who hears you will answer: "That is bosh."

Shall you accept his opinion? First observe what it has done to him. Has he accumulated a fortune? Has he an income of $50,000 a year? Or $10,000?

More likely he is a bitter failure who attributes the success of other men to luck, pull or knavery. He may have failed for any one of a dozen reasons, but at least it is clear that his little regard for truth contributed to his failure by doing nothing to insure success.

Man is much like a watch. The whole value of a watch depends on its ability to tell the truth. If it isn't dependable, it is junk. The fact that it continues to tell the time serves only to magnify its worthlessness if the time it tells isn't true.

Of what use or significance is anything a man says if the listener doesn't know whether it is true or false? If a highway crossing has no signs, isn't it equipped as well as one whose numerous signs are untrue?

If a man speaks a foreign tongue that none can understand, the power of speech is worth nothing. The bark of a dog would serve him as well. Then in what particular is his speech worth more if he speaks a familiar tongue and none can believe the thing he says.

The liar hopes to profit by deceit, assuming that his lie will seem true. But people are not deceived a second time. And thus the liar defeats himself, for the truth he speaks will seem false to those he has once deceived. He has made his speech meaningless.

Some salesman may answer in his heart that he has profited often by deceiving his victim, but he can not know how much more he might have profited if he hadn't sacrificed some shred of his reputation with each sale.

Soon or late the liar pays. And if an occasional "big man" makes millions by some piece of deception, it is because truth made him a reputation to support his deceit.

Turkeys wouldn't come to the hunter's call if experience hadn't taught them the signal could be trusted.

Press Comment

Shipping Competition.

Houston Post.

It costs more to build and operate an American ship than it does a foreign ship, because the American standard of living is higher. Competition of foreign ships with American ships is unusually keen at this time. In order to meet the lower rates offered by foreign ships, and at the same time pay higher wages to officers and seamen, American shipping interests must have a governmental subsidy.

The mail contracts now amount to about $20,000,000 per year. They are instrumental in maintaining in service several hundred vessels on 44 essential trade routes. Twenty million dollars a year is not an excessive amount to pay for assuring the life of the American merchant marine.

RABBIT PLAGUE IN ANTRIM.

Rabbits have become so numerous and bold in County Antrim, Northern Ireland, that farmers have appealed to the government for help, according to the Los Angeles Times. Trapping, shooting and other methods of warfare have had no effect. Crops of oats, turnips and cabbages have been entirely consumed. Some farmers have had to sow turnip crops three times, then protect the fields with wire fences. Sergt. Connell reoorts that in Glendun he saw a large field of oats move as if alive, and when a gun was fired hundreds of rabbits fled.

Along the Potomac

With Carlisle Bargeron

NOW that repeal has been accomplished and we can't get up any discussion over the number of citizens killed by prohibition agents and the terrible nature of the bootlegger stuff, it seems that we might give an ear to the statement of Jouett Shouse the other night that the politicians are trying to take credit for the victory when they had comparatively little to do with it. Jouett undoubtedly was hitting at Jim Farley's contention that Mr. Roosevelt brought about repeal. One can understand how deeply Jouett feels on this. It is surprising that he held his statement to its moderate tone.

BARGERON.

If I had to confine an honor roll to four men I would unhesitatingly name Al Smith, Raskob, Pierre duPont, and Jouett himself. Certainly Gov. Ritchie would be on any extension of the roll, but when it comes actually to influencing the great change in our National life, I believe the four mentioned should come ahead of him.

• • • •

IT was Smith's campaign in 1928 that brought the question so sharply to the fore. From then on, though, it was Raskob, duPont and Shouse who kept the ball rolling. It was Raskob who wouldn't let the Democratic party get away from the issue, whose repeated throwing of it up to them made their 1932 convention at Chicago wetter than his fondest expectations and it was in this preliminary work as well as in the recent repeal fights in the various states that Jouett played such a prominent part.

There is no getting away from the fact, though, that the Administration, particularly Jim Farley, deserves considerable credit for our getting repeal this year.

In the first place the Administration announced that certain taxes would be lifted if repeal should be ratified and then it brought the necessary pressure to bear on those States which did not want to hold repeal elections.

Boiled down, however, I expect its real influence was confined largely to three Southern States—Alabama, Tennessee and Arkansas. There hardly is any doubt it was Administration pressure that brought the successful repeal votes in these States and with their voting wet back in July the drys realized the jig was up. Most of the other States were ready for the vote and needed only the organization, which Jouett and his associates, notably Bob Barry, supplied.

What probably galls Jouett, however, is that with the situation as it was when the present Administration came in it could hardly have done otherwise than it did. And that at Chicago it had to be pushed into the outright wet stand which it took and which came to be a very popular thing.

• • • •

THERE is no disputing the facts on this. The original Roosevelt plank at Chicago was very little different, if any, from the Republican plank. A. Mitchell Palmer drafted it at Mr. Roosevelt's direction and submitted it before the committee.

It was on this that Smith and Ritchie and other less vocal candidates, hoped to get an issue on which to stop Roosevelt. They demanded a straight-out repeal plank They planned to get the fight onto the floor and in the resultant melee to eliminate Roosevelt. They would have whipped him, too.

But the President showed then that political smartness which has since been the envy of those who opposed him, including the Republicans. When he saw that he was beaten, even in the committee, he did not let the matter go any further.

Instead, he figuratively came forward and said that the plank the committee had adopted was the plank he had wanted all the time. He embraced it as a long-lost child and left Messrs. Smith, Ritchie and the rest of them without a leg to stand on. It probably will turn out as one of the most popular things he has ever done.

Just Folks.

Plato in a Taxi.

I walked up to a taxi, and the man who drove it sat
Deep buried in a volume—and I asked: "What book is that?"
It startled him to hear me, but it also startled me
When he answered: "Jowett's Plato!
I enjoy philosophy."

He never saw me coming; never stirred until I spoke Though the thundering waves of traffic in the city round him broke
He was lost to the confusion. With a book upon his knees
He was back in ancient Athens at the feet of Socrates.

And I thought the while he drove me through the noisy city streets
Who knows the secret yearnings of the humblest man he meets.
Here's an oil-stained taxi-driver hauling people to their gates,
P'raps to drinking bouts and revels
—reading Plato while he waits!

Fate may play its tricks on mortals; chance the hands and feet
may bind,
But who has the love for wisdom still is master of his mind.
Here's a man whose pay is meager and his task seems rather drab,
But Old Plato is his comrade though he drive a taxicab.

U. S.-Russian Amity Rapped By D. C. Pastor

Rev. Allan A. Stockdale Recalls Coolidge's Soviet Stand.

"Nothing but failure and disaster can result from the recognition by the United States of a so-called form of government in which neither God nor the home have any definite part," the Rev. Allen A. Stockdale declared before a large audience yesterday morning at the First Congregational Church.

Quoting Former President Coolidge, who attended his church, he said the late President was bitterly opposed to recognition of Russia.

"To welcome the Soviet republic into the family of nations would be to violate the trust reposed in the present generation by those who, with their shed blood, made possible the free institutions of the American Republic," the minister said.

"We can not be expected to give our National sanction to every political experiment that is bobbing up in the world today. The great, saving, benevolent mission of this Christian Nation will not be fulfilled by exchanging for a few commercial dollars our belief in God, in the home, in the integrity of our womanhood."

Litvinoff Confers With President issued by Senator Hatfield (Republican), West Virginia.

Hatfield said he had hoped Litvinoff's visit was only a "red herring drawn across the trail to divert the people's minds, start an argument on Bolshevism, and thus temporarily conceal the collapse of NRA."

"It becomes apparent * * * that the establishment of a Soviet Embassy in Washington is imminent. That is to be deplored," the senator added.

More Speed Is Sought.

Hope was evidenced in some quarters that the conversations looking toward establishment of normal diplomatic relations between the United States and Soviet Russia would move more rapidly following the Sunday break.

The manner in which he holds himself in readiness to go to the White House whenever the President suggests indicates nothing serious is burdening the Commissar's mind. He appears desirous of concluding discussions as rapidly as possible.

A definite impression is gained that Litvinoff is saying "yes" to practically everything. But in order to avoid any remote possibility that relations might break down again after being established, the American negotiators wish to ask every conceivable question.

It will be recalled that Great Britain broke off relations with the Soviet Union in 1927 at the time of the famous Arcos Raid after having established recognition three years previously.

Soviet Treaty Held Air Boon

Mattern Says Recognition Would Have Averted His Siberia Trouble.

Chicago, Nov. 12 (AP).—Jimmy Mattern, who has found that vast expanse of land in the Eastern Hemisphere known as Russia a topographical barrier to two round-the-world flights, today hailed possible United States recognition of the Soviet government as a major boon to international aeronautics.

Mattern is laying the groundwork for a series of experimental and scientific flights in 1934.

Two years ago he and Bennett Griffin, off to beat the world's record for speed in encircling the globe, were halted when their plane cracked up in a Russia peat bog.

Last June 3 Jimmie started out alone and after flying deep into Russian territory dropped out of sight June 14 on a hop from Khabarovsk, Siberia, to Nome, Alaska. It was not until July 7 that the world received news that he had landed near Anadyr, forced down by lack of oil.

"If diplomatic relationship between Russia and the United States had been established then," he said, "I would not have had that trouble. I had to refuel with Russia oil, which was not suitable for the motor. With recognition, I would be able to send my own crew, supplies and repair equipment to Russia."

Grave Despoiled Of Nazi Emblem

Tomb of Goering's Wife Guarded in Stockholm.

Stockholm, Nov. 12 (AP).—Removal of a wreath, with a swastika in the center, which Reichsminister Hermann Wilhelm Goering, of Germany, had placed on the grave of his Swedish wife, was reported today.

The act was disclosed with the posting of a day and night guard of police, together with other voluntary guards, at the grave.

Taxicab Firm Official Dies in Office Fire

Seattle, Nov. 12 (AP).—T. H. Maubert, superintendent of a taxicab company here, died today from burns received when he was trapped in a fire which swept the company's headquarters. Property damage was estimated at $25,000 by investigators.

Retreat From Gold Purchasing Plan to Hold Up Bonds Seen

issued a call for a conference Friday of "all schools of thought upon monetary reform." Senator Thomas said that the meeting would be concerned especially with "planning for an adequate metallic base for a sound currency upon which the 1926 volume of deposits and credit may be safely rebuilt."

The Oklahoman contended that progress has been made by the President in revaluing gold and that the purchase policy should be pressed until the price of gold reaches $41.34 an ounce, or double its statutory value, and $8.02 more than the price set Saturday by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Says Profits Necessary.

Not until that figure is reached should any step be taken toward stabilization of the dollar, Senator Thomas argued. At the same time he asserted that "recovery can be greatly accelerated" by a recognition of the need of profits for business, adding that many business men were being "frightened by the false rumor that the Administration frowns upon legitimate profits."

Proposals for greater utilization of silver as a metallic base for currency will figure prominently in the meeting called by Senators Thomas and Smith. Invitations to attend the conference have been sent to Senators Pittman (Democrat), Nevada; Wheeler (Democrat), Montana; Borah (Republican), Idaho; Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, and Fletcher (Democrat), Florida, the leaders of the principal farm organizations and directors of the committee for the Nation, the latter group favoring inflation and particularly the gold purchase plan.

Hostile Camps Represented.

The President's conference included spokesmen for the conservative or orthodox money school of thought as well as those favoring inflation and experimentation with the country's currency system. Prof. George F. Warren, of Cornell University, author of the gold purchase plan, was the chief representative of the latter group. With him was Prof. James Harvey Rogers, of Yale, also an advocate of monetary experimentation.

Others present were Secretary of the Treasury William H. Woodin, Gov. Eugene Black, of the Federal Reserve Board; Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation; Henry Morgenthau, governor of the Farm Credit Administration; George L. Harrison, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, and Henry Bruere, recently named as the President's credit liason officer or coordinator.

Secretary Woodin, Gov. Black and Mr. Bruere are understood to be hostile to Prof. Warren's plan to raise prices by purchasing gold. For days it has been reported this trio, along with Undersecretary of the Treasury Dean Acheson and Lewis W. Douglas, director of the budget, has urged a modification of the plan on President Roosevelt.

On leaving the President's oval study, the eight conferees declined to be interviewed. It was learned that Mr. Roosevelt had suggested they keep strictly confidential what had transpired at the conference. White House attaches explained that opportunity had been taken of the leisure of a Sunday afternoon to make a routine study of the monetary and financial situation.

Facts Should Predominate.

In such a survey certain facts would dominate the discussion. The most important, for a government which must borrow large sums to keep its recovery plan going, would be the sharp decline in its bond prices during the latter part of last week. Of 15 issues traded in Saturday, seven sold below par, in large part due to the depreciation of the gold value of the dollar.

On the other hand, although the dollar, in relation to gold and foreign exchange, has rapidly depreciated during the last three weeks, there has not been a proportionate rise in domestic prices. The dollar, in terms of gold and foreign exchange, has declined in value about 6.78 per cent. Cotton prices in the same period have increased only 1.55 per cent, while wheat prices have gone up only about 1.99 per cent. The gold-purchase operation has left the security and the wholesale commodity markets in a sluggish condition.

Although it is contended there has not been sufficient time—three weeks for the gold-purchase plan and two weeks since purchases in the world market were decided on—to test the efficiency of the scheme, even those sympathetic with its trial have been surprised at the failure of prices to rise.

This failure, along with the damage done to Government credit through a recession in the price of its bonds, is believed to have chilled somewhat the enthusiasm President Roosevelt had for the Warren scheme. In the retreat from the policy which is now indicated, it is expected that first there will be a slowing up, possibly an abandonment after a few days, of gold purchases in the world market. At the same time increasing prices may be offered for newly mined domestic gold.

Senator Thomas in his statement explaining the purposes of the "money reform" meeting next Friday asserted that "all the loose talk about printing press inflation and unlimited coinage of silver has led many people far astray from the truth about our real monetary needs."

"There need be no fear of printing press inflation if soundly backed currency, adequate for our needs, is provided," he said and added:

"We must solve the problem of broadening the base of our monetary system sufficiently to avoid the disaster that came to us through a superimposed credit structure which became highly explosive because it rested on an inadequate foundation.

"In spite of opposition at home and abroad, the President is making progress in the revaluation of gold. There are many reasons for believing that our price of gold must go to double the statutory figure—that is, it must not stop short of $41.34 an ounce.

"Conservative world opinion demands a 25 per cent gold reserve behind all currencies. Doubling the price of gold, if carried through by all nations, would be equivalent to new discoveries of gold which would double the total monetary gold stocks of the world. Only on such a revaluation basis is it feasible to return to the gold standard. Returning on the old valuation would mean returning to the disastrous price level of the depression.

Wants Level of 1926.

"With gold adequately repriced, the problem of future stabilization is simplified. We must first get gold valued to where it is possible to sustain the price level of 1926. Then we must be prepared to maintain that valuation by having a metalic base for our currency sufficiently broad to bear a reasonable relationship to our volume of bank deposits and the total volume of business needed to restore employment. Our currency system must support business on a scale that will insure profits.

"Recovery can be greatly accelerated if there is recognition of the need for reasonable business profits, for that is the greatest source of taxable revenue, and is indispensable to local, State and Federal solvency. Altogether too many business men are being frightened by the false rumor that the Administration frowns upon legitimate profits.

"When gold has been adequately revalued, and our monetary base has been sanely correlated with our credit superstructure, the major implement for controlling and stabilizing the value of our money should be variation of the discount rate. It should not be necessary, after we have arrived at the desirable point for stabilization, to juggle the price of gold so often as Great Britain is doing now."

Business Men Form Sound Money Group

27 Chicago Trade Leaders Will Fight Managed Currency Policy.

Chicago, Nov. 12 (AP).—Twenty-seven Chicago business and industrial leaders today announced their indorsement of the stand taken by 12 Midwestern university professors against governmental monetary operations and formed a permanent organization—the committee on monetary policy—"to give expression and force to these views."

"The 12 Midwestern university economists have sounded a warning against the futility and the dangers of seeking a higher price level through manipulation of our monetary unit," a statement issued by the business men said.

"They regard a so-called 'managed currency' as impracticable, and express the opinion that the announcement of a prompt return to a gold standard, restoring confidence in the dollar, is a first step toward lasting economic recovery."

The association of reserve city bankers also made public a report tonight in which formation of a commission to formulate a program of sound banking legislation and reforms was advocated. This commission, the report said, could be similar to the Aldrich commission of 1907.

Bankers were urged to cooperate with the Administration in its banking program, including participation in the temporary deposit insurance plans and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation plan for strengthening capital structures through the injection of additional capital.

Hope for Better Plan.

The report described the deposit insurance plan as a temporary expedient. It offered no alternative for the insurance plan, but declared a better system can be devised for protecting depositors.

Middletown, Conn., Nov. 12 (AP). A resolution, expressing "urgent hope that the United States will promptly adopt a definite monetary policy," was dispatched to President Roosevelt tonight by President J. L. Conaughy, of Wesleyan University.

The resolution was sent on behalf of the students and faculty of the university after C. R. Berrien, Wesleyan graduate and vice president of the Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., of New York, told of the dangers of an unstabilized dollar.

Berrien spoke at a mass meeting of students and teachers Friday night.

The resolution was referred to the fraternities, and reports tonight showed a 6-to-1 majority in favor of the resolution.

Mary Ward to Speak.

Miss Mary Ward, a member of Eva Le Gallienne's civic repertory theater group, will be the speaker at the meeting of the Woman's Club of Bethesda tomororw afternoon at the clubhouse on Old Georgetown road.

Chapman, Assistant Secretary of the Interior, accepted the monument on behalf of the Federal Government.

Rev. Coughlin Accuses Banks Of Panic Plot

Ceased Purchase of Bonds to Punish President, Priest Charges.

Detroit, Nov. 12 (AP).—The Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin said in an address today that "the great banks including the Federal Reserve, suddenly ceased buying government bonds" last week to "punish" President Roosevelt "for his gold revaluation."

"Propaganda was being prepared to state that the Government was bankrupt," he continued. "But Saturday morning the bankers began to buy Government bonds. They suddenly remembered that the President hid an ace up his sleeve—the power to issue Treasury notes against bonds to the extent of $3,000,000,000.

"They were frustrated in creating an artificial panic and in discrediting our Chief Executive."

His address was broadcast over a special hookup.

Father Coughlin, dedicating his address to Armistice Day, said that "gold can never be the single standard of money as it was formerly," and attributed the change to the World War.

Attorney General's Aid to Talk.

Harold M. Stephens, Assistant Attorney General, will address the Utah Junior Democratic League at 8 o'clock tonight at the Burlington Hotel. The meeting is open to the public.

Mrs. Burrus is the former Miss Virginia Smith Cronin.

Mr. Burrus is a son of Mrs. Mary S. Burrus, of Front Royal. For the last four years he was connected with the West African Yellow Fever Commission of the Rockefeller Foundation, stationed at Legas, Nigeria. He returned on furlough in May and has spent most of the summer here.

Mr. and Mrs. Burrus were married at Aberdeen, Md., where Mr. Burrus' father, the late Rev. Henry W. Burrus, was pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, about 25 years ago.

Mr. Burrus' research in yellow fever is expected to continue about three years in Brazil.

D. C. Women in Welfare Work

Plight of the Aged Inspires Mrs. Hertzberg's Sympathy.

Under-privileged children of today, unless they are given proper guidance and care, mean a class of citizens for tomorrow that bode no good to our city, according to Mrs. Herman Hertzberg, member of the boards of the Juanita K. Nye Council House and of the Hebrew Home for the Aged. While Mrs. Hertzberg is chiefly known for her activities in Jewish welfare circles, her scope of interest is wide enough to embrace every phase of welfare work in the city.

Particularly is she interested in the activities of the Juanita K. Nye Council House, a settlement which is proving of such wonderful value in according training and right thinking to the under-privileged children of the Southwest section of the city. "I feel," she says, "that this settlement is doing a splendid piece of work in keeping these boys and girls from the street gangs and other street temptations which constantly surround the unguided child."

Turning back to the Hebrew Home for the Aged, Mrs. Hertzberg says, "I am interested in this home because it is the only way we have of providing for the old people, who, through force of circumstances, can no longer take care of themselves. I think one of the most beautiful phrases that I have read is that under a picture in the Community Chest News, which reads 'Old folks, nearing the close of life's journey, asking only a safe harbor from the terrors of the night that closes around.' This expresses exactly the feeling I have toward these helpless folks and furnishes my reason for contributing to and working for the Community Chest."

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Headache.

If the common cold is the most important disease to which man is a prey, the common headache is a close second.

Dr. Peter Bassoe says it is about the commonest disease of civilized people, which estimate requires the elimination of the common cold on some technicality or other, but otherwise stands up well. However, in order to have this statement stand, it is necessary to define migraine as meaning any form of sick headache. By sick headache is meant a headache not due to the onset of a definite disease, such as malarial fever.

Riley's definition of migraine is "periodic incapacitating headache culminating in nausea and vomiting, often preceded by visual disturbances, followed by sleep, and with a background of relatively perfect health."

This definition broadens the disease much beyond the limitation to a headache involving only one side of the head, a one time French conception. This understanding of migraine makes it include the monthly headaches of women, headaches due to constipation and biliousness, those caused by the eating of certain foods, by gorging food, and by drinking liquor, and those due to eye strain, epilepsy, and many other conditions.

Some children are subject to attacks of migraine, though this is unusual. A migrainous child is of a certain build and a certain behavior type. All such are very much in need of change in habits and in social relations—far more so than is the need for medicines. Unless cared for along this line such children become semi-invalids and some of them develop epilepsy.

Perhaps the average age at which migraine starts is 16 years. The rule is that the earliest attacks are not very severe. As time goes by the discomfort is increased, necessitating a day or two in bed. While men are rarely confined to bed by attacks, the mind is so confused that they must forego important decisions.

The rule is that at somewhere between 40 and 45 years of age attacks begin to lessen in severity and to come less frequently. At 60 most migraine sufferers pass into calmer waters and rarely if ever have attacks during the remainder of life.

The common opinion is that women are the principal sufferers. Dr. Bassoe studied the history of 270 cases of this disorder under his care at some time or other. He found that the great majority of his migrainous patients were females. However, he is disposed to agree with several other physicians that the migrainous men are as numerous as women of the class, the difference being that the men do not consult physicians so frequently.

Pottery Dog Holds Bright Desk Flower

English Bull and Scotty, or Wistful Setter to Choose.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

A potted plant in a pottery dog will serve two purposes. First of all a bit of green is a bright touch for any room during the winter months when flowers are premiums. And as for the pottery dog, all by itself, it's a knick-knack worthy of praise.

An E street store is showing several varieties in several sizes. There's a pugilistic-looking English bull, an appealing Scotty, and a wistful eyed setter in black and white and brown. Any one of these on your desk will act as an inspiration.

For those of you who are more zoologically inclined there are rose swans and golden camels, worthy bearers of bright green plants. They range in price all the way from 25 cents to $1.

That there's no use trying to cross a bridge before you get to it is true enough in some cases, but not in regard to Christmas shopping. All of us who have literally tackled our way through the swarms of customers who flock to the stores for last-minute buying know that there's nothing like advance yuletide shopping. Already there are delightful displays of Christmas cards, so why not take advantage of them now?

One downtown store is offering a box of 16 opaline parchment folder cards with colored etchings which are reproductions of famous French prints by Pye for $1. This includes your printed name. Without the name they're only 50 cents. Last year these identical cards were selling for $1.75, and it's possible that later shipments will sell for that price, too.

An interior decorator who had worked long and laboriously on an apartment was asked by his employer if the rooms were not completed. The decorator said they were, except for one thing. The owner looked about him and noted that everything was in its place, that as far as he could see it was quite pleasing and most distinctive.

"Ah, yes," said the decorator, "but there is no distinctive odor. Just as a room is incomplete without color, it is incomplete without a suggestion of fragrance. For this room I think we must have cedar, or pine perhaps."

It was a new idea to the owner, just as it is to most of us. But the shops are ready. A large store on G street has pine pillows which are not only attractive to look at, but carry with them a scent of Southern forests. The outside covers of these button on so that you can replace them at random to suit the general color scheme of your room.

When Christmas vacation comes and the middies board the train for Washington, daughter's phone will begin to do more than its daily dozen, and you must prepare for open house from early morn till late at night. There'll be dances, dinners and occasionally a few quiet evenings of bridge. A downtown store is ready for this with some attractive playing cards that are most appropriate. There's a blue deck and a red deck with silhouettes of three merry sailors. The price is 50 cents for the pair.

It isn't the decorations alone which make the cards a good buy, for the gilt edges and pliable quality of the material warrant durability. You may buy them in four other designs if you prefer.

From the mountains of North Carolina to a Washington department store come the handmade hook rugs which are so appropriate for our early American furniture. There are six scatter sizes ranging from 2 by 3 feet to 4 by 7, and larger ones up to 9 by 12.

Soft colors in floral designs against a beige background serve to make one set the ideal neutral rug for any room. A more startling bluish green with vivid flowers is striking.

A New York house was featuring these rugs last month for $99.50 for the large size. The Washington store is selling them for $69.50.

Velveteen sweaters are flattering, warm and smart. The price? Very reasonable! They come in a rich golden brown, green and blue, with ribbed wool bands, cuffs and crew necks. Combine one of these with the right skirt and you have an outfit which defies competition in sport costumes.

If anything is more rare than a day in June it's a real bargain in gloves. But we know where there is one! Capeskin gloves for $1.98 might sound scarcely plausible, but when you see these, and feel their quality and note the several kinds of interesting cuffs, you'll know that here's a buy worthy a buyer. They come in black, plain or with white trimmings, brown and several shades of gray.

One certain brown pair were particularly interesting in their mod-ish gauntlet way with velveteen cuffs.

Call Ruth Anne Davis, of The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 105, for further information. Or write, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope.

Solution.

Once I brought a glass of fearless wine
To you to sip.
I saw the molten scarlet of it line
Your moistened lip.

Now I have no wine to bring, and you
Will smile and pass
Beyond my life—there's nothing left to do

Ticking Stylish For Season's Cruise Clothes

Mattress Material Is Used for Evening as Well as Sports.

(Associated Press.)

Mattress ticking is going to be popular this season for resort and cruise clothes.

This was made evident at the preview of Elizabeth Hawes' resort collection, which stresses the "pinwheel" silhouette.

There was an evening dress in green, tan and pink mattress ticking—floor length, with a high front neckline and a narrow straight-back decolletage down to the belt, which was pink suede. It was extremely smart.

A mattress ticking jacket was with a white gabardine skirt and a short-sleeved blouse of dark silk. Accessories of ticking also were shown—a hat, scarf and purse trimmed in red leather.

The resort collection is simple in line, and nine-tenth of it is washable. There are brilliant colors—bali turquoises and fuscias, for example, combined as the modern painters use them.

A "pinwheel" silhouette is expressed in circular collars, cuffs, skirts and jackets. There is sponsored, too, a "pinwheel" scarf, usually of a brilliant contrasting color.

Thrown about the neck, this scarf transforms a low square neckline into a high one.

The low natural waistline is seen in the resort collections. Skirts are 10 or 11 inches from the floor. Sleeves are elbow-length or missing entirely.

Tennis tunics, kilts and "skirt-shorts" are being shown in place of shorts, which appeared last year at the women's nationals.

Suede crepe and grosgrain crepe, which are soft-finished silks; wide stripe tie silk, colored duck and spectrum cotton—a Roman-stripe, noncrushable cotton—are among the new fabrics.

Straw buttons are shown, and star and crescent clips.

One printed linen cruise frock has red stars and blue anchors on a white ground. Another has lavender starfish printed on a sea-blue ground.

Checked silk gingham will be popular for evening gowns. One was seen yesterday—its "pinwheel" skirt made with an above-the-knee flounce—floor-length, of course. It had a low-cut, pointed back, two tiny straps over each shoulder and a great, emerald silk sash.

Summer Santa Fun, Says Camp Head

She Coaxed the Old Fellow Out Last July.

The hum of Christmas is already in the air. Washington children are beginning to get big-eyed about the anticipated arrival of Santa Claus. But for some of them it is going to be the second Christmas they have had this year.

Miss Fannie Holt, the only one who ever coaxed Santa away from the Pole in the summer, time, is in this city at present to visit the Corcoran Art Gallery and stock up on ideas for her summer camp in the mountains of North Carolina.

It was at the camp, on a blazing hot afternoon last July, she revealed, that the apparition of Santa Claus, whiskers and all, stepped out from behind a curtain of green foliage. He was greeted by the delighted giggles and shouts of the scantily clad children. For each little girl at camp Keystone Camp there was a gift. There was a tree, brilliantly decorated, a Yule-tide feast—everything but snow.

"There's no reason for having Christmas in July," explained Miss Holt, "except that it's fun. And the girls loved it!"

Camp Keystone is the oldest of the Southern camps, having been under Miss Holt's supervision for 18 years.

Dress Winter Garden Plot In Evergreens

And You'll Be All Ready Add Christmas Lights.

No garden is complete without some evergreens. There is a warmth about the foliage that makes a homecoming more cheery, a dignity in the dark arms reaching to the sky that can not be substituted no matter how lovely your flowers may be. Especially in the winter time, evergreens keep a sleeping garden from looking drab and forlorn.

Put on a coat and take a stroll in front of your house. Are the evergreens you have growing properly? Are some of them crowded? Do you need another here—or there? With the use of a little imagination and some wise transplanting your whole garden set-up can be enormously improved.

Evergreens that grow too close to one another lose their shape as the sides die. Each should have plenty of room to spread and be beautiful.

Consult a professional gardener about transplanting. It is a delicate and difficult operation, and must be authoritatively done, otherwise you may lose the trees you have. The amateur is wise to throw his evergreen problem into the hands of a professional, both as to the arranging and transplatning of the trees.

The needles under the trees should not be raked up, but left to rot on the ground. Compost of oak leaves is helpful to most kinds of evergreens.

Little pruning is needed for the evergreens. Dead or broken limbs should be removed. It is seldom desirable to trim the lower branches of firs, because part of their beauty lies in the low branches resting on the ground.

Get your trees ready for Christmas. The custom of decorating outside trees with strings of colored lights is a lovely one, and is most effective on a lovely tree.

Midnight Blue Vies With Black For Formality

Evening Gowns Find Blue and Dull Green Alluring.

Black has held the evening mode's throne quite long enough for this season. Midnight blue and a dull dark green are so firm in that opinion that they are doing all in their power to crowd this perennial favorite from its exalted position. They are making noticeable headway among those women who, in the past, have always insisted upon a black evening gown, no matter what new color was introduced.

White, for evening wear, is faring even worse than black. It has receded so far into the background that one seldom sees it on the fashionable woman at formal affairs.

Gloriously vivid colors tempt the creature with clear, decisive style-sense. If a gown is poorly cut, a bright color emphasizes the fact. But if the lines are good, they may be carried out in brilliant shades to advantage.

Sparkling greens, lively greys and gleaming bronzes are at their best in shimmering satin. The newest taffetas are in purple and fuchsia shades, while dull crapes run the gamut of the color scale from blackberry to flame.

Linked with the new Chinese designs are a group of colors designated as Chinese. This group includes lacquer and flamingo red, jade green, porcelain blue, dull gold, pale rose pink, flashing purple and turquoise.

My Smelling Salts, Josiah, Methinks I Shall Swoon!

It Is in Fact, the Stylish Thing to Do, Says Doctor.

Fainting and corsets have returned as feminine vogues.

Dr. Oren Moore, veteran physician, of Charlotte, N. C., who specializes in practice among women, reports a revival of the tendency to swoon.

"Time was when women were known for their long skirts, their uncompromising stays and their ability to faint on any and all occasions," said he.

"But styles changed during and after the World War, and for something like 15 years American women went faintless, stayless and almost skirtless.

"About 1929 the long skirt came back, after a while the corset followed, and now women are again fainting, having hysterics and malingering—which, of course, means pretending illness."

How does he account for all this?

"Psychic influences," he chuckled. "They have again assumed the clothes of the weaker sex and along with them has come a subconscious tendency to act the part."

Does Mr. Moore believe the corsets have anything to do with the fainting?

"Oh, no, no!" was his quick reply. "The corset, as it is known today is a flimsy garment of elastic and not at all the massive whalebone and steel affair formerly worn."

All in all, he believes the fainting and the corsets and the long skirts are beneficial as regards psychic effects.

"You see, the affection by women of mannish dress and attitude resulted in a being belonging neither to the masculine nor the feminine gender. She belongd to the neuter gender," the physician asserted.

Better health accompanies femininity and a happier state of affairs generally, provided these emotional disturbances—hysteria, fainting and so forth—are not allowed to get out of hand.

"And if it means nothing else, it ought to whoop up the the smelling salts business."

Famous Women On Caller List Of Lillian Wald

Mrs. Roosevelt, Jane Addams and Many Others Close Friends.

Westport, Conn., Nov. 12.—There is one woman in America whose daily list of callers contains so many important names that it might well be compiled at the end of a year and given a title: "A Who's Who of American Womanhood."

The one who attracts this steady stream of visitors is Miss Lillian D. Wald, social worker and founder of the Henry Street Settlement in New York City.

First ladies of two lands, wives, mothers and daughters of prominent men, and women famous in their own rights are the guests of Miss Wald at her great, yellow house on the hill overlooking a little pond.

During the summer, says the Associated Press, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of the President, drove here from Hyde Park, N. Y., for dinner with Miss Wald. With her came Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr., wife of the Governor of the Federal Farm Credit Administration.

They found Jane Addams, Chicago settlement worker, and Dr. Alice MacDonald, of Harvard, already here. They had been staying with Miss Wald for several days.

More recently Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President, motored from Hyde Park for luncheon with Miss Wald.

While Miss Wald was recovering last spring from a long illness, a visitor at her bedside was Ishbel MacDonald, daughter of the British Prime Minister. Miss MacDonald left the whirl of New York society and Washington official circles for a quiet visit with her old friend.

What these famous women talk about over the dinner table or in their strolls about Miss Wald's estate is not disclosed.

"Oh, the usual thing," they tell you at the house, "just what any woman would talk about."

Woman's Democratic Club Greets New Members

Fine Old Mansion Scene of Welcome to Cabinet Ladies.

In the wide-paneled, many-windowed drawing room and lounge and immense oak-paneled dining room of the fine old mansion near Dupont Circle which houses the Woman's National Democratic Club, a series of teas are being held this winter which are among the most delightful and friendly functions of the Capital.

Mrs. Wallace.

Miss Funk.

Mrs. Hull.

They are gestures of welcome on the part of resident women Democrats to the many new members brought to Washington by the change of administration, and the ladies of the Cabinet are the guests of honor.

Mrs. Harold L. Ickes, wife of the Secretary of the Interior, and herself for many years a member of the Illinois State Legislature, will head the receiving line next Saturday afternoon. Last Saturday Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, jr., was the guest of honor, and the week before members had the opportunity of meeting Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, wife of the Secretary of Commerce.

The club itself has an interesting history. The present is its tenth season. It was in the late summer of 1922 that plans for a Woman's National Democratic Club were first discussed by a group of women who felt the need for a gathering place for Democrats in the National Capital.

Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, who had been called to Washington by the Democratic national committee to take charge of the organization and activities of the Democratic women of the country, was one of the moving spirits in its founding. Others were Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Mrs. Stephen Bonsal, Mrs. Blair Banister, Mrs. J. C. Cantrill and Mrs. Antoinette Funk. Mrs. Cordell Hull was also a member of the committee which worked and planned to bring the club into existence.

The club first opened its doors in January, 1924, at a charming old house at 820 Connecticut avenue, and this "Democratic oasis in the Republican wilderness," as Mrs. Blair once termed it, became a popular gathering place.

By the autumn of 1927 the club had grown to such an extent, and the numbers who came to its forum luncheons and other events was so large, that it became impossible to accommodate them. Larger quarters were decided upon and a new home was bought at 1526 New Hampshire avenue.

Planned as a rallying point where Democrats might meet each other, discuss the issues and problems confronting the citizenship of the country, and acquire information about legislative and official movements of interest, the club has always been a very active one. Its weekly forum luncheon and dinners are famous, for to them have come as speakers at some time or other most of the men and women prominent in the affairs of the day. It is probably unique, too, in its associate membership of men, and has an attractive lounge on the ground floor for the use of its male members. Mr. Daniel C. Roper, the present Secretary of Commerce; Mr. Bernard Baruch, Mr. William F. Kenny and Gov. Herbert H. Lehman of New York are among its life members, and Mr. Huston Thompson, Mr. Frank Bright, Mr. Edward Keating and other prominent men are among its members and frequently attend the club meetings.

Mrs. Roper.

Mrs. Herrick.

Mrs. Campbell.

The men's lounge is a veritable gallery of autographed photographs of well-known Democrats, and the walls of the dining room are hung with a famous collection of cartoons. An autographed etching of President Wilson was presented by Mrs. Wilson, who is also a life member.

Mrs. Charles S. Hamlin, wife of Gov. Hamlin of the Federal Reserve Board, is the club's president, succeeding Mrs. Samuel Herrick. Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, one of its founders, was the first president, followed by Mrs. Andrieus A. Jones, wife of the former Senator from New Mexico. She was succeeded by Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, but that busy lady, owing to the necessity of her maintaining her residence in Joplin, Mo., was only able to serve one term, and Mrs. Harriman again became president until 1931, when Mrs. Samuel Herrick succeeded her.

Mrs. Blair.

Mrs. Banister.

Mrs. Harriman.

Bowers on Committee

Bristol, Va., Nov. 10 (Spl.).—Superintendent Roy B. Bowers, of the Bristol, Va., public schools, has been appointed on a committee on a National outlook on education, it was announced at Washington headquarters of the department of superintendence of the National Education Association by President Paul C. Stetson. The committee will meet and report at the Cleveland convention of the department of superintendence next February.

Mrs. Hugo Rennert, Spanish Beauty of the Siren Type, Loves Jewels, Is Careful of Diet, Models Her Gowns.

Feminine beauty can be classified under 12 master types, and each has its own special needs in beauty culture. Every woman should know her type and then live up to it.

This is the seventh of a series of articles telling the day-by-day beauty care peculiar to each type. Today's interview is with a Washington matron designated by experts as the Siren, or complete woman.

By Elizabeth Young.

Enchantingly forthright as a child in manner.

Mysterious as the Mona Lisa in appearance.

Neither self-consciousness nor vanity—but only objective interest in the subject—dwelt in the great, half-veiled dark eyes of Mrs. Hugo Rennert, olive-skinned Spanish beauty, as she told the casual care she gives that loveliness which caused national authorities to classify her as the Siren type of beauty—the complete woman, whose enigmatic charm and physical perfection win the approval of as many women as men.

"Never a day passes but I eat carrots," she said, with engaging simplicity. "Sometimes raw, in salad; sometimes cooked. I am not cranky about anything but that."

"My mother was a most beautiful woman. She had a beautiful skin. When I was a little girl, I once heard her say that carrots in one's diet made one beautiful, and as long as I can remember, I have eaten and loved them."

Skin Like a Tea Rose.

Whether or not the carrots are responsible, or a natural heritage from that beautiful remembered mother, Mrs. Rennert's skin has the quality of a golden tea rose, gleaming, flawless, seemingly poreless.

Certainly there is nothing complicated in her care of it.

"I have never owned a jar of cream in my life, nor used a speck on my face," Mrs. Rennert continued, in her charming way. "I wash my face thoroughly at least twice a day with soap and water. That is all.

"My make-up? A touch of powdered rouge, some lipstick—as you see—and rachel powder. I just bought another box today." She picked up a small wrapped package from the coffee table at her elbow.

Her rouge gives a barely perceptible rosy underglow to her topaz skin, and her lipstick is a deep true red. She does not vary her make-up for daytime or evening.

Although when interviewed, she was wearing a long sleeved Chinese red cloth street dress made with an ascot scarf tied under her chin, Mrs. Rennert said she seldom chooses red for daytime. Her favorite colors for day are black, brown and navy blue—in tailored one-piece dresses and top coats. She does not care for the two-piece ensembles so much favored by smart women today.

Mrs. Rennert has never been satisfied with other than complete individuality in the fit and fashion of her evening gowns. They are usually made of black velvet in winter and heavy white crepe in summer. Her white evening grownes, her friends say—though it must be explained in fairness to Mrs. Rennert that she did not vouchsafe such a statement—dazzlingly offset her beautiful skin, which tans to a gorgeous cafe-au-lait shade in summer.

Made Her Clothes.

In other years, before her time was so much taken up with her manifold duties as wife, mother and extremely popular society matron, Mrs. Rennert expressed her flair for individuality in evening attire by making her own clothes. She is a talented artist and an endlessly patient and ardently enthusiastic needlewoman, gifts which were nurtured during her convent school days in Spain.

Today, she wears the creations of smart modistes for evening, after she has made them over!

She loves expensive furs and precious stones, the former in lavish abundance; the latter in moderation.

"I have been spoiled in the matter of jewels, through having been privileged to wear the beautiful things which are my mother's-in-law: her beautiful diamonds, emeralds and sapphires," Mrs. Rennert explained.

"Of course, I wear them only for evening. In the day-time, I often wear the so-called sports jewelry, like this." She indicated an enormous onyx ring in gleaming intricate setting, and massive bone bracelet, which adorned a slender tanned right hand and wrist. "I never wear necklaces for daytime."

Cross fox is Mrs. Rennert's favorite fur, and she exhibited a luxurious scarf, a recent gift from her husband, as one of her most cherished possessions.

Mrs. Rennert accords to her satin-smooth black hair, which she wears parted on the right side and drawn simply back to a roll along the nape of her neck, the same casual care she gives her skin.

Never Goes to Hairdresser.

"I have so much hair, it is so thick, I have to keep it thinned," she lamented. "I brush it every night, of course, but not so many strokes—oh! never so much as 100 strokes. I never go near a hair dresser. I never have it waved. I wash it myself, once a week, and wear it perfectly straight."

Averring that she is lazy, Mrs. Rennert said she takes no symtematic exercise, in maintaining her average weight of 128 pounds. She is 5 feet 5½ inches tall, and gracefully slender.

"I walk a little, but I hate to walk." A laugh curved her exquisitely modeled mouth, with its lovely, full underlip. "I am so lazy. I do not ride horseback. I do not play golf. I have never been in the ocean. That is because of my pleurisy." Her laughter bubbled again.

"I have always had perfect health, except that when I was a child I had an attack of pleurisy, and from that time, I have excused myself from many exertions on the plea of my pleurisy."

Avowedly unsymtematic in the matter of exercise and sleep, Mrs. Rennert nevertheless exercises more care in the matter of diet.

After declaring she required very little sleep, and negating the declaration by admitting she usually sleeps as many as eight hours out of each 24, and that she followed the Spanish custom of staying up until early morning hours, Mrs. Rennert said:

"I never eat starches, except for an occasional dessert. I can't refuse cherry pie! I eat a very light breakfast, maybe two cups of coffee and orange juice, and recently I have been trying to choke down a piece of toast.

"I eat a good-size luncheon: Cold meats, or fish, and salad. My dinner includes the usual courses, soup, meat, a couple of green vegetables, but no potatoes, and fruits. I never touch milk. I detest milk."

Likes Bridge and Dancing.

Bridge and dancing are Mrs. Rennert's favorite diversions.

She enjoys wearing perfumes, dividing her allegiance between the alluring scents of "Crepe de Chine" and Patou's "Moment Supreme," one of which she very lightly applies to earlobes, eyebrows and lips as the finishing touch to every toilet.

Mrs. Rennert was formerly Maria Theresa S. Domenach de Baux, born at Cartagena on the Mediterranean—"the beautiful Mediterranean; the most beautiful spot in the world," she sighed. "I would love to be there again."

She met her husband in Madrid, and was married there.

"I have become awfully Americanized," she glowed. "Like so many American women, I have come to think work in the business world is the best diversion of all! It is such fun to be doing something."

And if she does not do something in the business world, it will not be from lack of opportunity. Mrs. Rennert, on the day of the interview, was offered a job in an exclusive Connecticut avenue shop.

No End of Books

Juicy Governmental Rackets Which Line Private Pockets Are Described by Raymond Clapper, Head of the United Press Bureau Here.

In a thousand ways, from Baron Munchausen expense accounts to swollen subsidies the taxpayer's money filters into private pockets high and low in shameless grafting, says Raymond Clapper in his volume just issued by L. C. Page Co., Boston—"Racketeering in Washington." To it Henry Ford has contributed a preface, in which he remarks: "There are optimistic men, like Mr. Clapper, who believe that telling the truth about these things may lead to remedial public action." Whatever the result, Mr. Clapper gives a clear and outspoken account of the facts. No wool has been pulled over his eyes, for he is the head of the United Press Bureau here.

President Roosevelt received a specially bound copy of Ernest K. Lindley's "The Roosevelt Revolution" Friday afternoon from the hands of Harold Guinzberg, president of the Viking Press. The book is issued today by Viking.

The Government has banned "Service Wife," an anonymous novel recently published by Macaulay, from all official ship libraries and naval stations.

"Every nouveau riche Jewish family today contributes one of its members to the ranks of artistic youth, as an author or painter, composer or conductor—truly a nuisance." So writes the great German-Jew, Jacob Wassermann, in his spiritual biography just published by Coward-McCann, "My Life as German and Jew."

No Pictures for Whitman.

LEAVES OF GRASS. By Walt Whitman. A new edition; introduction by Sherwood Anderson; illustrated by Charles Cullen. Crowell, $3.50.

Considerate booksellers will furnish with each copy of this edition one razor blade—the same to be held in the right hand and used with determination, to cut out the illustrations.

For here is Whitman's great work solidly bound and excellently printed, in a format any one would be delighted to own, utterly and abysmally and inexcusably spoiled by the 20 full-page drawings. I looked at them and shuddered. I showed them to friends, who promptly squealed with everything else in the world but admiration. The illustrations are, in one word, bad.

If a sample could be reproduced here, you would be in no doubt. They are pen drawings, using chunks of black and mechanical dots like the picture of a plow in a mail order house catalogue, hard and unimaginative lines such as were taught to commercial artists in Kalamazoo in the 1910s, the whole composition often divided into triangular segments of scenes in the worst pseudo-modernistic manner of John Vassos. They are incoherent, bald and without feeling. And they no more illustrate Whitman than Beardsley illustrates Homer, a comparison which lends grace I do not intend.

Sherwood Anderson's slight but rhapsodically sincere preface pleads for a return to the love of fellowship and the broad land. Over his nostalgic words, over the ineptitudes of Mr. Cullen, the long lines of Whitman sing full-voiced, full-blooded and imperturbable.

Screen Door Hooks Fasten Football Togs

Or, If You Prefer Shoe-Hook Eyelets Will Defy the Wind.

(Associated Press.)

Both snappiness and warmth are seen in football costumes this fall, if the spectator has used wisdom when shopping.

With wool used in so many ways to make up unusual fabrics and with the popularity of turtle neck sweaters and twin sweater sets, a cold afternoon drive to or from the stadium should be impossible.

The skirts with the sweaters may be plaid wool, velour or flannel. But whatever the material the effect must be gay.

The plaid and checked wool sometimes is alternated with outfits of plaid velveteen.

With two-pieced wool frocks of a little less sporty style—to be worn if an important lunch precedes the game—the three-quarters coat is usually worn, for the skirt can match the coat and look like an ensemble.

A new wrinkle in blouses is screen door hooks for fastening the blouse all the way up the front.

And still another new idea is shoe-hook eyelets for the same purpose.

Some preferred color combinations for blouses and skirts—other than college colors themselves—are hunter's green and black, and brown and beige.

If an informal party, or a dance at a roadside inn is to follow the game, there is the finely woven wool—if warmth must be a factor—or silks that are rough or a bit heavy, such as tree bark or quilted satin.

What Today Means

"Scorpio."

If November 13 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 to 10:10 a. m., from 2 to 3 p. m. and from 6:35 to 7:35 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 12:15 p. m. and from 3:45 to 5:45 p. m.

Influences operating on this date will tend to make you feel "puffed up" over some accomplishment of recent date; take care not to give way to this feeling lest something serve to puncture your egotism. Children will "get wise" to things most readily on this day. Avoid pulling the wool over their eyes, lest you fail and are scoffed.

The child born on this November 13 will probably take little pride in his personal appearance. He will take great pains with his school work and will be neat in preparing any written tasks. Inclined to be curt toward strangers and tempted to ignore their well-meaning and often wisely given advice.

If November 13 is the date of your birth, your primary aim in life is to establish yourself on a firm material basis. You want first of all money, not a great deal, but enough so that you can give to your dear ones all that they may ask and so that you will not have to worry or fear for the future. Till you can sit back and see this stage reached, you will not feel satisfied with yourself nor will you feel that you have succeeded. In your march towards this goal, you will let nothing impede your progress nor delay you for a moment. You will ignore many of the niceties of life, you will be harsh in your treatment of people and you will hardly pause to pass a friendly greeting or to do a good deed. "Time enough for that after I have established myself," will no doubt be your attitude. You must take care that the fine things in your character are not smothered in this process, so that when the day of your retirement comes you will have nothing but your pile of gold.

Born on November 13, you will choose a mate as much for his or her money and position in the community as for the love that you have for him or her. Your marriage will not be unusually successful and there would seem to be grave possibilities of its "going on the rocks." It is more than possible that late in life you will carry out many philanthropic schemes and thus establish yourself as one of the benefactors of mankind. You will know well how to spend our money.

Successful people born on November 13:

Lewis D. Brandeis, jurist.
Edwin Booth, tragedian.
Alfred M. Mayer, physicist.
John Drew, actor.
Thomas W. Hall ("Tom Hall)," author.

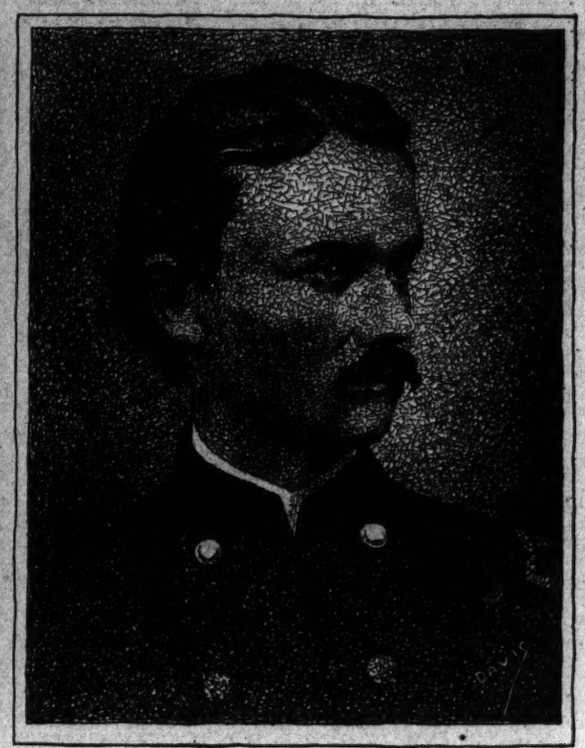
Half Forgotten Romances of American History

Clara Louisa Stone—John Hay



By Elisabeth Poe.

A half-forgotten romance of American history in which one of the participants was prominent in Washington from the days of Abraham Lincoln to those of Theodore Roosevelt is that of John Hay and his wife, Clara Louisa Stone. Where a smart apartment hotel now shelters the exclusive of the National Capital once was the stately mansion of the Hays, just across the street from "old St. John's," the Church of the Presidents.

Social history of the last quarter of the nineteenth century in Washington was made in this spacious home, the rendezvous of officialdom, literati and the nationally prominent of that time. It was one of the great houses of the city and it is rather too bad that the onward flow of progress has swept this landmark out of existence.

But to shine in society was not the ideal of either Mr. or Mrs. John Hay. To preserve the traditions and culture of the Capital was their aim and they left their impress on Washington life for all time. Therefore their romance is of abiding interest to all who care for the development of this city in any generation, past or present.

The epitome of what John Hay found in romance is contained in that poem of his which, while not the most popular of his verse, possesses the greatest amount of poetic merit, his "Stirrup Cup." The average man or woman remembers his "Jim Bludso" or "Little Breeches" and the Pike County Ballads. But those who wish to know what love had meant in the life of this statesman, diplomat, author, poet and loyal-hearted American find the solution in these lines:

The Stirrup Cup.

My short and happy day is done,
The long and dreary night comes on:
And at my door the Pale Horse stands,
To carry me to unknown lands.

His whinny shrill, his pawing hoof,
Sound dreadful as a gathering storm;
And I must leave this sheltering roof,
And joys of life so soft and warm.

Tender and warm the joys of life—
Good friends, the faithful and the true;
My rosy children and my wife,
So sweet to kiss, so fair to view.

So sweet to kiss, so fair to view—
The night comes down the lights burn blue;
And at my door the Pale Horse stands,
To bear me forth to unknown lands.

The man who wrote those words had learned the meaning of sadness by the side of that son of melancholy, Abraham Lincoln. But he knew the lasting joys of a true wife from Clara Louisa Stone, "so sweet to kiss, so fair to view."

Back of John Hay stood the sturdy folk of pioneer New England, transplanted to the Midwest to extend the boundaries of freedom beyond the Eastern coast line. From his mother's side—she was a Miss Helen Leonard, daughter of a Baptist minister, the heritage had included a tendency toward literature which later was to flower in John Hay's poetry and prose.

His father, Dr. Charles Hay, had given to him a taste for science and the daring of the soldier of fortune who, like the true pioneer he was, had seen over the hills and far away of his native Pennsylvania. Indiana had attracted him and he hung out his doctor's shingle in Salem, where still not content with the ordinary successes of the professional in the early part of the nineteenth century, Dr. Hay had branched into the newspaper business between the writing of prescriptions.

Into the home of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Hay, of Salem, on October 12, 1838, was born John, their third son. When John was only 4 years old the family moved to Warsaw, not far away from Salem. The new home had one enormous advantage, it was on the banks of the Mississippi. John's first poetic impulses centered around the Father of Waters.

It was a happy home, a comfortable one, with books at hand, and education one of the ideals of the household. Part of his school days were passed in Pike County, a fact which later was to give the title of his most popular series of poems. Then came a course in the Illinois State University at Springfield, followed by matriculation at Brown University, Providence, R. I. At Brown, Hay did well, writing the class poem. After college, Hay decided to become a poet. This determination was partly due, no doubt, to the fact that he had met in Providence, Mrs. Sarah Helen Whitman—the Helen of a thousand dreams in Edgar Allen Poe's life story.

So he began the toilsome march up Parnassus, at the same time studying law. Then Abraham Lincoln came into his life. To Hay's poetic nature such a contact could not be an idle thing. With the insight of his art, he grasped the greatness of the man he served.

When this man of destiny went to Washington, Hay accompanied him, not as his secretary, as so many have thought, but first as clerk in the Pension Office, detailed to the White House, and then as Major in 1834, something equivalent to military aid. Soon Hay was signing himself as "Assistant Secretary to the President" and then "one of the Secretaries to the President." He became as close to Lincoln as a son. He was a warm personal friend of the President's oldest son, Robert T. Lincoln.

The presence of these young men did a great deal to dispel the gloom about the White House during the war. Gay, quick at repartee and with his talent for versifying, Hay became something of a court jester. He was popular in Washington society. One month before Lincoln was killed Hay had begun his diplomatic career as Secretary of the American Legation in Paris.

About five years passed in this diplomatic service. Then Hay returned to the United States and took up literature and newspaper work seriously as a profession.

Up to now romance had more or less passed him by, so far as any serious attachment was concerned. But Cupid was lying in wait for the brilliant young diplomat and poet.

One night at an evening party at the home of A. B. Stone, John Hay met Clara Louisa Stone for the first time.

By 1873, Hay had become engaged to Miss Stone. She was the daughter of Amasa Stone, a first citizen of Cleveland, Ohio, well educated and amiable of disposition. Writing to a friend a few days after his engagement had become an assured fact, Hay declared of his fiancee: "She is a very estimable young person, large, handsome and good. I never found life worth while before."

It was an ideal marriage just as it had been an ideal romance. While she was not a literary woman, she was sympathetic with his desires in that direction. When they went to Cleveland, where Hay became a business man by day under the tutelage of his father-in-law, by night he followed literature.

Mr. Stone gave them a handsome home in Cleveland and there for eleven years they lived happily, made friends and became important folk in that Midwestern town. The year 1883 found them in Washington again, with Hay taking a new interest in politics and making new friends, among them Henry Adams and Cecil Spring Rice, afterwards representing Great Britain in the United States at the time of the opening of the World War.

McKinley sent Hay to London as our ambassador, a post which with Mrs. Hay's assistance he filled satisfactorily from the social as well as diplomatic point of view. Then came Hay's appointment as Secretary of State. He continued in the same office under Roosevelt. Something of what Theodore Roosevelt felt for John Hay may be seen in this letter which he sent to him on the eve of his inauguration in 1905 in acknowledgement of the gift of a ring in which had been mounted some of Abraham Lincoln's hair.

It read as follows:

"Dear John: Surely no other President, on the eve of his inauguration, has ever received such a gift from such a friend. I am wearing the ring now; I shall think of it and you as I take the oath tomorrow.

"I wonder if you have any idea what your strength and wisdom and sympathy, what the guidance you have given me and the mere delight in your companionship, have meant to me in these three and a half years."

But life was running out its golden sands for John Hay. Clara Louisa Hay, perhaps was the first to know that the tired heart of the author and diplomat was giving out, and that other ills had seized upon him. It was 1905 and to her faithful heart had come that most desperate of knowledge, that one she loved so dearly might soon leave her. It was hard to get him to rest, to give up the business of state and have the quiet he so needed.

His pale horse was near, indeed. On July 1, he bore John Hay to those unknown lands of which he had written so poignantly. To Clara Louisa Hay it must have seemed but a short while since their romance had begun. Honors, glory, as men count glory, fortune and literary success had come to him. But to her he was still the young poet who had captured her heart with his tales of Lincoln, his Pike County Ballads. The night of July 5, 1905, she wrote into her diary of his funeral:

"I can not yet realize what has happened. I am paralyzed and numb. I suppose I will wake up some day and will know."

In those words are the poignant hope of the human heart that "has truly loved and never forgets." And it was true in this half-forgotten romance of American history.

Flustered Bridegroom.

Bristol, Va., Nov. 12 (Spl.).—He may or may not have been slightly agitated, but when Dr. William M. Gammon, well-known local physician, recently filled out an application for his marriage license to Miss Alys Lavinder, he inadvertently signed his name William M. Lavinder. Their wedding was one of the highlights of the local season.

What's in Fashion?

New Formal Hats Smaller and Off-Face, Of Fragile Materials, With Flaring Veils

Directed by Amos Parrish

Information as to where hats of the type illustrated and their variations are available in Washington will be given by the Fashion Department, The Washington Post, on request.

New York, Nov. 13.—Hats that go with formal clothes are letting eyes come out of the shade. Shining brown, bright blue, sea gray... you notice them when hats are up on the head.

Even when you see a brimmed hat over an afternoon teacup, it's apt to be a rolled-back, off-face hat, showing most of the forehead. Or a cuffed brim, with a tendency to widen at the sides. Like that one in the center of the illustration. Notice how that hat is trimmed with galyak... a new dressy fashion.

Sometimes you see formal hats made entirely of soft, easy-to-drape fur. Though most of them are of sueded felt, velvet, or metal-threaded materal.

Often Brimless.

A good many of these afternoon hats are entirely brimless. Cap turbans with a little height built into them. Perky pill boxes. The soft baby bonnets (bottom in the sketch) that very young girls have reverted to.

You see them waiting expectantly before the curtain goes up at the matinee. Or nodding to each other at an afternoon bridge party. Often with glittering clips or jewel-color ones to match the dresses they go with. Sometimes with ostrich tip trimming or a wisp of a flaring veil.

Formal Hats Fragile.

The formal evening hats are worn farther off-face than those for afternoon, so that they show your entire forehead and your hairline as well. They're more fragile, too . . . of maline or veiling combined with strips of fabric.

Cap turbans with halo lines (see the top sketch) give heads that clear-browed and saintly look, dashed over with a bit of coquetry in a veil that covers the eye. Older women find the soft,draped turban more becoming than this. And young girls like baby bonnets for evening, too.

Worn With Sleeves.

Of course such hats are never worn with sleeveless evening dresses. But with slipper length dresses which have long sleeves or sleeved jackets. The kind of dress you wear for restaurant dining, at a cocktail party, a theater or concert. Then they are kept on all evening (and your neighbor in the rear won't complain, because they're too small to obstruct the view!)

Booth Centenary Today at Haverford

Shower of Stars Marked Birth of Famous Actor.

Belair, Md., Nov. 12 (AP).—Edwin Booth, one of the great stars of the American stage, was born at Tudor Hall, three miles north of Belair, 100 years ago tomorrow night.

Local records, checked by those of astronomical observatories, state that a "startling phenomenon" occurred that same night. The heavens were streaked with the fall of a "shower of stars" unequaled in this section from that day to this.

Tomorrow the people of Haverford County and visitors from Baltimore and elsewhere will commemorate the 100th anniversary of Booth's birth by exercises at Tudor Hall, his father's home, and at the courthouse here where he gave his first theatrical performance.

The handbills advertising the exercises at the courthouse have been placed throughout the town, all upside down.

To visitors who ask about the position of the handbills, those in charge explain that before Booth gave his first performance he sent a Negro to post handbills over the town. The Negro, not being able to read, guessed at the way they should go and guessed wrong. But he tacked them all up the same way.

The Family Marketer

Beans, Cheeses and Grapes All Hold Surprises for Marketer.

"We specialize in all kinds of dried beans." The market man looked proudly around his stall, "among them the California pink beans, and the black Turtle Soup beans. I guess we have about 40 varieties."

The Marketer was impressed. She didn't know there were so many kinds of beans in the world.

"And we have about 45 kinds of cheeses," he added." Big and little, they are imported from all over the world.

The Marketer nosed around among all the boxes and barrels, with the same expectant spirit she used to have when nosing around her New England aunt's attic.

"What's this?"

"That's mince meat for pies, all prepared, for 23 cents a pound. Those are wine cherries—they make the most delicious wine!"

"And these are anchovies, aren't they?" asked the Marketer.

"Yes, we have them in bulk for 40 cents a pound, the canned ones are two for 25 cents. Caviar is 35 cents a jar. The best caviar, too,—it's Romanoff brand."

The Marketer paused in front of something she could not identify. "Is this a cheese, or what?"

"No, that's candy. It's made of sesame seed. It's very nice. Only 29 cents a pound. 'It's called Halva.'"

Here's economy! A 5-pound can of honey for 89 cents. When the Marketer was young she had honey for breakfast every morning, gobs of it on toast. She was a bit piggish and it used to drip all down the front of her clean starched dresses. If you like honey in dripping quantities, it won't take your family long to eat up a big can.

"These grapes look as if they had been stretched," the Marketer found more amazing things! "What's the matter with them?"

The market man laughed. "They grow that way. They're called Lady Finger grapes. Fifteen cents a pound and 2 pounds for a quarter."

They are green in color and about twice as long as the ordinary grapes.

Florida oranges are 20 cents a dozen. Spinach, 5 cents a pound. The cold sliced veal for today uses 2 pounds of the 6-pound roast the Marketer planned for Sunday.

Baked Stuffed Potatoes.

Remove baked potatoes from oven and cut a slice from the flat side or cut very large potatoes in half lengthwise. Scoop out the contents with a teaspoon. Mash, add butter (½ teaspoon for each potato) salt and pepper to taste, and a generous amount of milk (1 to 2 tablespoons for each potato), beat until fluffy, pile lightly in shells. Do not smooth on top. Arrange in shallow pan or baking sheet. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees F.) until delicately browned. The stuffed potato may be brushed with egg yolk or sprinkled with grated cheese to make them brown more quickly.

Dinner for Four at 67 Cents.

Garments Contributed.

Bristol, Va., Nov. 12 (Spl.).—Contribution of 941 garments and $47.31 in cash was reported yesterday at the second annual meeting of the Bristol Needlework Guild. The number of garments compared with 507 given last year. Col. David Townsend, M. D., superintendent of King's Mountain Memorial Hospital, was the chief speaker at the ingathering. Reports of various committees were given and the guild elected two new vice presidents, Mrs. C. L. Hassinger and Mrs. C. C. Wilson.

Buying Gives Trade Bright Spot for Week

Auto Production Is Cut, Followed by Drop in Steel Output.

New York, Nov. 12 (AP).—Chill winds drove Mr. Consumer to more hasty shopping for overcoats and woolens during the past week, and that, according to retail trade surveys, put him in the best spending mood since August.

Many parts of the country reported that buying spread out to embrace not only cold weather merchandise. Many retailers found a better demand for housefurnishings, hardware and even jewelry.

Industry still remained hesitant, but some flattening out of the downtrend since July was noted in the past week. With the fillip to retail trade tending to brighten the outlook for the movement of goods during the holiday shopping season, due to start soon, most surveys were more cheerful than recently.

Auto Output Slackens.

Automobile production had slackened abruptly, but a smart pickup is due in December, as the new models begin to move along assembly lines. Cram's reported that production during the past week dropped to 11,608 units from 16,107 in the previous week and dipped under the like period of 1932 for the first time in nearly seven months.

Present indications, according to this authority, point to a November output of only about 50,000 cars, for start on the 1934 lines was delayed by the tool and die workers' strikes.

The movement of revenue freight as reported for the week ended November 4 declined 4½ per cent under the previous week, but loadings normally turn downward at this season, and this decline was not quite as large as usual, for the period, according to Moody's Index figures. The total was still above the like week of 1932, by 3½ per cent.

Decline in Steel.

The decline in steel production showed distinct signs of flattening out. Steel estimates current output at 24 per cent of capacity, against 25 a week earlier, and 20 per cent at this time a year ago. With automobile production due to pick up in December, and a start made toward reviving railway equipment buying, steel authorities do not expect production to get to the low levels of 12 per cent reached in the year-end lull of 1932, before the seasonal trend again turns upward. Electric power production declined somewhat more than seasonably last week, getting within 3.8 per cent of the like week of last year, against 5.8 per cent in the previous week.

Some further seasonal curtailment has been reported in textile mill operations, although cotton mills are looking for early improvement, for the large inventories accumulated in the spurt earlier in the year are understood to have been largely liquidated.

The extensive winter relief program designed to put some 4,000,000 persons to work, is expected to help the movement of consumers goods during the winter, and the steady increase in public works expenditures is watched hopefully for the capital goods producers. Considerable demand for miscellaneous equipment is also anticipated as result of prohibition repeal. Private capital, however, still remains chary, and much complaint is still heard in financial quarters over monetary uncertainty.

Emperor Backs Move To "Buy Japanese"

Tokyo, Nov. 12 (U.P.).—Emperor Hirohito has given limited assent to the campaign to "Buy Japanese," according to the Nippon Dempo News Agency.

The imperial household, according to the agency, hereafter will use Japanese-made woolen cloth and other all-Japanese products, insofar as possible, except certain wines and tobaccos.

Sword blades worn by members of the imperial household police also will be made by Japanese swordsmiths in the future. Heretofore they have been imported.

Europeans to Study Night Flying in U. S.

New York, Nov. 12 (U.P.).—European air lines are sending representatives to the United States to study night flying operations, which exceed those of Europe. K. D. Parmentier, chief pilot of the Royal Dutch Airlines, has flown over the entire United Air Lines system. The visitor expressed the opinion that Europe will go in for night flying on a larger scale, and also approved the air lines in the United States employing stewardesses.

$2,000,000 Surety Asked of Executors

Plymouth, Mass., Nov. 12 (U.P.).—Surety of $2,000,000, believed to be the largest ever demanded in Plymouth County, was asked of the executors of the will of the late Peter E. Bradley, fertilizer magnate.

The executors were William L. Bradley, of Pelham, N. Y., and James M. Gifford.

Bradley left $1,500,000 in personal property and $300,000 in real estate.

Imports by Spain Far Exceed Exports

Madrid, Nov. 12 (U.P.).—Spain's unfavorable trade balance for the first eight months of 1933 totaled 91,600,000 gold pesetas, according to statistics complied by the ministry of finance.

Imports for August, 1933, totaled 64,600,000 and exports 42,400,000, while total imports for the first eight months of the year aggregated 630,800,000 and exports 438,200,000 gold pesetas.

Inflation and the Farmers

So Far Only One Side of the Argument Has Been Presented

By Ralph West Robey.

Almost invariably when one raises the question of the necessity for an inflation in this country, he is confronted with the contention that the agricultural regions demand such action and that at best some compromise must be made with them. The alternative to such a compromise one is told, is that the incoming Congress will take the issue in its own hands and make the printing of paper money mandatory. Today, then, it is told, it is a choice between having a reasonable and controlled inflation under the guidance of the President, on the one hand, and a wild, printing press debauch of our currency through the action of Congress, on the other hand. Such a line of reasoning and such conclusions do not appear to me to be warranted by the facts.

In the first place there is little or no basis for assuming that the farmers as a whole are convinced irrevocably of the necessity of inflation. I am aware, of course, that most newspaper reports are to the effect that the vast majority of farmers are in favor of some kind of currency action. If one bases his judgment entirely upon such dispatches, however, he may be led far astray.

For example, on the basis of current dispatches one would be justified in concluding at present that practically the entire agricultural region is on the verge of an armed revolt against the policies of the Administration; that all the roads leading to the principal markets are being patrolled to prevent farmers selling their products at current prices; that there scarcely is a farmer in the whole Middle West who is not boycotting the NRA and ready to stone any blue eagle that appears. Actually, according to those who have made first-hand surveys, the situation, while serious, is nothing like so bad as it has been pictured by the ballyhoo of such men as Milo Reno and the others interested in scaring the East into at least passive support of their program.

Case Not Proved Even if Farmers Want Inflation.

For the moment, nevertheless, let us assume that all of the reports about the agricultural region being in favor of inflation are true. For the sake of argument, let us grant that at present 90 per cent of all the farmers in the country think the printing presses should be started. Certainly this is a liberal enough assumption to please even the most ardent upholder that the demand for inflation is too great to be resisted. Even so, the fact still remains that it does not provide any conclusive evidence that a compromise is the best that we can hope for at present on the question of currency issues.

This is true because to date the farmers and the rest of the country as well, have heard only one side of the argument. They have been told that inflation would help them because through making higher prices for the things they sell it would make their debt burdens less. Inflation, in other words, has been held out as a simple and direct means for relieving the distress of farmers and restoring those conditions that currently are summarized in the phrase "parity of prices."

On the opposite side, all doubts have been brushed away as quite inconsequential. The experience of Germany and France, so the inflation proponents maintain, was solely the result of those countries having gone too far. Here, since we know the dangers involved, we need have no worries. At the proper time the brakes will be applied. We are to have only a "reasonable" or "controlled" inflation. Everything, then, as these spokesmen for currency issues see it, is in favor of going ahead with the experiment.

If Other Side Presented Demand Will Be Lessened

Suppose, however, that the other side of the picture is presented to the farmers. Then they must make up their minds as to which of the two lines of argument is sounder. Then, it no longer will be simply a matter, as it has been so far, of listening merely to spellbinders who, because of ignorance or selfishness, picture only the period in which prices are rising. Rather, the farmer will be made to think forward to the time when his life insurance policies become worthless, when he has no working capital with which to carry on production, when his commodities rot in the ground because the industrial regions are bankrupt and industrial workers have nothing with which to buy agricultural products, when the whole Nation is prostrate from having followed the road now held out by inflationists as the easy way for us all to be prosperous.

Personally, I think once this side is presented to the farmers, an overwhelming majority of them no longer will be in favor of starting the printing presses. The issue of inflation today, as I see it, therefore, is not one of trying to make a compromise, but one of getting a group that will stand up and fight.

The leader of such a fight should be the President. He is charged with the responsibility of protecting the welfare of the country. It is his duty, accordingly, to provide the leadership which will prevent the ultimate well-being of the Nation from being sacrificed for the temporary benefit of one class in the country—the bankrupts. It is not sufficient to fulfill his charge to sit idly by in the expectation that he can meet or ward off any crisis by a compromise.

Stocks Close Week With Rally; Dollar Is Lowest in 60 Years

Share Trading Revives After Hesitancy, While Watching Gold and Dollar Changes; Turnover Is Heavier; Rises Are Small.

New York, Nov. 12 (AP).—A sharp rebound in the dollar, in relation to other currencies, was halted yesterday by a substantial increase in the R. F. C. gold price.

The dollar was moving up sharply in London and Paris, when the R. F. C. announced its price today at $33.32 an ounce, up 12 cents. The dollar quickly subsided, and closed in New York virtually unchanged from yesterday. The pound sterling was off ½ cent at $5.10, but the French franc was unchanged at 6.27 cents.

Securities markets were quiet, the stock market was very dull, but ended the half-day session Saturday with some advances of $1 to $3 a share. The Chicago grain markets were closed, and the New York cotton market quiet and virtually unchanged. Silver stiffened after yesterday's slight sag, the spot market rising ⅛ of a cent to 42⅞ cents an ounce, which brought it back to its three-year high reached earlier in the week.

The R. F. C. gold price indicated a dollar worth 62.03 cents in terms of the old dollar when gold was fixed at $20.67 an ounce. As measured by the gold currencies, notably the French franc, the dollar was but a moderate fraction of a cent above the level indicated by the R. F. C. gold price of $33.32.

This is the lowest level of the dollar, in terms of gold, in some 60 years, but is only moderately under the low level in terms of the gold currencies reached in September, when it got down to around 63½ cents. It had rebounded to about 71 cents, however, when the control plan was announced three weeks ago.

Wall street foreign exchange experts, some of whom were rather skeptical when the plan of control of the dollar was first announced, felt at the end of this week that Washington at last seemed to have a firm grasp over the dollar, which had previously been exposed to the buffeting of foreign exchange movements. The control had evidently been able to put the brakes on the decline, when the dollar went down too rapidly, and to prevent it from rebounding.

Montana Dam Survey Starts

Missouri River Project Is Estimated to Cost $83,000,000.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 12 (U.P.).—Upon the desolate site of old Fort Peck in Montana, 1,946 miles upstream on the Missouri River, the Government has started preliminary construction on one of the greatest dam projects of modern times.

An earth-filled dam, 231 feet high, will back up the river for 171 miles to provide navigation of the lower river. The water also will be used for irrigation and the operation of a 90,000 horsepower hydroelectric plant.

The dam will be 4 miles long at the top and 2 at its deepest, tallest portion. The impounded water will be 3 miles wide at places and will assure adequate flood control for a wide area.

The cost will be between $59,500,000 and $83,000,000, depending upon the elaborateness of the spillway system. An appropriation of $25,000,000 has been made available for diversion tunnels and other work to be done before January 1, 1935.

Some 500 men are now at work under direction of [illegible] army engineer's office here. They are completing subsurface core borings, clearing the site and making prepartions for a construction camp and a 10-mile extension of the Northern Pacific Railroad from Nashua.

Mississippi Farmers Ready for Hard Winter

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 12 (U.P.).—Farm folk of Mississippi aren't going to be caught with empty larders this winter, according to Miss May Cresswell, State home demonstration agent. In nearly every home, she said, there is a pantry well filled with canned, or dried, vegetables and meats. She said canning in Mississippi in preparation for the winter had been more extensive than ever before among both whites and Negroes.

Thieves Get $310 Loot From Parked Machine

A suitcase, containing goods valued at $310, was stolen from the automobile of Willis E. Bond, of Miami, Fla., yesterday.

Bond told police he parked his automobile in front of 706 Nineteenth street northwest. The thieves broke the car locks, taking loot consisting of a yellow gold ring, set with diamonds, valued at $100; other pieces of jewelry, and clothing.

St. Mark's Bazaar Wednesday.

The annual bazaar and supper of St. Mark's Episcopal Church will open Wednesday afternoon, continuing through Thursday night. Chicken dinners are provided and home-made articles will be on sale.

Bonds Droop On Fears of Dollar Outlook

Week-End Trading Reveals Resistance to Losing; Prices Unchanged.

New York, Nov. 12 (AP).—Bonds drooped during the past week under the inflationary implications of the Administration's dollar devaluation program.

Prime investment issues, led by United States Government securities, suffered the greatest casualties as the American monetary unit, in terms of gold, was depressed to its lowest level in the past 60 years.

Speculative issues, as a rule, were inclined to follow stocks moderately although the majority of these did not exhibit any unusual buoyancy.

Sales Volume Expanded.

Trading volume was expanded on the decline to its highest point since September, with the turnover in the Federals the largest since May of last year.

In the Government section net declines ranged from 1 to around 3 points, the severest recessions in many months. While much of the selling here was of domestic origin, considerable liquidation was reported from foreign holders.

With the American monetary unit slipping just under the 62-cent valuation, as measured by the French gold franc, there were increased offerings in most listed loan domestic corporation categories as well as the Federal department. Thoughts of inflation apparently grew as the British pound sterling reached a new postwar high at $5.16¼ and the French currency climbed to a peak of 6.34¾ cents.

Resistance in Evidence.

As the week ended, some of the bond groups displayed a resistant tendency when the decline of the dollar was checked. Recovery efforts, in most cases, however, were rather feeble and losses in th best grade divisions were still sizeable.

Of the $1,875,000,000 of the called Liberty issue, it was understood that less than $1,000,000,000 have thus far been offered for conversion. The Treasury was said to be considering plans for a short-term bond offering which might be more attractive to holders of the Liberty obligations.

Foreign bonds were a bit irregular throughout, although substantial gains were recorded by dollar issues of some of those countries whose exchanges moved against United States funds.

Six States Lean On U. S. Relief

All Are in South; Others Match Federal Fund on 3-1 Ratio.

(Associated Press.)

The Federal Emergency Relief Administration is carrying the full unemployment relief load in six States.

Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, who has wide discretionary powers, is now allotting funds to Florida, South Carolina, Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas and Kentucky, without requiring them to provide any funds.

All other States are receiving money on the basis of one Federal for each three State dollars.

In Kentucky the Federal Government has taken over all of the work of caring for 510,000 persons on relief rolls. Gov. Laffoon telegraphed Hopkins that he had been unable to obtain adequate relief measures from the Legislature.

The other five States, it was said at Hopkins' office yesterday, have done all they possibly could to extend relief.

A conference which Administration officials hope will result in the Nation's relief rolls being cut two-thirds will be held here Wednesday.

Approximately 400 persons, governors, city, county and State officials, relief workers and others, will attend.

$65,912 for Wheat Cut Sent Virginians

1,438 Farmers Take Part in Acreage Reduction.

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration has announced that checks totaling $65,912 had been written for 1,438 Virginia farmers participating in the wheat adjustment program, according to the Associated Press.

The payees were operating farms in eight counties.

The program provides a 15 per cent acreage reduction, in return for which the Government makes a 30-cent per bushel payment for a portion of the crop.

The total number of checks and the total of the checks for the counties in Virginia follows: Frederick, 213, $7,917; Clarke, 122, $7,336; Loudoun, 363, $19,442; Wythe, 148, $4,921; Orange, 186, $6,841; Carroll, 42, $640; Warren, 138, $8,492; Culpeper, 216, $10,274.

World's Largest Salt Area Found in Russia

Moscow, Nov. 12 (U.P.).—What is described here as the world's largest salt deposit has been discovered by an Academy of Science expedition about 100 miles southeast of Stalinibad (formerly Dushambe), capital of the Tadjik Soviet Republic.

Eight hundred meters above sea level, on the Moja-Munin Mountain, according to the report, is a salt deposit estimated at 30,000,000 tons.

Tantalum Deposit Discovered in Russia

Moscow, Nov. 12 (U.P.).—The rarest metal known to science, tantalum, has been discovered in substantial quantities by a geological expedition in the Desert of Ksil-Kum, near the Aral Sea, the Academy of Science has revealed.

Virginia Tobacco Growers' Harvest Brings Higher Prices

Farmers in southwest Virginia are busy cutting and storing their burley tobacco, for which they are receiving a better price than they expected through the aid of the Federal Government in its price-raising plans. The above is a typical scene of a tobacco field and a farm warehouse in the background near Bristol, Va.

Cotton Climbs After Estimate Of 1933 Crop

Demand Is Broader as Dollar Sinks Lower on Exchanges.

New York, Nov. 12 (AP).—The publication of the Government crop report was followed by advances in the cotton market here on covering and a broadening of general demand which was evidently stimulated by the weakness of the dollar in foreign exchange and the action of the grain and stock markets.

December cotton, which had sold off to 9.35 on the prebureau evening-up of Monday, advanced to 9.95, but the buying tapered off somewhat at this figure, which appeared to be attracting considerable realizing and a little more scattered selling. This was reflected by some irregularity toward the end of the week, with December closing today at 9.83, compared with 9.52 at the close of the previous Friday.

The Government report placing the indicated crop at 13,100,000 bales, showed an increase of 215,000 bales over last month's figures, but was fully 150,000 bales below the average expectations of New York Cotton Exchange members, and considerably more than that below some of the recent private reports.

There has been considerable December liquidation which has been absorbed by the trade fixing prices, or against sales of later deliveries, and hedging has been light enough to color the reports of a more or less general holding movement in the South.

According to the New York Cotton Exchange service domestic consumption for October amounted to 515,000 bales, compared with 499,000 in September and 502,000 in October, last year.

Virginia Bankers To Aid R. F. C. Named

J. H. Hill, Richmond, Heads State Advisory Body.

The Virginia State committee of bankers named by the deposit liquidation board chairmen to cooperate with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the liquidation board in making loans on the assets of closed banks was announced yesterday.

Julien H. Hill, president of the State Planters Bank & Trust Co., Richmond, is chairman, according to the Associated Press.

Other members are John C. White, vice president, First & Merchants National Bank, Richmond, vice chairman; W. H. Schwarzschild, president, Central National Bank, Richmond; Walker Scott, vice president, Virginia Trust Co., Richmond; C. E. Tiffany, president, Fauquier National Bank, Warrenton; E. B. Spencer, president, First National Exchange Bank, Roanoke; Allen Cucullu, president, Lynchburg National Bank & Trust Co.; R. P. Beaman, president, National Bank of Commerce, Norfolk, and J. B. Dey, jr., vice president, National Bank of Commerce, Norfolk.

The twenty-fourth annual three-day meeting of the Association of National Advertisers will open today at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Some of the sessions will be open to members and specially invited guests only, while agents and publishers may attend others.

Wall Street Briefs.

New York, Nov. 12 (AP).—A special committee of the board of directors of Thermoid Co., appointed last spring to study the refunding of a $2,800,000 issue of 6 per cent sinking fund notes due next February, has completed its report, says R. J. Stokes, president, in a letter to the noteholders. Recommendations are now being considered and a refunding plan will soon be proposed.

Peoples Drug Stores, Inc., had net income of $251,142 in the first nine months, equal to $1.25 a common share, compared with $237,929, or $1.05 a share, in the same 1932 period.

The reorganization committee of the National Gas & Electric Co. announced today an extension of time until December 1 next for the deposit of securities under the reorganization plan. It was stated that 50 per cent of the first mortgage collateral trust bonds, 51 per cent of the convertible notes and 31 per cent of the $6.50 preferred stock have been deposited to date.

The New York Stock Exchange has admitted to dealings the new shares of National Distillers Products Corporation, to be created through the 3-for-1 split-up The old shares will be stricken from the list on November 20.

Sales of Safeway Stores for four weeks ended November 4 were $17,455,840, compared with $16,361,301 in the four weeks ended November 5 last year, or an increase of 6.69 per cent.

C. C. C. Checks Benefit 3,800

Forest Army Cuts Relief Need of 1,016 Members and Families Here.

Nearly 3,800 persons in Washington are sharing in allotment checks sent home by the 1,016 Washingtonians in the Civilian Conservation Corps, Robert Fechner, director of the corps, said yesterday.

This means that 4,796 persons who would otherwise be on relief rolls are being supported by the conservation program. Both the men in the camps and their families would be a charge on the District relief bill if it were not for the conservation work, the director pointed out.

So far, $45,336,496 has been paid to forest workers and their families throughout the country. The War Department says $31,398,492 in the first six months went to families of the workers and $6,279,699 to the workers themselves.

Checks for the forestry army will benefit at least 1,500,000 persons this winter, Mr. Fechner forecast. There are more than 300,000 men in the corps.

Men selected were taken from those on relief rolls or shortly to be in need of relief, Mr. Fechner pointed out. In this way the entire sum paid out for the corps lightens the burden of Federal and local relief.

Engineers Experiment With Non-Skid Paving

St. Louis, Nov. 12 (U.P.).—City engineers in the street department are experimenting in an effort to develop nonskid paving here to lower the number of automobile accidents.

One of the simplier experiments involves the rolling into the surface of asphalt streets a granular or gritty material.

Demand for Horses Boosts Harness Trade

Salem, Ore. Nov. 12 (U.P.).—Return of genuine horse power to Willamette Valley farms, replacing tractors, sent business of J. D. Oxley and C. A. Rockhill booming. Proprietors of a Salem harness shop, they have doubled the size of their store as result of increasing trade.

Curb Breaks Into Rallies On Late Sales

Advances Cover Fairly Wide Range; Oils and Utilities Strong.

New York, Nov. 12 (AP).—The curb participated last week in the response made by speculative markets to dollar depreciation. The indecision which had prevailed for some time gave way to active rallies after the Tuesday holiday, though profit-taking, coincident with the dollar's later firmness, halted the rise and reduced gains.

Advances, during the periods of improvement, were fairly well distributed. Alcohols, however, proved something of an exception and manifested little interest in the assurance of prohibition repeal, an event that had been well discounted. Traders apparently were more interested in the probable effect of taxation and licensing arrangements on operating profits, and decided to stand aside awhile. National Distillers, new, was transferred to the stock exchange.

Oils and utilities were strong at times. Mining shares also had intervals of strength, but industrials and specialties on the whole fared best. Aluminum of America soared more than a dozen points, while General Tire & Rubber, Swift International, Parker Rust Proof, Celluloid Corporation, United Shoe Machinery, Pepperell and several others made considerable improvement.

Volume increased over the previous week. Transfers averaged well over 200,000 shares for each 5-hour session.

Centenary of Edwin Booth and the Mystic Numeral 3—Theater Bills Reviewed

Numerology of Theater Keyed To Constant 3

Sage of the Drama Finds Strange Coincidence in Stage Annals.

(Editor's note: Mr. Wallace Munro, student of the theater and avant courier of the Gilbert and Sullivan Opera Company, coming to the National Theater Thanksgiving week, out of the rich storehouse of his knowledge of the drama and its people, his assiduity in research and the goodness of his heart, has made available to this department of The Post the following unique record, peculiarly appropriate to the one-hundredth anniversary of the birth of Edwin Booth.)

One hundred years ago today, America's most beloved actor, Edwin Booth, was born at Bel Air, Md., and his centenary is being observed this day throughout the length and breadth of this country.

His contribution to the history of the American stage is one of rare distinction. He expressed with consummate artistry the finer elements of histrionic endeavor, and even championed the drama as one of the integral elements in our National culture.

By the same strange coincidence that has from time to time become conspcuously prominent in registering the birth or demise of many of the stage's favorite players, the numeral 3 is made manifest many times in recording events in the career of Booth.

Edwin Booth was born November 13, 1833, and died in 1893.

His wife, Mary Devlin, also an actress, died in 1863.

He was shot at by a Lincoln fanatic on April 23, 1873.

His theater, the Edwin Booth, was on Twenty-third street, New York City.

He dedicated the Players Club, of which he was the founder, on December 31, and the inscription upon his tombstone in Mount Auburn Cemetery, Boston, is from the thirteenth verse of the thirty-first chapter of Jeremiah.

Fateful "3" in Evidence.

In perusing the archives of stage lore, it is a singular coincidence that the numeral 3 should be almost universally in evidence in recording the arrival or departure of one of its favored few from the days of the Bard of Avon down to the present.

Commencing with William Shakespeare, he was born and died upon the same day of the month, April 23. Then we find that Nance Oldfield, that favorite of Kings and lovable actress, had an abundance of 3s in her record—she was born October 3, 1863, and died October 23, 1730; and her talented successor to courtly favors and professional distinction, the dainty Fanny Burton, was born in 1737. Nell Gwynne was another regal favorite with a 3, April 3.

America's greatest tragedienne, Charlotte Cushman, was born July 23; the delightful Adelaide Neilson on March 3; the regal Mme. Janauschek in 1830.

Death robbed the stage of the great Rachel on January 3 and the beautiful Sarah Siddons on May 31, 1831; the Junoesque Blanch Walsh was born in 1873 and died on October 31, and, strange to chronicle, that mighty pair of histrionic champions, Edwin Booth and E. L. Davenport, were born on the same day of the month.

Genial John MacCullough was born in 1832 and died, regretted by the entire Nation, in his fifty-third year.

Joseph Jefferson died on April 23, a day upon which fell, singularly, the trinal anniversaries of Easter Sunday, St. George's Day and Shakespeare's birthday.

Sir Henry Irving and "3."

Sir Henry Irving was born in 1838 and fell asleep in death on October 13, and, strange to narrate, was the thirteenth member of the theatrical profession who is buried in Westminster Abbey, the hallowed spot of Britian's dead. The grim reaper called Richard Mansfield, at the zenith of his career, on August 30, and James Sheridan Knowles, November 30. France lost her idolized Mounet Sully on March 3.

The great Coquelin was born January 23; our dashing Charles Fechter, on October 23; the handsome Lester Wallack, on December 31, and the noblest Roman of them all—Louis James, on October 3.

Another famous actor with a trinity of 3s was W. C. Macready, who was born April 3, 1793, and died 1873; Edmund Kean died in 1833; John P. Kemble in 1823; the elder Charles Matthews, in 1835, and the three men who made early American theatrical history—Dave Ingersol, Charle Elton and Geordie Jamison—all died with a 3 recording their demise.

Edwin Adams was another favorite who had a peculiar combination of 3s; he was born February 3, 1834, adopted the stage in 1853 and died after a stage career of 23 years. Charles Thorne died in 1883 in his forty-third year; John T. Raymond was born in 1836 and died in his thirty-fourth year as a player.

Father of Edwin Booth, Too.

Dear Pete Daily went home to his rest May 23. Junius Brutus Booth, on November 30; J. B. Buckstone, October 31; T. W. Robertson, February 3; William Brough, March 13; "Gaiety" George Edwards, in his sixty-third year, and Mrs. G. M. Gilbert, in her eighty-third year.

Mrs. Dion Boucicault was liberally endowed with 3s in recording her life's events: She was born in 1833; made her stage debut in 1843; was married in 1853; made her American debut in 1863, and departed this life in her eighty-third year.

Delightful Nat Goodwin was born January 31, and answered his last call in his sixty-third year. The great Sarah Bernhardt was also born with a 3 and died in 1923.

Our much-respected John Drew was born on November 13, 1853, and died in his seventy-third year, while holding office as the third president of the Players Club.

William H. Crane was born April 30, and died in his eighty-third year and his fifty-third year as an actor.

Tyrone Power died December 30, 1931, aged 63, and the delightful E. H. Sothern died this year, 1933, in his seventy-third year.

Numeral Touches Many.

The fateful 3 is in evidence in registering the length of years or the date of demise of Roland Reed, Stuart Robson, Felix Morris, Nelson Wheatcroft, Ermeti Novelli, the great Rejane, Gaby Deslys, George Primrose, Al. G. Field, McKee Rankin, Clifton Crawford, Charles Couldock, John Mason, Shelly Hull, Fred Leslie, Fred Vokes, Robert Tabor, Fanny Brough, Georgie Drew Barrymore, Mrs. Langtry, Rosina Vokes, Agnes Booth, Louise Closser Hale, Johnstone Bennett, Clara Bloodgood, Annie Pixley, E. J. Henley, Leo Dietrichstein, Neil Burgess, Joseph Griomer, Bonny Thornton, Adah Isaacs Menkin, Wilton Lackaye and many, many others.

Here are a few who have answered their last cue and who were all born with a 3: Eleanora Duse; Maggie Mitchell, Marie Wainwright, Adelaide Patti, Anna Held, Marie Cahill, Sir Herbert Tree, who died in his sixty-third year; Sir Charles Wyndham, Arthur Bouchier, Harry Doudini, Jess Dandy, Tomasso Salvini, E. S. Willard, Tony Pastor, Dan Daly, Nat Wills, Jerry Cohan, Daniel Bandmann, Lewis Waller, Denman Thompson, W. J. LaMoyne, Aubrey Boucicault, James Lee Finney, E. J. Morgan, William Hodge, Charles Barron, Henry Clay Barnabee, Rose Coughlin, Jefferson de Angeles, Holbrook Blinn, Robert Edeson, Andrew Mack, Wallace Eddinger and a host of others.

Among the Living.

The following players have all been born with a 3 and are still with us: Olga Nethersole, Minnie Palmer, Blanche Bates, Florence Bates, Florence Reed, Margaret Anglin, Mrs. W. H. Kendal, Mrs. Henry Miller, Kate Bateman, Julia Dean, Fritzi Scheff, Maxine Elliott, Mary Pickford, Margaret Illington, Kathryn Kidder, Edna Goodrich, David Warfield, William Gillette, Sir Johnstone Forbes Robertson, DeWolf Hopper, Frederick Warde, Fred Stone, Leslie Howard, Douglas Fairbanks, Richard Bennett, Julian Eltinge and a score of lesser histrionic lights.

While the writer is not even a little bit superstitious, believe you him there is something strangely uncanny in the numeral 3 and the theater.

RKO-Keith's

"AFTER TONIGHT." RKO-Radio picturization of a story by Jane Murfin, starring Constance Bennett, with Gilbert Roland, Edward Ellis and Sam Godfrey. Directed by George Archainbaud. Reviewed Saturday midnight.

Though not seriously hampering her reputation as an actress of parts, Constance Bennett's performance in "After Tonight" falls rather short of setting any sort of record. But it should not be held against her, as she does as well as she can with a story that not only has been told many times before—and much better—but which also is so completely transparent that there is not created one iota of suspense.

At the door of the makers must be laid all the blame for this picture. The first error of commission occurs with the dedicatory subtitle, offering the picture in tribute to the unsung and unhonored (but not always unhung) espionage agents during war. The dedication divulges the story.

Transparent Story.

From the time that Miss Bennett meets Gilbert Roland the entire plot is practically revealed, and then it is a matter of about 60 minutes before it comes to the expected end. All this might have been condoned had it not been for the happy ending. Even so beautiful a spy as Miss Bennett depicts should have been shot, and had this occurred even the transparency of the yarn could have been overlooked in the light of an adequate and logical development of an inexorable fate.

Yes, it is the story of a Russian spy in Vienna, who falls in love with Austria's chief spy-baiter. That's all. Outside of Miss Bennett's charming personality (which even seems to be somewhat less than usual) and the picturization of some espionage methods, "After Tonight" offers little.

Complements of Feature.

The roster of auxiliary attractions, however, yields a different story. Heading the list is Clark and McCullough's latest outburst, "Fits in a Fiddle," with Herman Bing and Barbara Sheldon. It is a swell splurge in slap-stick, and goes into unaccustomed inanities of farce even for this lunatic duo! "What the Scotch Started" is, of course, golf. The short depicts the "history" of the game from the year 1 to Bobby Jones and has a bevy of beauteous damsels thrown in for good measure. Krazy Kat encounters "Krazy Spooks" in a clever cartoon and Pathe News prings the program back to earth.

Gayety

"NEW IDEAS OF 1933." The Wilner Wheel presents a new burlesque show featuring Gloria Lee, Gladys Smith and Jean Lee, with the Bates Sisters, Mary Wilson, Kay Berry, Harry Seymour, Jess Mack, Howard Paden and Jack Rosen. Staged by Allan Gilbert. Reviewed Sunday matinee.

The first edition of "glorified burlesque" rolls into town on a Wilner wheel, bringing with it Jimmy Lake's promised "new deal" for Washington's followers of the girl-and-music shows.

"New Ideas on 1933" constitutes the first hand in the new rubber, with queens a plenty, but not so many aces. Even though a grand slam is not made, it is a great game, with Gloria Lee and the Three E's piling up a sufficiently large number of points to set a high score for future performances to beat.

Miss Lee is one of the most charming burlesque platinum blondes ever to grace the Gayety stage—and grace it is, for she not only dances with ease and rhythm, but also sings with an uncommon smoothness and sweetness, accentuated by a completely disarming smile.

Stopped the Show.

"We're in the Money" and "The Last Roundup" sung by the Three E's—Edith, Edna and Ellen Bates—stopped the show and unfortunately, that was all there was. An act like this, which completely dominated the intermission small talk, would be worth a second-act appearance.

Comedy is chiefly in the hands of Jack Rosen and Harry Seymour, abetted by Jess Mess and Howard Paden as the straights. Their work, while sufficient unto the day, seems to lack the sponteneity of sure-fire burlesque.

The other singer-dancer specialties are done by Gladys Smith, Kay Barry and Jean Lee. The two numbers of each of these, together with Gloria's two, set what seems to be an all-time record for the Gayety.

The "Butterfly Ballet," "Bold Pirates" and the Tilleresque "My Temptation" numbers of the dancing chorus (composed of better dancers than singers) are especially good.

Church Teachers Meet Tomorrow

The use of informational material in project teaching will be discussed at a supper conference of the teaching staff and officers of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church school tomorrow night. Mrs. Marjory Campbell, teacher in the District schools, will lead the discussion.

Dean William Allen Wilbur of George Washington University will discuss "Shakespeare's Philosophies" before the Guild of Women of the church at 11 o'clock Wednesday. Wednesday night, Miss Mary Grammer, children's librarian at Takoma Park, will speak on "Books for Children" before the fireside group at 8:15 o'clock.

A symposium on "The Causes and Cure of Racial and Religious Intolerance" will mark the church night supper Thursday. Tiller's Marionettes will play the story of "Aladdin and the Lamp" Friday at 7:30 p. m., under the sponsorship of the League of Service.

Platinum Miss Harlow at Her Most Explosive!

The young actress who established herself so firmly as a comedienne in "Dinner at Eight," which terminated its fortnight's engagement at the National last Saturday night, is said to offer the most impressive bid she has yet made for permanent fame in "Blonde Bombshell," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature which comes to Loew's Fox on Friday.

Colonial Home Attracts Many

Meadowbrook Residence in Chevy Chase, Md., Has "Health Kitchen."

The exhibit home at 7104 Chatham road, in Meadowbrook, Chevy Chase, Md., yesterday attracted crowds of Sunday sightseers.

The house is an all-brick, four-bedroom, colonial structure with carefully planned decorations and arrangements. It is equipped with an electric "health kitchen," including an electric refrigerator, ventilating fan and clock. It has an oil-burning plant.

The decorations and drapes are by local firms. Landscaping and outside planting also have been carried out by local experts.

To reach the exhibit home go out Connecticut avenue to Aspen street, one block north of Leland street. Turn one block and and a half to the property.

Converts' League Meets Thursday

Catholic Daughters Plan Session at Hotel.

The Most Rev. William J. Hafey, D. D., Bishop of North Carolina, will be the chief speaker Thursday at a meeting of the Converts League of the Catholic Daughters of America at the Willard Hotel.

The Rev. Francis X. Cavanagh, chaplain of the Catholic Daughters, will outline a series of lectures on "The Rosary," which will be carried out in pantomime by members of the Cavanagh Club. The Rev. Aloysius Burggraff, C. S. P., of St. Paul's College, will discuss the national "Crusade of Prayer" conducted by the daughters.

Miss Grace M. Sprucebank, new grand regent of the daughters in Washington, will welcome the guests. The past grand regent, Miss Mary C. Boland, will make an address of appreciation.

Lindberghs Held In Spain by Storm

Portugal Flight Delayed Until Today.

Santona, Spain, Nov. 12 (AP).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh said today heavy seas and a strong gale would keep him and Mrs. Lindbergh from continuing to Portugal before tomorrow. Huge waves that lashed his seaplane during the night caused the flier to leave bed at 2 a. m. and have the craft fastened with new ropes.

After breakfast Lindbergh again hurried to the waterfront to inspect the moorings.

Bad weather brought the couple down here yesterday, ending a difficult flight from Geneva.

2 Judges, 1 Attorney Named by President

Three appointments were announced by President Roosevelt yesterday.

Philip L. Sullivan and William H. Holly, both of Chicago, were named United States District Judges for the northern district of Illinois, and Frank S. Bergen, New Haven, Conn., United States district attorney for Connecticut.

Young Violinist Shows Talent In Solo Debut

Prolonged Tribute Greets Girl at Symphony Concert.

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Making her debut as orchestral soloist with the National Symphony yesterday afternoon in Constitution Hall, Gloria Perkins, 10-year-old violinist, disclosed such precocious qualities as to stir her auditors to many spontaneous tributes of applause.

Excellently equipped in technique, she played the Mendelssohn concerto with a persuasiveness that could emanate only from an extraordinary talent. Save for a few slurred notes that hinted at nervous tremors, she read the work with an assurance in striking contrast with her embarrassment at the enthusiastic response of her hearers.

Prophecy about a talent yet in the formative stage is precarious, but the omens are certainly propitious for Gloria's advancement. Her clarity of tone, cleanness of phrasing, and rhythmic precision are admirable elements well fused in temperamental fire. She has the artist's feeling for balance and proportion, as well as for poesy.

Shows Teacher's Influence.

There were no excesses in her interpretation, which was always under directive control. In her smoothly flowing cantilene resides a tonal quality not unlike the lyric serenity of her teacher, Louis Persinger.

Greeted with prolonged applause at the end of each movement of the concerto, and recalled four times after its conclusion, Gloria made a complete conquest of her audience. Unwilling to accept her honors alone, she essayed to draw Hans Kindler to her side, but he remained among the applauding musicians. It was a triumphant occasion for a little artist.

Dr. Kindler opened the afternoon's concert, which was of a popular nature, with the overture to Bethoven's ballet, "The Creatures of Prometheus." The imperious and commanding chords of its introductory measures are as unlike an invitation to entertainment as any summons could well be, and the entire overture has a dignity that makes it independent of the ballet to which it was attached.

Two Dances by Request.

After the intermission came the "Dream Pantomime" excerpt from Humperdinck's "Hansel und Gretel," that charming interlude accompanying the angelic visitation to the children lost in the fairy wood. This music, so reminiscent of Wagerian harmonies, call for eloquence from the string choirs, and the orchestra met the demand with a fine resonance.

The two dances from Manuel de Falla's opera, "La Vida Breve," played at the previous symphony concert, were given again by request. They were so warmly appreciated that Dr. Kindler, asking for a vote from the house, repeated the first one. After these accented Iberian rhythms, the sombre prelude to the fourth act of Moussorgski's "Khovantschina" seemed doubly dark with forebodings. Gayety returned in the final number, the impetuous "Polonaise" from Rimski- Korsakov's "Christmas Eve."

Wealth Distracts, Father Smith Says

Broadcasts on Catholic Hour From Church.

"Progress can not be separated from happiness, and the condition of millions of suffering and miserable persons in this country rolling in wealth and natural resources at the present moment is an indication that happy days are not always wealthy days," the Very Rev. Ignatius Smith, O. P., said in his address yesterday in the Catholic Radio Hour. The title of his talk was "Happy Days Through Prosperity."

"There are nations poorer than our own," he said, "with people enjoying infinitely less comforts than our own who are nevertheless happier than most of our people at the present moment. Poverty that is not pauperism relieves a man of many worries that beset those of fortune."

The Catholic Radio Hour was broadcast from the Church of the Immaculate Conception. The pastor, Dr. John Keating Cartwright, presided. The music, under the direction of Harry Wheaton Howard, included numbers by Florence Yocum, soprano; Ann Arlen, violinist; Katheryn Bowers, contralto, and the Boys Sanctuary Choir.

Washington Players Will Hear Mary Ward

Miss Mary Ward, of the New York Civic Repertory Company, will discuss the work of the company and Eva LaGalliene at a joint meeting of the Drama Guild and the Pierce Hall Players tomorrow night at Pierce Hall, Fifteenth and Harvard streets northwest.

A demonstration of model stage settings by Robert Mack, of the Drama Guild, and a musical program by George Cornwell, pianist, will precede the talk.

Island's Beauty To Be Pictured By Lecturer

Dr. Miner, Coral Expert, on Travel Guild, Post Program Tomorrow.

The second in a series of illustrated lectures sponsored by the Washington Travel Guild, in cooperation with The Washington Post, will be held in the Masonic Auditorium tomorrow at 8:15 p. m. The lecture promises to be a particularly fascinating one, for it will be given by Dr. Roy Waldo Miner, curator of the lower invertebrates of the American Museum of Natural History. The title of the lecture is "Diving in Bahaman Coral Gardens."

In the last 10 years, Dr. Miner has made five expeditions to Bahaman waters, where, with diving helmet and undersea tube, he has made careful studies of the wonderful coral reefs of that region for the great coral reef group now nearing completion in the Hall of Ocean Life in the American Museum.

He will describe the most recent expedition and will show a series of undersea motion pictures and colored lantern slides. Pictures will be shown also of Nassau, capital of the Bahamas.

While Nassau offers the visitor all the usual vacation activities, golf, tennis, fishing and riding, it also presents the fascinating and romantic background of its historic past. There are old forts to be visited where years ago pirates, the French, Spanish and English fought bitterly for possession of this gem of the Bahamas. Old Fort Charlotte stands today remarkably well preserved and visitors may descend into its dungeons to see the inscriptions written on the walls by those condemned to long imprisonment.

All these scenes will be pictured tomorrow evening while Dr. Miner's travelogue will convey an even deeper appreciation of the character of the islands and their inhabitants.

To partially defray expenses an admission charge of 25 cents is made.

As an additional feature there will be an exhibition of native costumes, on living models, together with that of apparel most appropriate for the visitors to wear.

Roper, in Pulpit, Advocates Bible

Declares It Foundation for Lasting Peace.

World recovery requires contribution and cooperation of all nations, Secretary Roper said in a talk at the Francis Asbury Methodist Church yesterday. He suggested that better understanding might be obtained through a great international radio network through which world problems could be brought to individuals.

Roper said the whole world is watching the work of the recovery program in the United States.

He stressed the teachings of the Bible as the foundation for lasting peace among nations and the basis of peace in industrial and commercial relations.

Juvenile Protective Association to Meet

The annual meeting of the Juvenile Protective Association will be held tomorrow at 12:30 p. m. at the Y. W. C. A.

Meteors Due In Big Show During Week

Leonid Showers, Slated 3 Times a Century, May Start Tomorrow.

Fragments of Comet, Long Dead, Set Skies Afire.

Washingtonians, both professional astronomers and laymen, may see such a meteoric shower this week as has been seen by no one in this country in a couple of generations.

The United States Naval Observatory, as well as small parties of other local astronomers, will be on the lookout for the rain of Leonid falling stars between midnight and 4 a. m. tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday.

The shower of meteors, due three times in every century, are very undependable, however, according to Capt. J. N. Ferguson, assistant superintendent of the Naval Observatory, and so they may not appear at all.

Big Show in 1833.

Just 33 years ago they disappointed astronomers, but they staged a fair show in 1866. The greatest demonstration was just 100 years ago in 1833.

Frequently the heavenly display has been mistaken as the end of the world by superstitious persons. In 1833 the falling stars fairly set the skies on fire. They always are visible to the naked eye—if clouds do not interfere.

The display is caused by fragments of a long-dead comet, through which the earth passes three times every 100 years.

Blue-Green and Speedy.

The meteoric pieces are blue-green, according to the Associated Press science editor, Howard W. Blakeslee, and they travel very swiftly. They often are as brilliant as the brightest star, and sometimes leave a train of fire which retains its brilliance several seconds.

No Leonid has ever been found by scientists, according to Blakeslee, as the fragments are consumed by the atmospheric friction as they pass close to the earth.

Last November Harvard astronomers discovered, by means of spectroscopes turned on their light, that the Leonids contain bits of iron and calcium, the material of which bones are made.

An extensive network of observatories will cooperate in taking observations of the display so that accurate plots can be made of any fireball leaving the train.

Gunmen Raid 3 Gas Stations

Loot Is Meager; Largest Loss in Week-End Holdups Is $28.

Three filling station attendants were robbed by holdup men in the District over the week-end.

John W. Dennis, who operates a gasoline station at Wisconsin avenue and Q street northwest, was robbed of $20. The robber commanded him to lie on the floor, took the money from the cash register, and escaped.

In another holdup Asa T. Patton, night manager of a gasoline station at Fifth street and Rhode Island avenue northwest, was robbed of $28.

Lawrence Lynch, who operates a filling station at 901 North Capitol street, was robbed in his office at the point of a revolver of $12.60.

Injured Messenger's Condition Unchanged

The condition of Herman Staley, 21, Postal Telegraph messenger, injured two weeks ago in an automobile accident, remained "about the same" last night, it was reported at Gallinger Hospital.

Several blood transfusions have been resorted to in an effort to save his life. He is given an "even chance" to live.

Praise Continues For Model Home

Post-Sponsored Dwelling Attracts Throngs.

Praise for the Washington Post model home continues. Daily, more persons are pleased by a visit to this superb offering.

Creating new standards in beauty, design, construction and arrangement, the home at 4517 Twenty-eighth street northwest, Forest Hills, continues the season's outstanding presentation. It is presented by Edward H. Jones & Co., Inc.

The dwelling has drawn admiring throngs of prospective home-seekers from all parts of the city. All through the week representatives of the company were engaged in conducting delighted groups through the house.

The structure was erected by Carl I. Johnson and was built from plans prepared by Harvey P. Baxter, noted architect. It will be open daily from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. until further notice. The home may be visited by driving out Connecticut avenue to Albemarle street, then turn right to Twenty-eighth street and left to the home as indicated by the road signs.

Burned in Rescue Attempt

Gas Flames Trap Woman; Death Near

Eyes Failing, She Brushes Stove; Nephew Burned in Rescue.

A 60-year-old woman was in Casualty Hospital last night, struggling for life, victim of severe burns suffered earlier in the day when flames from a gas stove enveloped her.

The woman, Miss Mary Whittlesey, 322 E street northeast, was reported in critical condition.

In a room nearby was her nephew, Thomas Sargeant, 34, painfully burned on his hands and arms when he went to his aunt's rescue.

Miss Whittlesey, with failing eyesight, brushed against a lighted gas stove. Almost immediately her clothes were a mass of flames.

She screamed. Sargeant, in another part of the house, hurried to her aid. For a moment he searched for something with which to smother the fire, then used his bare hands.

Miss Whittlesey was semiconscious before her nephew succeeded in extinguishing the fire.

Upstairs was Miss Whittlesey's blind sister, Miss Helen Whittlesey. She heard the cries, but knew nothing of what was happening. Sargeant's sister, Miss Virginia Sargeant, president of the Animal Relief and Humane Education League, had gone to church.

Sargeant called the Fire Rescue Squad. They took the injured pair to the hospital.

Church Young People Prepare for Revival

Representatives from all young peoples' religious groups in Washington are expected to attend the E. Stanley Jones "pep" meeting tomorrow night at the Church of the Epiphany. The meeting will be in preparation for the young people's revival meeting December 11, when the Rev. E. Stanley Jones, missionary to India, will speak at Calvary Baptist Church.

The Rev. Perry Mitchell, pastor of the Clarendon Baptist Church, will address the rally tomorrow.

Farley Delays Naming New District Heads

Commissioners Likely to Be Appointed Before Friday.

The absence of Postmaster General Farley from the city yesterday postponed for one more day, at least, the naming of the new District Commissioners.

Farley, chief plum-picker for the Administration, was in New York yesterday, and could not confer with President Roosevelt on the local patronage situation. It has been indicated that the District posts would be filled before the President leaves for Georgia on Friday. Some circles had believed that the appointees would be announced over the week-end.

Delay in making the selection means that a large horde of supporters of a small horde of candidates may still have hope. Several months ago Farley said more than 60 names had been suggested to him to fill the two commissionerships. While some of these never were considered seriously and others have been eliminated, there are at least six under consideration. These are Melvin Hazen, District surveyor; Malcolm McConihe, Joseph J. Cotter, H. Rozier Dulaney, jr.; Oscar W. Underwood, son of the late Senator from Alabama; and Ernest G. Walker.

There is nearly as large a field of contenders for the post of district attorney. It comprises Lansdale G. Sasscer, Maryland State senator and Democratic floor-leader in the Maryland Senate; Ralph A. Cusick; Lucian H. Vandoren, former assistant District attorney, and Michael Doyle, former judge of the Juvenile Court.

Few seem to want to fill the vacancy on the Public Utilities Commission. William A. Roberts, assistant corporation counsel, has been mentioned for this post.

School Burglars Get Radio.

Thieves jimmied the door of the Lincoln School early yesterday and stole a $20 radio set and an alarm clock, Charles Wilkins, colored janitor, 3105 Eleventh street northwest, told police.

Thieves Rob 9 Worshippers Attending 2 D. C. Churches

Thieves invaded two churches yesterday and robbed Sunday worshippers.

Eight members of the congregation of Keller Memorial Lutheran Church, Ninth street and Maryland avenue northeast, were robbed of a total of $13 as they attended morning services. The money, distributed in small amounts in billfolds and handbags, was taken along with its containers.

The victims were Mrs. R. L. Walin, 408 Flower avenue, Takoma Park, who lost a black leather bag containing a Maryland driver's permit; Margaret Weber, 1216 Rhode Island avenue northeast, a black bag containing $5; Robert Ferguson, 1634 Fuller street northwest, a billfold containing an operator's permit; Helen Wertman, 529 Fifth street northeast, a maroon bag containing $1; Mrs. E. L. Weber, 4218 Thirty-seventh street northwest, a brown bag containing $1; Mrs. N. N. Cummings, 1516 Kearney street northeast, a brown bag containing a compact; Mary Rush, 649 Lexington place northeast, a blue bag containing $5; Ida Scheiter, 335 Kenilworth avenue southeast, a black bag containing $1.

Police were told two boys, about 12, were seen coming out of the choir room just before the loss of the pocketbooks was discovered.

Charles C. Guyn, 638 Lexington place northeast, reported his overcoat, valued at $35, was stolen from the Ninth Street Christian Church, Ninth and D streets northeast, early yesterday.

Mrs. Minnie Briggs, 2501 Calvert street northwest, reported theft of her handbag, containing $20, from a washroom in the Wardman Park Hotel.

Arthur Anderson, Kent, Ohio, a guest at the Continental Hotel, North Capitol and D streets, reported theft of khaki bag, containing clothing valued at $16, from his parked automobile at D street and New Jersey avenue northwest.

Democratic League Will Meet Wednesday

The first meeting of the season will be held by the National Democratic League of Washington Wednesday at 8 p. m. at the Racquet Club.

Guest speakers will be Representative Jennings Randolph, of West Virginia; George W. Offutt, former president of the Board of Trade, and Representative Steagall, chairman of the House Banking and Finance Committee.

District Milk Price Higher Than in Pact

Costs 13 Cents Here; Other Areas, 8 to 12, A. A. A. Reports.

Virginia-Maryland Mart Agreement Pending in Department.

Prices for milk under ten marketing agreements now in force are still well under the price charged by Washington dairies, it was revealed yesterday in an analysis made by economists in the office of Dr. Frederic C. Howe, consumers' counsel of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Consumers in the ten areas covered by the marketing agreements approved by the A. A. A. pay from 8 to 12 cents a quart for standard milk, whereas, the price in the District for the same grade is 13 cents.

A proposed agreement, submitted by the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association, is now pending before the A. A. A.

Variations corresponding to the retail price range are shown in the prices received by producers for milk delivered at the city plants, the analysis reveals.

Under none of the agreements are there differentials between the price of milk delivered at the house and that of milk sold at cash and carry stores.

St. Paul and Minneapolis have the lowest price to consumers of any of the 10 milk sheds. It is 8 cents. Under the New Orleans agreement, the consumer may be charged a maximum of 12 cents or a minimum of 11 cents.

Dr. Howe called especial attention to the "marked contrast" between the prices paid by the distributors for the manufacturing milk and the retail prices at which the dairy products have been offered to the consuming public."

The manufacturing milk prices given the farmer, he added, "have dropped sharply since 1929, in comparison to the retail prices for the consumer."

Hit by Auto, Man Dies In Freedman's Hospital

A colored man, whose identity was tentatively established as James Beverly, died yesterday at Freedman's Hospital of injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile driven by Roscoe Ward, 1544 Eighth street northwest, at Seventh street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest last Wednesday.

Police were told Beverly became dazed and walked into Ward's automobile.

Chute Drops Him In Sty; He Smiles

Jumper With One Arm, One Leg, Startles Pigs.

The life of a parachute jumper is full of the unexpected.

Capt. Smiles O'Timmons, one-armed, one-legged stunt artist, had a practical example yesterday in his 2,900-foot leap from an airplane over Washington Airport.

O'Timmons has landed in trees. He has landed in brambles and he has landed in icy water. But yesterday he landed in an Arlington County, Va., pig sty.

Thousands watched his descent to earth. Parachute and all disappeared behind a low ridge. A few minutes later he was found, still smiling, in the middle of a back yard pig sty.

Quarrel in Speakeasy Provokes Gang Attack

Dennis Lyons, 32, 1028 Connecticut avenue northwest, was taken to Emergency Hospital early yesterday suffering from severe bruises on his face and jaw. Several of his teeth also had been knocked out, physicians said.

Lyons told police he was attacked by several men, who leaped from an automobile, at Twenty-first and P streets northwest. He said he had quarreled with them in a speakeasy.

Woman Severely Burned When Overcome by Gas

Mrs. Ethel Hall, 30, was severely burned yesterday, when she was overcome by illuminating gas and fell against a hot pipe in the kitchen of her apartment, Thirteenth and M streets northwest.

Mrs. Hall was preparing dinner. Fumes from a gas stove filled the room. She collapsed against the pipe, severely burning her arms. She was taken to Emergency Hospital.

Hitler, Fascism Rapped At Socialists' Meeting

Hitlerism and Fascism were scored as forms of government by three speakers yesterday afternoon in a meeting called to protest activities of the two nations. The boycott was advocated as a means of reprisal.

The meeting, held in the Typographical Temple, 423 G street northwest, was called by the District Socialist party. Speakers were Edward Russell, liberal writer and speaker; James O'Neal, of New York, editor of the New Leader, and Marx Lewis, local attorney.

Banking Holiday Just an Empty Phrase to Students' Institutions in D. C. High Schools

Italians Hear Patriotic Plea By Papal Envoy

Archbishop Cicognani at High Mass Here Urges Loyalty to U. S.

Urging his Italo-American listeners to be loyal to their adopted country, Archbishop Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate to the United States, yesterday imparted to Catholic residents of Washington the apostolic blessing.

Speaking under auspices of the Lido Civic Club at the Holy Rosary Church, Archbishop Cicognani was assisted by Mgr. E. Vagnizzi and the Rev. G. Guilfoyle, of the apostolic delegation, and by the Rev. Francis E. Lardone, of Catholic University, as priest.

The Rev. Nicholas de Carlo, pastor of the church, was the celebrant of the solemn high mass with the assistance of the Rev. Pietro Pinci, deacon, and the Rev. Augusto Pinci, of Trinity Seminary, subdeacon. Master of ceremonies was the Rev. M. Mardone.

Marquis Pasquale Diana, charge d'affaires, and Commander Paolo Sbernadorim, military attache of the Italian Embassy, attended as representatives of local Italian societies. Following the mass a reception was held in the lower church where members of the Lido Club were presented to the apostolic delegate by the president of the club, Dr. Raphael N. Manganaro.

Catholic U. Freshmen Join Engineer Society

Seven Washington freshmen in the engineering school of Catholic University have been taken into the university chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers, it was announced yesterday.

The men are Maurice J. Dufficy, Thomas I. Herlihy, William L. Hughes, Charles D. Johnson, Joseph P. McGettigen and Joseph Parkhill. Wallace A. Bruder, president of the university, received them into the organization.

Clean House

Roosevelts Shift Things About at Mansion.

Striking rearrangements and shifting of furniture at the White House in the Presidential living quarters, revealing bright colors and a liking for books, show that even the Nation's first family must yield to fall house cleaning.

A high mahogany Dutch dresser in the living room has given way to book shelves lined with current fiction, biography, history, animal stories and political works. Two long davenports have been added and a huge mahogany dining table replaces a long console table which formerly stood near the triple windows overlooking the west terrace.

President Roosevelt's beloved ship models and ornaments on tops of cases lining the walls of the long corridor have all been rearranged. Most books retain their bright outer paper coverings.

Cash Paid and Received All During Emergency Last March.

Four Units Operated Here Under Board of Education.

Bank moratoria may come, depressions may go, but Washington's high school banks probably will go on forever.

During those tense March days when every bank in the city was closed, more than one parent borrowed money from son and daughter—because high school banks remained open.

Being under the supervision of the Board of Education instead of the Treasury Department, the school banks did not have to obey any Government edict. And the Board of Education did not choose to close them. So they continued to pay out money, and continued to take it in.

Since the moratorium, during the closed bank epidemic, high school students have been able to enjoy their banking privilege.

Survive Few Reverses.

The school banks have suffered some set-backs, as the funds are kept in regular city banks. But those in charge of the school banks were wise enough to distribute deposits among various institutions. Consequently, when banks reopened after the moratorium sufficient funds were available to accommodate students.

During the moratorium the school banks had sufficient sums on hand to meet student demands. Athletic, drama and other school activity funds have been used to protect the young depositors. School officials realized that if students were compelled to suffer losses the main purpose of school banks—encouraging thrift and building up respect for the sound financial houses of the Nation—would be defeated.

Banks are operated in four of the five white high schools—Roosevelt, Central, McKinley and Eastern. Western does not have a bank. The banks at Roosevelt is a descendant of the first high school bank, one established at Business High School by Allan Davis, principal of Roosevelt, formerly Business, and Charles Hart, now principal of Eastern.

Officers of Banks.

Officers and members of the Roosevelt bank are: Harold Savage, president; Ida Cozuzzi, vice president; Helen Connor, cashier; Caroline Donnelly, secretary to the manager; Elinor Hopping, secretary to the president; Wesley White, treasurer; Harold Tabler, head bookkeeper; Naomi Carver, John Saur, William Gerhard, and Mildred Anderson, assistant bookkeepers, and Andrew Bowen, runner.

Central High bank officers are: Martha Bingham, president; Miriam Pincus, vice president; Carl Kusenberg, cashier, and Irving Miller, auditor. Frank Miller is manager of a branch of the bank, located opposite the school lunchroom.

Chest Plea Sent U. S. Workers, Points to Jobs

Col. U. S. Grant 3d Seeks Funds From 80,000 Employes.

Pointing out that Government workers, in spite of salary cuts, still have jobs, Col. U. S. Grant 3d, yesterday appealed to them to give their quota to the Community Chest.

Col. Grant, as chairman of the governmental unit of the Chest drive, issued his appeal in a pamphlet to be distributed to 80,000 or more Government workers.

"The amount which the governmental unit is expected to raise has been reduced by your committee to correspond to the aggregate reduction in the Government pay rolls, and this includes all the reductions and losses you have suffered. Am I wrong in expecting that you will give proportionately fully as much as in the past, and in view of the urgency of the need, even more?" the message says.

Col. Grant also pointed out that Chest salaries have been "ruthlessly pared down" and economies instituted. The campaign costs have been cut more than 5 per cent, he said. Immediate relief, a minimum of food and shelter to sustain life, is being provided from public funds, but the problems of keeping the poor from utter desolation is still left to the Chest, he declared.

The get-together and instruction dinner of the Group Solicitation Unit will be held tonight at the Raleigh Hotel. Walter B. Clarkson, chairman, will preside. Speakers will be Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, Frank J. Hogan, attorney and chairman of the general campaign committee, and H. L. Rust, jr., vice chairman of the campaign committee.

Press Women Drop Dinner.

Dinner has been dropped from the schedule of the monthly meeting of the Women's National Press Club at the Willard Hotel tomorrow "because many of the members wish to economize." The purely business meeting will begin at 7:30.

Judge Sellers Will Retain Child Court

Veteran Jurist to Stay Until Senate Acts on Successor.

Withholding of Salary Improbable, Legal Observers Hold.

Judge Kathryn Sellers, veteran Juvenile Court jurist, will remain at her post until the Senate confirms the appointment of Miss Fay L. Bentley or another nominee, it was indicated yesterday.

Two weeks have passed since Judge Sellers challenged the Presidential appointee to take the oath of office and asked District officials to obtain a ruling from the controller general on her right to continue drawing the salary as juvenile judge.

Legal observers yesterday expressed the opinion that the controller general's action denying the salary of Federal Trade Commissioner to William E. Humphrey would not apply to the Sellers-Bentley case as the District code states that the juvenile judge can not be removed without specific cause.

Removal Issues Differ.

The controller general held that such an explanation was not necessary in the removal of the Federal Trade Commissioner.

Judge Sellers' opinion that the law also states she can not be replaced until her successor is "nominated and confirmed" by the Senate also has gone unchallenged, although the Justice Department has told Miss Bentley she might take the oath of office at once.

Miss Bentley at first announced that she would assume the judgeship immediately and relinquish her post as school attendance officer, but she changed her mind and has had nothing further to say regarding when she might assume the new office.

District Officials Silent.

District officials have done nothing since receiving Judge Sellers' request for a Comptroller General's ruling, and they refused yesterday to discuss the case. Meanwhile, however, the salary of Judge Sellers will continue until her successor takes the oath of office according to Auditor Daniel J. Donovan.

All parties concerned appear to be awaiting further word from the White House, but the President has so far given no indication that he would oust Judge Sellers as he did Humphrey.

Senator William H. King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, has announced that he would oppose Miss Bentley's confirmation on the ground that she is a Republican.

3 Youths and Girl Reported Missing

Relatives Enlist Police Aid in Thear Searches.

Three youths and a girl were reported missing to police yesterday.

Edwin L. Murray, 5721 Ninth street northwest, asked police to help him find his sister, Elizabeth, 15. She has curly hair and blue eyes, and when last seen was wearing a light tan coat.

Carlton C. Hooker, 13, of 1211 Morse street northeast, and Wiley Blackwell, 17, of 1149 Neal street northeast, are sought by Hooker's mother, Mrs. Gladys Hooker. Police were informed the youths left early yesterday for Virginia, with a shotgun in a case.

George Shaeffer, 606 Tenth street southwest, yesterday requested police to keep a lookout for his brother, Charles W. Shaeffer, 21, employed at a chain grocery store at Seventh and O streets northwest. Shaeffer disappeared shortly after midnight yesterday in a small sedan. He was wearing a black lumber jacket, his brother said.

H Street Clothing Store Yields Loot Worth $100

A burglar lowered himself through the skylight of William Levy's clothing store, 510 H street northeast, and stole merchandise valued at $100 yesterday.

The loot consisted of shoes and about 90 pairs of women's silk hosiery. The robber tried to force the safe, but failed, Levy told police.

Runyan's 211 Wins National Capital Open from Kozak by One Stroke

Al Houghton In Tie for 3d Place

New Champion Plays Safe After His 69 in Morning Play.

Horton Smith Fails to Get in Money; Wood Wilts Near End.

PLAYING his shots as if drawn by some invisible string, Paul Runyan, 25-year-old professional from the Metropolis Club, White Plains, N. Y., turned in a 54-hole total of 211 yesterday at the Kenwood course to win the National Capital Open golf championship by a margin of 1 stroke.

Adding a brilliant 69—72 to his opening day score of 70, the steady plodding little fellow who was born and reared in Little Rock, Ark., nosed out Walter Kozak, 24-year-old Flushing, Long Island, pro for the first prize money of $600 after a most dramatic battle.

Pacesetter on Saturday, Runyan maintained his lead throughout the final 36 holes, topping the Polish star, Kozak, by 3 strokes at the end of the morning round.

Sets Record for Event.

"Little Poison," as Runyan is often referred to, played magnificently from tee to green, as the largest gallery of the day followed him around the course and applauded shot after shot. Runyan's 211—a new record for the National Capital Open—represented only one over par figures for the 54 holes, although the new champion, who succeeds Horton Smith, the Joplin Ghost, might have been 2 shots lower had it not been for a muffed 18-inch putt on the fifty-third green and a weird drive on the eighteenth that found the rough, forcing him to finish 4—5 instead of 3—4.

Kozak, who has been a prominent contender in winter golf tournaments, finished with 74—68—70—212, and took down second prize money of $400.

Four strokes back came Al Houghton, the host pro, who shot a par-equaling 70 on his final 18-hole round to finish with 216, to tie with Al Watrous, of Birmingham, Mich. Houghton and Watrous split third prize money, each receiving $250.

Klein Has 217 Card.

Willie Klein, seasoned campaigner from Wheatley, N. Y., maintained the even tenor of his golfing, scoring a 71—73 to finish with 217, and win $150. Johnny Revolta, Menominee, Mich., youngster, and Billy Burke, 1931 open champion, tied for sixth with 218 totals, each taking $87.50.

Tied at 219 for eighth place were Tommy Armour, former British, American and Canadian open champion; Joe Kirkwood, trick shot artist; Mike Turnesa, of Elmsford, N. Y., and Clarence Clark, of Bloomfield, N. J., each won $50.

Bobby Cruickshank, Richmond, Va.; Jimmy Hines, Timber Point, N. Y.; Tony Manero, Greensboro, N. C., and Joe Turnesa, who finished with a spectacular 69, tied for twelfth place.

The two amateur winners were Chandler Harper, of Portsmouth, Va., who shot 229, and Art Lynch, of New York, who was two shots behind the lanky Virginian.

The fairways of Kenwood last night were littered with the wreckage of many a National golf star. There was Horton Smith, defending title holder, who blazed away for a 68 on the final 18, after skyrocketing to 80 in the morning. The Missourian's brilliant third round, however, was not enough to erase his erratic second round, and he wound up with 224, 4 shots out of the money.

Shute Has His Troubles.

Fate was unkind to Denny Shute, of Philadelphia, British Open champion, whose 38—32—70 in the morning put him back in the running with 145. Shute struggled hopelessly in the afternoon, wandering all over the course in 77 strokes. Shute's 32 was a great exhibition, being 4 under par, the lowest nine holes of the competition.

Perhaps the biggest disappoint-

John Public Rubs Shoulders With Elite at Kenwood Golf

JOHN Q. PUBLIC rubbed shoulders with the elite and nasal vowels cut sharply through broad "A's" as Indian summer lured Washington to the finals of the National Capital Open at Kenwood yesterday in the most colorful turnout to clamber in and around local sandtraps this season. The gallery glowed like a prism and the contestants irradiated right back at it in a manner that made it difficult to determine which was the more colorful.

A queenly, gray-haired matron peers disdainfully through a lorgnette at one of the competing pros, who starts at the bottom with tan sports shoes and works up to a baby-blue beret climax through green socks, yellow knickers, a cerise sweater, orange shirt and red necktie. An elderly gentleman, submerged in broad plus-fours, whose legs are protected by fawn-colored spats that reach almost to the knee, sticks one of those trick canes in the ground, unfolds the gadget on top of it into a precarious seat and settles himself to watch the antics of Nick Altrock—playing golf for his own amusement and that of the gallery.

Mad Rush of Gallery.

The spectators, who have started out following this hero and that hero, gradually coagulate into an almost solid mass around the Paul Runyan-Al Watrous-Craig Wood match. They pack layers deep behind each tee and string up both sides of the fairway for several hundred yards. Every time the trio of participants leaves the tee, it is preceded by a mad rush of galloping humanity intent on getting a vantage point for the next shot by beating the soldiers with their bamboo poles to the scene. After the inevitable golf-unconscious have been shooed off the fairway, the pros shoot and the stampede starts all over again.

Runyan reaches the final green with 209, and he must use under three putts to beat Walter Kozak, who has already posted 212 and is waiting to see what happens. "Little Poison" sights his 12-foot putt very carefully, removes every insignificant obstacle from the line—and then very nonchalantly taps the ball to within a foot of the pin. He sinks the short one, waves his hat in response to a 3,000-throated cheer and walks over to bestow a husbandly peck on the cheek of his diminutive wife. A photographer asks them to do it over again for a picture, his camera fails to click—and they have to repeat the performance a third time.

Walter Kozak, to whom Runyan's two putts meant $200—the difference between the $600 first-place money and the runner-up's share—joins the congratulatory group around the new National Capital Open champion, and winner and second-best retire to the bar in the locker room. Runyan orders beer for the No. 2 golfer of the tournament, but not for himself.

Drinks Glass of Milk.

"Okay, then Paul, have a glass of milk on me," invites Kozak, and Runyan does.

Photographers who have trailed them into the locker room pose them in this position, and then until one by one, the supplies of bulbs depleted, they fold their cameras and vanish silently into the fresh air. Runyan goes to his locker to change clothes and is half out of one sock when a stray picture-snapper spies him and asks him to come back to pose in a group. The winner obligingly dons his shoes and goes with him. The photographer apologizes for having disturbed him, but explains he has to get the picture.

"That's all right, perfectly all right," smiles "Little Poison," "it's good stuff for you—and good stuff for me."

He's that kind of a golfer.

Perry B. Van Vleck Is Winner Of Postilion Football Contest

Perry B. Van Vleck, 1418 W street northwest, the winner of last week's Postilion football contest, can no longer play football, but he can certainly predict the outcome of grid battles. Four years ago, while playing with a local sandlot eleven Van Vleck received a broken back, from which he has recovered to all outward purposes, but not enough to withstand the ravages of red hot grid struggles. Out of a possible 39 he forecast correctly the outcome of 34 games—the highest average yet set in a Postilion grid contest. For his successful glimpse into the future he will receive four tickets to the George Washington-Tulsa game at Griffith Stadium Friday.

Stephen J. Garrity, 4604 Eighth street northwest, was second with 33 accurate predictions, for which he will receive three tickets to the same game. Third, fourth, fifth and sixth prizes of two tickets each were won by O. J. Palmer, 14 New York avenue northwest; R. Walton Lauck, 1929 Kenyon street northwest; Octavius D. Polk, 912 Westminster street northwest and Moir Fulks, 311 W. Montgomery avenue, Rockville, Md. Each had early entries in with 32 games called right.

The Postilion Football contest will be continued this week with full details and a chart of games elsewhere on the sport pages.

4 Ex-Davis Cup Stars Bow at Japanese Nets

Osaka, Japan, Nov. 12 (AP).—Four of Japan's former Davis Cup tennis stars, including Jiro Sato, ace of the 1933 team, were eliminated in the quarter-finals of the national tennis championships today. But the sensational emergence of new stars indicated that Japan will have a wealth of material from which to draw its 1934 team.

Jiro Fujikura, a student at Meiji University, Tokyo, eliminated Jiro Sato by scores of 6—2, 7—5, 6—1, 6—1. Eikichi Ito, another member of the 1933 team; Hyotaro Sato and Takao Kuwabara, who had played on previous teams, also were beaten.

The only former Davis Cup player to reach the semifinals was Ryosuke Nunoi. The other semifinalists are Jiro Yamagishi and Hideo Nishimura, both students at Keio University, Tokyo.

Post to Give Army-Navy Seats To Postilion Contest Winners

Highly gratified by the response that has greeted The Postilion Football Contest, The Post today announces as the prizes to the winners of the fourth of the weekly contests nine choice seats to the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia one week from Saturday.

Thus fans competing in the current contest will have the added incentive of an opportunity to obtain absolutely free two, three or four seats to the outstanding classic of college football.

The Postilion Contest is based on 40 of next Saturday's games, selected from the schedule by Shirley L. Povich, Sports Editor of The Post. It is being presented in conjunction with The Postilion's daily broadcast over Station WMAL by Harris B. Hull.

Each fan is invited to test his own prowess as a football expert by selecting the winners. To the fan selecting the greatest number of winning teams, The Post will award four choice seats to the Army-Navy game. Three choice seats will be presented the second-place contestant and two choice seats will go to the third-place entry.

The coupon below is for your convenience, although it is not necessary to use The Post chart. In the left-hand column, headed "Your Selection," fans are invited to submit their scores. On Saturday night The Postilion announcer will broadcast the results in the same order. The "Result" column provides you with a convenient form on which to record the final scores as they are broadcast.

Each fan is limited to one entry. Priority of receipts will govern in case of ties.

Nott Displayed Fine Points Of Passing

Give Detroit U. Edge Over C. U. Team; Plotnicki Play Outstanding.

THE glittering press notices that heralded the advent of Doug Nott, Detroit U. half back, were not merely publicity ballyhoo, as most of the fans, and Catholic University, thou[illegible] Nott was everything his publicity agent claimed for him in the passing game as the Cards discovered to their dismay, Saturday. His kicking and ball carrying ability are horses of another color, but that boy could toss the leather.

Just as Beattie Feathers, of Tennessee, had given the taxpayers—and those who got in free—a neat lesson in the art of kicking the week before, so Nott demonstrated the finer points of passing. He threw long ones down the sidelines and short ones into the flat zone, accurately enought to blacken the eye on a Buffalo nickel.

Too Many Detroit Aerials.

Catholic had prepared for some passes, but when the Detroit boys decided to do nothing else the local crew was caught flatfooted. It was a wide open battle, 42 passes in all sailing through the ozone, and anything could happen. But most of the action was around C. U.'s goal line and that hurt the Cardinals' pride and their winning percentage.

The local chapter of kibitzers who occupy the press box couldn't understand why Charley McVean wasn't aiming for the coffin corner on those long kicks of his. Three times in the third period McVean kicked from beyond midfield into the end zone. An outside kick, or punts high enough to allow the ends sufficient time to get down under them, would have accomplished more for the C. U. cause. Nott, who

Seven Major Elevens in U. S. Race

Oregon, Michigan, Duke, Army, Nebraska, Ga., Princeton Remain.

Trojans' Defeat Is Chief Blow of Week-End; Georgia Shines.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (AP).—Football's king is dead, but it will take some intensive scouting around before a successor, fortunate enough to deserve general recognition, is found.

The defeat of Southern California by Stanford's Cardinals yesterday definitely removed the Trojans from the mythical national throne they have occupied for two years and left seven major teams eligible for the royal purple.

The remaining games on the slate may very well settle to everyone's satisfaction whether the new ruler of American football shall be Oregon, Michigan, Army, Nebraska, Georgia, Duke or Princeton. All are unbeaten and untied at the moment, but, with the possible exception of Duke, all likewise are in imminent danger.

Oregon to the Fore.

Although Southern California has failed, the Far West has a dangerous contender in Oregon. The Webfoots, provided they conquer Southern California this week, will clinch the Pacific Coast Conference title beyond dispute and probably be the Far Western representative in the Rose Bowl game at Pasadena. If they follow a triumph over the Trojans with another over the St. Mary's Gaels the following week, their claims to the national title will be certainly as good as any rival's and better than most.

Michigan, looking toward another Big Ten championship, still has Minnesota and Northwestern to face while Nebraska, Big Six king, must tackle Pitt and Iowa yet. Army, after a "breather" with Penn Military, finds Navy and Notre Dame in the way leading to a perfect season while Princeton still must get by Navy, Rutgers and Yale. Georgia, leading Southeastern Conference contender, has engagements with Auburn, Georgia Tech and Southern California still to be filled while Duke, Southern Conference power, finds North Carolina, North Carolina State and Georgia Tech the hurdles it still must take.

Continue Their March.

All of them continued their championship march yesterday, but only Duke and Army could chalk up really decivise victories. The Blue Devil outfit Wallace Wade has developed at Duke rolled over Maryland, 38-7, while Army, after a shaky start, trounced Harvard, 27-0, in another fine exhibition by the Cadets' hard-bitten line and their fast backs headed by Jack Buckler and Paul Johnson.

Achieving a feat no other college but Harvard ever has done in the past, Georgia Tech, with the fleet pony back, Homer Key, leading the way, spilled Yale, 7-0, for its fourth successive victory over the Elis. Yale, nevertheless, played a highly creditable game and more than held its own in the second half.

With Southern California's defeat, Oregon became the only undefeated team in the Pacific Coast Conference by taking Oregon State, previously unbeaten, over the hurdles, 13-3. A monster crowd of 90,000 saw Stanford whip Southern California, 13-7, with two placement field goals by Bill Corbus providing the Cardinals with their winning margin in the last five minutes of the game. It was the Trojans' first defeat in 28 successive contests, although a scoreless tie with Oregon

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

Monday Morning Quarter Back.

THE chief casualty among Saturday's wreckage is the Southern California Trojans who no longer are concerned with whom they will meet in the Rose Bowl game. Stanford removed their worries, booting them out of the picture with two field goals. Rose Bowl authorities, however, are still going to invite the Trojans—going to invite them to watch Oregon meet the Eastern invader.

Stanford today is wiping away the tears it shed when Pop Warner packed his belongings and moved to Temple with a $25,000 contract. While on the subject, it is both meet and proper to note that Warner's Temple team has already lost two games this season and is feared about as much as Red Riding Hood.

Catholic University is still wondering what struck it. The Cardinals stopped the Detroit runners dead, slammed through the Detroit line for long gains and still took a 26-0 beating. If the next war is fought through the air, the U. S. has a swell nucleus in the Detroit Escadrille. C. U.'s antiaircraft defense was no more potent than a popgun. It was Nott so good for C. U. when Doug Nott started throwing those passes.

Maryland was outplayed, outgained and outweighed in the battle with Duke. Wallace Wade's team had one eye on Maryland and the other on the Rose Bowl as it ran up that 38-to-7 score at College Park.

Navy met the Columbia Lions and couldn't bring 'em back alive—or dead. The beauty of Navy's football campaign is that all of these things can be so easily and joyfully forgotten if it can beat the Army—if it can beat the Army.

West Point goes marching on toward an undefeated and untied season. It turned Jack Buckler loose against Harvard and a 27-to-0 victory was the result. When they start naming All-Americans, Abou Ben Adhem will have had nothing on Jack Buckler.

Princeton's Sophomores received the scare of their young lives before they were able to push over the touchdown in the third period that beat Dartmouth, 7 to 0.

There was a deal of balm for Notre Dame adherents despite the fact that the Irish lost their fourth straight game and went scoreless for the fourth straight Saturday. Their conqueror was Purdue, coached by Nobel Kizer, a disciple of Knute Rockne, who has installed the Notre Dame system at Purdue.

The final whistle last Friday night was like manna from heaven to those George Washington coaches on the sidelines who were watching Washington and Jefferson outplay the Colonials throughout the last half when George Washington was protecting a 7-point lead. That deceptive Washington and Jefferson attack might not have been so deceptive had not the visitors insisted on using the regulation brown ball, which harmonized perfectly with the russet color of their uniforms.

The white ball can not be used for night games unless the consent of both teams is obtained, and Washington and Jefferson exercised its prerogative to the limit.

McCarver, Barred G. W. Gridder, Coaching at Western In Absence of Ahearn

Former Star Keeps Boys On Edge

Team Will Play Central in Important Series Game Tomorrow.

IT was disclosed last night that Edward "Nig" McCarver is coaching the Western High School football team. The former George Washington backfield flash is batting for, or rather coaching for Dan Ahearn, the tall jovial blonde-haired grid mentor of Western who has been away from the school due to a death in his family.

McCarver was a member of the Colonial trio which figured in the eleventh hour shapeup before the Tennessee game ten days ago when it was learned, through a technicality of the college eligibility code that Baker, Pearse and McCarver had to be withdrawn from the George Washington lineup.

One of G. W.'s Greatest.

That "Nig" was one of the greatest back field stars in George Washington gridiron history can not be denied. The accounts of his intrepidity recorded in various manuals and the press attested to his prowess.

McCarver will complete his course in June of next year in the School of Physical Education; his laboratory work consists for the most part of practice teaching. Thus he drew as his assignment Western High.

Continue Fast Pace.

In their several days under the tutelege of McCarver, the Western gridmen have taken a liking to "Nig" and have continued the fast pace assigned them by Ahearn.

Western plays Central tomorrow afternoon in a game that will have an important bearing on the high school championship race, and a victory for Western would be quite a feather in its collective bonnet—and an even larger feather in "Nig" McCarver's.

Passing of Nott Thrilled D. C. Fans

also did the booting for the visitors. wasn't nearly as good as McVean. but he accomplished more kicking 'em were they weren't, and not over the goal line.

Card Line Shows Class.

The redeeming feature of C. U.'s play was the stellar work of the line. The forward wall was weakened considerably by the loss of Phil Gross, who after spending the week in the headlines was knocked cold on the first play. But even with Gross missing the line looked good—so good that Detroit didn't go the length of the field on the ground throughout the afternoon. Little Eddie White, the roving center, played a whale of a game, as did Tom Nally. Ed Conter and quick-thinking Jim Lyons.

George Washington's triumph over Washington and Jefferson, which was much closer than that 13-7 score would lead you to believe, was a personal triumph for Ben Plotnicki, the scowling youngster from South Bend, Ind. Baker's departure from the squad left it with one alleged quarter back, Plotnicki, a frightened youngster who has been happily content to serve in relief roles heretofore.

Just before the team trotted out on the field, Coach Pixlee called him aside and instructed him to do just as he pleased in the game and nothing would be said if things went wrong. In Pixlee's own words:

"It's your ball game. You can win it or lose it."

Plotnicki Plugs Hole.

Plotnicki won it—with the help of some fantastic ball running by Chris Doose and Finis Parrish. Parrish, incidentally, is the forgotten man of the Colonial back field. Because of his effectiveness in blocking, Parrish never before had been called upon to run the ball, so it was rather surprising to see him swerve around Washington and Jefferson's ends for consistent gains. Now that there is a scarcity of backs, Finis will lug the pigskin at frequent intervals.

Al Ercius, Washington and Jefferson's scintillating end, was a one-man show out there on the frozen turf. Ercius kicked, ran and passed as well as the average half back. On the defense, he possessed the uncanny knack of diagnosing the play, and usually was on the bottom of the heap of every pile-up. Ercius was accorded honorable mention on the all-American last season, and he should be even higher this year.

A clever and well drilled Duke eleven that is destined to wear the Southern Conference crown this autumn, proved itself too classy for the fighting Maryland aggregation, and inflicted a fifth straight defeat upon the Old Liners. But Maryland was in the game much more than the score would indicate.

Breaks Against Maryland.

A fumble with the goal-line only six yards away and an untimely blast from the timekeepers whistle, with only two yards to go for a touchdown, signalling the end of the first half, prevented the Terps from scoring more than the one six-pointer that was credited to them.

Maryland is suffering from too many sophomores in the regular line-up at the moment, but by the time 1934 has rolled around these same sophs will be experienced men and very much in demand. Watch the Terps' smoke then.

Georgetown and Gallaudet enjoyed an offday Saturday, but they needed it in view of the fact that Carnegie Tech is coming here to battle the Hoyas this week-end, and Gallaudet will be playing host to Shepherd. The Colonials entertain Tulsa Friday night in the stadium.

Meridians Defeat Mercurys, 18 to 0

Vernon Intercepts Pass for 92-Yard Score.

Spectacular long runs resulted in some of the best football seen yesterday as the Meridian 150-pound team stamped out an 18-0 victory over the Mercury unlimiteds in a hard-fought, nonleague contest. The first big thrill of the contest came when George Watson, of the Meridians, ran 65 yards to cross the goal line.

The most exciting play occurred when P. Vernon intercepted a pass on his own 8-yard line and galloped 92 yards for a touchdown with the assistance of well-nigh perfect interference.

A. A. Directs Blow At 'Chain' System

Sets Time Limit on Clubs' Aid From Majors.

Kansas City, Nov. 12 (AP).—The American Association today directed a blow at the major leagues' chain store methods such as are utilized by the Milwaukee and Columbus clubs.

By a vote of 6 to 2, the association representatives set May 15 as the last date on which member clubs can acquire players during the 1934 season from their major league "patron saints."

Columbus, a chain store club of the St. Louis Cardinals of the National League, and Milwaukee, controlled by the St. Louis Browns of the American League, voted against the resolution. Columbia won the American Association pennant this past season and then went on to take the little world series title from the International League representative.

Scholastic Title Series to End Tomorrow

Central Can Clinch First Place by Victory Over Western.

TOMORROW afternoon on the Central Stadium turf, the red-jerseyed Western High School eleven and the blue clad Central High School gridsters will clash in the interhigh series final for 1933.

Just what is in store for the Reds on paper at the hands of the Blues is a three-touchdown win, which will give the Mount Pleasanters their first District public high bunting since 1920. Just what is in store for the Blues, not on paper, at the hands of the Reds, is a surprise thumping that will put off the Central championship clinching for another year, at least, according to the hyporadical Western rooters.

Kocsis, Central Star.

Central has Frank Kocsis, the bone-crushing dreadnaught of drive, with a forward wall in front of him to sweep aside the first line defense. Western has a wicked forward passing combination of Quarter Back Jimmy Corcoran to his ends and a forward line that comprises the heaviest tonnage in the local schools.

This afternoon Joe Gardner's Georgetown Preps entertain St. John's at Garrett Park, and aside from this game today and the interhigh series final tomorrow, all will be quiet until Friday.

The scholastic noise along the football battle front will emit from the Eastern-Gonzaga, and St. Alban's-Landon games.

7 Major Teams In U. S. Unbeaten

State earlier this season marred this remarkable record. Until yesterday no team had beaten the Trojans since St. Mary's Gaels topped them, 13-7, in Southern California's opening game of the 1931 campaign.

Princeton Is Winner.

Like Georgia, Princeton kept its record intact by the margin of one touchdown, the Tigers beating Dartmouth, 7-0, ae "Kats" Kadlic passed to Ken Fairman in the third period for the only score of a hard-fought battle.

Michigan had another tussle before two Wolverines could check Iowa, 10-6, while Nebraska, clinching the Big Six title for the third successive year and setting a new record in that respect, turned back Kansas, 12-0.

Otherwise the day's program was marked by another series of reverses for the East in intersectional warfare and two big upsets in the Southwest, where both leaders, Texas and Arkansas, were beaten.

Not only did the East's prestige suffer through the defeat of Yale, but Pennsylvania took a 20-to-7 beating from Ohio State and West Virginia a 25-to-6 trouncing from Wisconsin. Carnegie Tech's tie with Michigan State was the only credit mark for the Atlantic seaboard.

Baylor Beats Texas.

The Baylor Bears, who sprung an upset a week ago by stopping Texas Christian, added Texas to its victims, 3 to 0, as Aubrey Stringer booted a placement field goal from the 29-yard line in the last 30 seconds of play. Arkansas dropped a 7-to-6 decision to Rice which previously had won no conference games. Arkansas and Texas, however, remained in the lead as all their rivals have been beaten twice.

In the East, Duquesne's eight-game winning streak was halted by Pitt, 7 to 0, while Boston College, beating Villanova, 9 to 0, and Brown, stopping Syracuse, 10 to 7, with Bill Karaban in the hero role, provided the principal upsets. The difficulty with which Fordham achieved a 20-to-12 conquest of oft-beaten New York University likewise was a major surprise. Buzz Borries' 76-yard touchdown run was the only thing that kept Navy in the running at all against Columbia and the Lions went on to win, 14 to 7.

Purdue's Boilermakers handed the Irish of Notre Dame their fourth successive shutout, 19-0, scoring two of their touchdowns as a result of an intercepted pass and a Notre Dame fumble. Dave Cook's 22-yard field goal enabled Illinois to advance past Northwestern, 3-0, while Chicago and Indiana were battling to a 7-7 tie. Frank Caridedo's Missouri Tigers were overpowered again, this time by Oklahoma, 21-0, while Kansas State checked in with a 7-0 triumph over Iowa State.

Mississippi was eliminated from the list of Southeastern Conference contenders as Beatty Feathers and Tennessee romped to a 35-6 decision. Tulane, beating Mississippi State, 33-0; Vanderbilt, overcoming Sewanee, 27-14, and Georgia Tech, spilling Florida, 19-7, also hung up Conference victories, while Alabama and Kentucky took over Southern Conference rivals, Virginia Poly, 27-0, and Virginia Military, 21-6, respectively.

Walloping North Carolina State, 14 to 0, South Carolina finished its Southern Conference slate undefeated and untied. Washington and Lee stopping Virginia, 6 to 0, remained unbeaten in the conference along with Duke and North Carolina, but can not figure in the title chase because of a tie with Virginia Poly.

California's surprising 33-to-0 conquest of Washington and St. Mary's close call against Alonzo Stagg's College of Pacific eleven were among far Western features The Gaels won, 7 to 0, but Slip Madigan had to call on his first team to push over the touchdown.

Utah continued at the top of the Rocky Mountain heap, beating Colorado University, 13 to 6, while the Colorado Aggies, unbeaten but tied once, remained in the chase with a 3-to-0 victory over Utah Aggies.

British United In Soccer Triumph

Danae Sailors Bow, 4-1; Millers and Rosedale in Victories.

SHOWING a complete reversal of form over last Wednesday, the local British United eleven scored an impressive triumph over representatives of the English cruiser Danae, now docked at the Navy Yard, yesterday on the Monument Grounds. The Uniteds scored 4 goals to 1 accounted for by the sailors.

The locals dented the Tars' goal about 8 minutes after the start of the game. Johnny Malloch, playing in his same flashy manner, placed a nice shot in front of McLaren, who had little trouble in placing the sphere in the visitors' net.

The United kickers flashed up and down the field in a fashion that reminded old-timers of the early days of British teams here. The deceptive passing game that so befuddled the locals last Wednesday failed to register yesterday. The Danae kickers had lost none of their cunning, but the British United eleven was itself again after a lapse of five years.

Invaders Are Routed.

The Danae soccerists, West Indian fleet champions, were completely snowed under in the second half. Johnny Malloch, McLaren and the venerable, but capable Jack Turner, played rings around the sailors' defense and penetrated their goal three times. The match ended with the United eleven pressing hard.

Miller Furniture Co. had a difficult time in stopping the Takoma Park squad in the feature Recreation League game. Figured to win by four goals the Furniture men were lucky to gain the decision. Goals in the final ten minutes of play gave them the decision. Gorin starred at goal for the victors while Mason, Graham and Schnable were Takoma stars.

Rosedale did not have the walkaway with Virginia Avenue that it had planned, despite its 4-to-0 victory. Aquilino and Forney, of the losing combination, kept the Rosedale backs in a flutter all during the game. Brother Harding and Wilson were the Rosedale mainstays.

Totalisator Is Given Credit for Financial Success of Pilmico Race Meeting

Wagering Set Record for Autumn

$478,505 Handled on Saturday, High for Maryland Tracks.

Daily Average Is Best; Bowie Meeting Opens on Wednesday.

DESPITE some of the most adverse weather in the history of Maryland racing, the Pimlico meeting which closed yesterday was a financial success. Officials of the Hilltop Track would like to hoist the Totalisator onto their shoulders and parade it around the infield, for the electrical betting machine is given a large part of the credit for keeping the ancient course out of the red. The 10-day meeting was the first test for the "tote" in the East and it came through with flying colors. The first four days of the session brought fair weather and good crowds; otherwise, attendance was far below average except on the two Saturdays. Last week's rain and cold weather sliced the crowd, but strangely the wagering kept a high average.

Last Saturday's play set a record for the fall with $478,505 handled by the electric bookmaker. This topped the previous Saturday by some $60,000. The best Saturday for Havre de Grace was $455,000 and for Laurel $400,000.

High Daily Average.

Pimlico also had the best daily average of wagering recorded by the Maryland courses. Mortimer M. Mahony, manager of the parimutuel department, gave a figure of $311,000 as the daily average. Havre de Grace and Laurel handled in the neighborhood of $270,000 each day. Each track held two welfare days, however.

Throughout Maryland this fall, the day's final race has been the largest in amount wagered. Saturday, the pool on the feature race was $73,073 and the eighth race drew $74,167. The crowd was the largest of the meeting with 15,000 the estimate. More than 11,000 programs were sold.

The "tote," the invention of Henry L. Strauss, a Baltimorean, was put to a severe test. Due to the size of the crowd and eight-race program, the card was hustled along. The races were run between 1:29 and 4:30 o'clock, which was 11 minutes short of the usual half hour between races and the time included the interval when horses were at the post.

Starter Milton Works Fast.

Starter Jim Milton had a hand in the speed with which the program was concluded. He consumed exactly 18 minutes for the eight starts, which included 4½ minutes in the sixth race when Cloudet simply wouldn't listen to reason.

Jockey honors for the meeting resulted in a tie between Earl Porter and Lee Humphries. Each rode home on 10 winners.

Until Bowie opens with the first of two charity days on Wednesday, turf fans can look to only far-off Tanforan for action. The Prince Georges County plant is in readiness for the annual fall session. Joe Boyle and Tom Lynch, in charge, have been busy at the course for more than a week. As usual, Bowie will suffer from no lack of horses. The stakes listed for the two-week session will draw the best thoroughbreds in training. Claiming races will be of high order, due to the large number of platers available.

Radio station WUCG, smallest and busiest commercial radio broadcasting station in the United States, is located on top of a hangar at the municipal airport in Chicago. The station is housed in a tiny building. In its rooftop "studio" no orchestra could comfortably gather, and little known are its corps of announcers—yet it plays a vital part in aviation communications in and about the Chicago district.

The duty of the station is to contact airplanes in the vicinity, give directions, give weather conditions and carry on other communications with planes in flight and ground stations along the airways.

Its tubes glow night and day, and on a normally busy day it makes about 400 broadcasts—that is more than 17 an hour, or more than one every four minutes.

What is a "gendarme"? Strange as it seems, a gendarme is a soldier. He is a member of a special branch of the French army, and the units to which he belongs include both cavalry and infantry. From 1445 to the Revolution the gendarmes formed the most distinguished cavalry corps in the French army. Today the gendarmes are still army men, although their specialty is military police work—hence the common mistake of terming any French policeman a gendarme.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (AP).—Football, the professional kind, paid its debt to the late Maj. Frank Cavanaugh, war hero and college coach, as the New York Giants beat the Boston Red Skins, 7 to 0, before a crowd of 30,000 at the Polo Grounds in the first memorial game of its kind ever played.

The Giants won in the second quarter when Harry Newman, once Michigan's great passer, opened up with a flock of aerials and for the only time in the afternoon found his targets. He heaved one of 19 yards to Ray Flaherty after Ken Strong opened the scoring drive from his own 43 with a 10-yard burst through tackle. He ran 10 more himself, then faded back from the Boston 15 and whipped a line pass into the end zone.

Cliff Battles, Boston back, knocked the ball down, but as it was falling big "Bo" Molenda seized it, and sank over the goal with the only touchdown of the game.

The victory wiped out a previous 21-to-20 conquest Boston scored earlier this season, and established the Giants at the top of the Eastern division of the National Professional League with a record of 6 games won against 3 lost.

Impressive tribute was paid to the memory of Cavanaugh, former coach at Dartmouth, Holy Cross and Fordham, who died a few months ago from complications resulting from shell wounds suffered in France.

The "day" had been planned for Cavanaugh long before he died as a tribute to the man who developed Fordham's greatest elevens. He turned over the reins at the end of last year's campaign to Jimmy Crowley when his sight had failed almost to total blindness.

Family to Get $15,000.

He left no estate for his widow and seven minor children. So professional football, with which he was never connected, donated 40 per cent of today's receipts to the family of the "iron major." It was estimated Mrs. Cavanaugh would receive a sum in excess of $15,000.

Fraters Triumph Over Clancys, 6-0

McMenamin's Aerial to Allen Wins in Norfolk.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 12 (Spl.).—The Alexandria Fraters, 1932 Virginia independent football champions, conquered the Norfolk Clancy eleven here this afternoon, 6 to 0.

The Fraters scored in the third period after Bell, left end, had recovered a blocked punt on his 45-yard line and traveled to the Irish 20-yard stripe. Two line bucks failed, and then Big Les McMenamin tossed a pass to Allen over the line for a touchdown.

The Alexandrians threatened to score again in the final period, when Agner, Fraters' right end, intercepted a forward pass on the Clancy 35 and ran to the Irish 5-yard mark before being downed by Mike Cavish. Line plunges brought the ball to the 1-yard line, the next, a pass, was knocked down, and the final effort, a line plunge, failed, giving the ball to the Norfolkians, who punted out to their 11-yard line.

The Alexandrians lost 9 yards and elected to try a placement kick, but Bayliss' attempt fell short and the ball went to the Clancys. They marched down the field until Agner intercepted another pass as the Irish threatened within the Fraters' 20-yard line.

THE Maryland A. C. broke the three-cornered tie for first place in the unlimited division of the National Capital League yesterday by spanking the Seaman Gunners, 13 to 0, in the only game scheduled in this division. Benny Jenkins carried the ball from within the 10-yard line for both touchdowns, which were scored in the third and fourth periods.

Neither team was able to score in the first half, which found action largely concentrated in midfield. Maryland A. C. came out fighting in the second half and after a brief exchange of punts Eddie Dugan made a 30-yard pass to A. Hampton and a 30-yard run by Gene Byrd placed the ball on the Gunner's 3-yard line, from where Benny Jenkins went through left tackle for the first touchdown. Jenkins received a pass from Colliere for the extra point.

After a see-saw battle in midfield, with about five minutes to play in the final quarter, Gene Byrd made another 30-yard run from his own 45-yard line. A series of line bucks by Jenkins, Byrd and Radthe was climaxed when Jenkins finally plowed center for the last score.

In the 135-pound class, the Apache Preps triumphed over the Mercury Preps by virtue of a pass received by Whitely with but five minutes left to play. The Northeast Boys Club whitewashed the Georgetown Boys Club 27 to 0, and the Cleveland A. C. routed Palace, 20 to 7.

D. C. Passers in Tie With Irvingtons, 13-All

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 12 (Spl.).—The Washington Passers and the Baltimore Irvingtons battled to a 13-13 tie here this afternoon.

The Baltimore team got away to an early first-period lead when Ox Bordeau, former Georgetown star, plunged over for the score. However the Washington team came back in the second period to tie up the game when Jimmy Bankhead scored on a nice run.

The Irvingtons jumped into the lead again in the third period with Antos, left half back, scoring for the local eleven. But the Capital City eleven tied things up when Alenti scored and Bankhead booted the try for extra point.

Filipino Boxer Meets Burl Tomorrow

Milling Has Met and Defeated Many of Best Feathers in U. S.

VARIAS MILLING, colorful Filipino featherweight, who meets Eddie Burl in a 10-rounder at Portner's tomorrow, fights very much as did one of his fellow countrymen who scaled the heights as a flyweight—the late Pancho Villa. Strangely enough, their careers have run parallel at least once, in that they both campaigned for the same manager, the late Frank Churchill, who took over the guardianship of Milling after Villa died.

Churchill nursed the youngster along very carefully and was confident that he had a fitting successor to his great flyweight up until the day of his death. During the Churchill-managed period, Pete Reilly, who operates extensively in the East and Midwest as a manager and promoter, on a trip to the Pacific Coast saw Milling decisively defeat Young Tommy, regarded as an outstanding prospect. Greatly impressed by the Filipino flash, Reilly told him that if he ever parted ways with Churchill for any reason, to be sure and look him up in the East.

Have Recorded Upsets.

Shortly after Churchill took the final count, Varias Milling, accompanied by bag and baggage, deposited himself on Reilley's doorstep and was cordially received. Since that day Reilly has campaigned the Filipino club fighter in practically every State in the Union and the pair have turned in some remarkable upsets at the expense of highly regarded opposition. Milling created a furore last year by knocking out Earl Maestro, then considered the country's leading feather, in nine rounds. In New York he upset the vaunted Timmy Hayes in whirlwind fashion.

Eddie Burl, Milling's opposition, is much the same type of fighter. His campaigning has been concentrated largely in the South, where he has turned in some very creditable performances. His bouts here have stamped him as a confirmed in-and-outer, who fights well only if in top condition. Realizing the importance of this bout, he has trained faithfully and should be in the pink for tomorrow's contest.

Johnstone's 87 Wins Top Riders in France

Paris, Nov. 12 (U.P.).—At the close of the French racing season, it was announced officially today that William Johnstone, of Australia, was the champion jockey of the French turf for 1933 with 87 victories.

Andre Rabbe, of France, who was the 1932 champion, came second with 83 wins, and Guy Duforez was third with 81.

Mat Followers Due Variety Thursday

"Man Mountain" Dean to Face Komar; Dusek Battles Szabo.

FOR several years Kate Smith has been trying to get the moon over the mountain on the radio and next Thursday, on the Auditorium mat, one Bull Komar will take a fling at the task. In this case he will be the moon and the mountain will be a giant Georgia hillbilly who calls himself "Man Mountain" Dean. This bout will not be the feature, but it is attracting considerable attention among the rassle addicts who pay the freight via the box-office route.

As far as Komar is concerned he will be no more successful than has been Kate Smith for lo, these many years; that is, Komar has no chance unless the Man Mountain is a complete bust, for the name Bull is the only tough thing about Komar on the mat. The latter should prove to be a good foil for the Man Mountain, though, and their act should go over big.

We Shall Have Wrestling.

It will be up to the other boys on the card to furnish the real rassling, and Promoter Joe Turner has rounded up at least four good ones. Given the feature spot on the program are Sandor Szabo, the colorful Hungarian, and Ernie Dusek, the lisping, young brother of Rude Rudy. Both have had large following here in the past.

Sandor and Ernie are fast, fairly scientific and can be mighty rough on occasions. They appear to be mighty closely matched and one of those dog-eat-dog battles appears to be in the offing.

Jumping Joe Savoldi, who learned his rassling while playing on the Notre Dame football team, meets a young giant, Roland Kirchmeyer, in the semifinal, and this bout, too, offers considerable promise. Kirchmeyer, although 6 feet 7 inches in height, is quite fast on his feet and knows how to handle himself on the mat. Savoldi, who once earned a decision, which even the N. B. A. refused to believe, over Jim Londos, is a rough hombre who got along for a while with his flying tackle.

Recently, he has added another football touch to his work, earning several decisions on what he calls the "drop kick." This new "hold" was too raw for New York to tolerate and it has been banned there, but Jumping Joe can, and probably will, use it here.

Completing the card will be bouts bringing together Jack Sherry, a top-notcher, and Jack McArthur and Vic Christy and Bill Middlekauf, the reformed Florida U. gridman and boxer.

Virginia A. C. Defeats St. Rita's Eleven, 20-0

Alexandria, Va., Nov. 12 (Spl.).—The Virginia A. C. took the lead in the city series by defeating St. Rita's, 20 to 0, here today. Boran and Pullman led the Virginians' attack, while Kramer stood out on defense.

Morgan and Moss were the best bets for the Mount Ida aggregation.

Runyan Wins National Capital Open With 211

ment of the day was the failure of Craig Wood, Deal, N. J., heavyweight. He was tied with Al Watrous for second place on Saturday with 71. After 18 additional holes yesterday he was encamped in third place with Watrous and Willie Klein at 144. Playing with Runyan and Watrous, Wood, who piled up close to $7,000 in prize earnings last winter, folded up in the afternoon, as a rebellious putter forced him to miss putt after putt and was directly responsible for his 77. He finished with a 223 total.

Other stars whose games collapsed and who did not finish in the money were Willie MacFarlane, 1931 National Capital Open champion; Ralph Guldahl, runner-up to Johnny Goodman for the National Open this year; Tom Creavy, 1931 P. G. A. titleholder; Phil Perkins, former British amateur champion; Al Espinosa and Bill Melhorn.

Many Low Scores Made.

During the day's bombardment, par was broken three times and equaled seven times. In shooting 68's, Kozak and Smith tied Armour's competitive course record established during the 1931 National Capital Open.

Runyan fired his shots with such unerring accuracy that after he scored his 69 in the morning to assume a 3-stroke lead over Kozak it was a foregone conclusion that no one would catch him. He was sticking the ball dead to the pin, and it was just a matter of getting down his putts—and "Little Poison" was equal to the occasion. He had birdie 3's on the third, fourth and ninth, going out in 36. On the stretch, Runyan shot birdie 3's on the fourteenth, fifteenth and sixteenth, parred the seventeenth in 3, the eighteenth in 4, for a 33. Of the 18 holes, 9 were made in 3's.

The new champion committed only one error on the first nine of the afternoon, which he played in even par 34. On the 221-yard eighth he had a deuce staring him in the face, but blew a 4-footer, and took a 3. Runyan muffed a 2-footer on the short tenth for a 4, but became even with par by shooting a birdie 4 on the long twelfth after reaching the green in two wallops. His drive on the 382-yard fourteenth carried 320 yards, and Runyan just missed his birdie on this hole.

When Runyan reached the fifty-third hole, a 168-yarder, he was 3 shots ahead of Kozak, who came in earlier in the afternoon with a 70 for a 212 total. Here the drama was injected into the proceedings. With the championship dangling before him, Runyan played safely for the green, putted up to within 18 inches of the hole, and missed his putt for a 4.

When Runyan sliced his drive deep into heavy rough on the home hole, the situation appeared dark. A 4 or 5 meant victory. A 6 meant a tie. Runyan reached for an iron, came out masterfully, leaving himself a 50-yard pitch to the emerald target. His approach, carrying ample backspin, stopped 12 feet past the pin. Runyan putted up safely to within a foot of the cup, sank his putt for a 5, and won the championship by a one-shot margin.

Kozak did himself proud with his 34—34—68 and 34—36—70. Straight as an arrow virtually all day, Kozak was off the fairway only once, that time when he pushed his drive on the thirteenth of the afternoon round. As a climax to his spectacular shooting, Kozak nailed a 40-foot putt on the home green for his par 4, after being bunkered on his second.

The professional troupers left last night for Pinehurst, N. C., where they will compete in the Midsouth Open championship, beginning tomorrow. A number of District pros, headed by its kingpin, Al Houghton, will participate.

Radio Waves And Ripples

THIS is a story to show our efforts to instill an appreciation of those things we sometimes lump under the rather ambiguous term of culture may go further than we suspect.

Its setting was a WRC studio during rehearsal of the National Capital Cadet Band, an organization of children whose parents believe in the early development of music values.

It begins with the discovery by WRC Announcer Jim McGrath of two virtuosi, aged 7, in a determined fist battle behind a piano.

It ends, probably inconclusively, with the revelation to McGrath of the battle cause—the relative merits and importance as band instruments of the cornet and trombone.

Whitecaps.

WRC—Westminster Choir, N. B. C. Radio City celebration program, 2 p. m.: A. & P Gypsies, Tenor Frank Parker singing "Roses for Remembrance" and "When Shall We Meet Again" and Gypsies playing Padilla's "El Relicario," Brahms' "Hungarian Dance No. 2," ballet music from Massenet's opera "Le Cid" and a medley of Russian melodies, 9 p. m.; Tribute to Edwin Booth, drama with Otis Skinner, Walter Hampden, Katherine Cornell and others, another Radio City special, 11:30 p. m.

WMAL—National Congress of Parents and Teachers President Mrs. Hugh Bradford speaking from San Francisco on "What Radio Can Do for the Parents and Children in this Generation," 5:15 p. m.; Father Finn's Choral Music, 8:31 p. m.; Gen. Johnson, 10:30 p. m.

WJSV—Parade of Champions, "Puttin' on the Ritz" and "King for a Day" sung by Harry Richman, Vincent Lopez orchestra, 9:15 p. m.; Barytone Evan Evans in a half-hour program, "The Green-Eyed Dragon," Strauss' "Die Nacht," Wolfe's "De Glory Road," Bohm's "Calm as the Night," 10:45 p. m.; Boswell Sisters return, 11:15 p. m.

WOL—Vincent Lane, the Uncertain Barytone, 6:45 p. m.; Fay Fliedner, blues singer, 7:45 p. m.; Tenor Gilbert Frazier, ballad program, 8:15 p. m.

Columbia News Service, Inc., news-gathering agency of Columbia Broadcasting System, has asked Sam Bell, chairman of the standing committee of correspondents, to reconsider rejection of its application for House and Senate press gallery seats for its reporters.

In a letter to Bell, C. B. S. Vice President Bellows suggested a meeting of Columbia minds, Speaker Rainey, Senate Rules Committee Chairman Copeland and Bell for the purpose of thrashing things out, quietly, of course.

Apparently the minds would like House and Senate leaders to hear their side of the story without putting them in the embarrassing position of having to offend either side with a decision. That may come later.

"Voice of America" returns to the air via C. B. S. and WJSV Thursday at 8:30 p. m. with William Lyon Phelps, Nat Shilkret's Orchestra, Barytone Alexander Gray, "Senator" Cal Tinney and Patricia Dorn and Donald Burr, of musical comedy.

Another effort in the direction of humanizing heretofore formalized broadcasts will be made in connection with the Chamber of Commerce's civic talk program on WMAL tonight at 9 o'clock. Mrs. W. H. Mann is fixing to tell how a zoo director's wife is called upon sometimes to make home pets of indisposed snakes, turtles, &c.

Ripples.

Even radio's arch enemy, A. S. C. A. P., unbends, in the person of its president, Gene Buck, to honor N. B. C.'s grandiose Radio City in a special broadcast today... he's on a program at 11:15 p. m. with Irving Berlin, Jerome Kern and Sigmund Romberg...N. B. C.'s celebration calendar today includes Westminster Choir, 2 p. m.; "Mrs. Moonlight," dramatization wi th Edith Barrett, 3 p. m.; "Radio City Believe It or Nots," Ripley, from London; Edwin Booth anniversary, Otis Skinner, Walter Hampden, Katherine Cornell, 11:30 p. m.; Fred Waring, 12:30 p. m....Harry Richman and Vincent Lopez will be heard in a special broadcast from Chicago tonight, C. B. S., 9:15... and the Boswell Sisters return to the air on the same chain at 11:15 p. m....Postmaster General Farley, called "the greatest since Benjamin Franklin," comes to an N. B. C. microphone at 10:45 tonight in the fourth of the Cabinet series on "Planned Recovery".

Ancient Curses.

In olden times men had belief in curses and their dire effects; a man once cursed would wade in grief, all sorts of trouble he'd collect. A Scottish laird disturbed some graves while building his ornate abode; then came some dark prophetic knaves and stood before him in the road. Their spokesman cursed him up and down, and to and fro and back again, and said he'd surely gain renown as the unluckiest of man. And his descendants all would know the dread results of being cursed; "while seasons pass and rivers flow, their luck will always be the worst." And if the laird had flu or gout, the people all looked wise and cried, "the grand old curse is working out—the prophet's rede can't be denied." And so, as centuries went by, and his descendants had their woes, perhaps a cinder in the eye, perhaps some corns on aching toes, the people said in language terse, "no single sorrow shall be spared; there's no escape from such a curse as that laid on the ancient laird." We have advanced a bit since then, and shaken off some foolish fears; no curse administered by men can handicap us through the years.

MIGHTY SORRY, MR. GUMP- BUT THERE'S NO REPORT TO MAKE- THAT CROOK, ZANDER, IS STILL AT LARGE- HE'S A SLICK CUSTOMER-
CAPTAIN- THAT MAN MUST BE CAUGHT- AS LONG AS HE'S LOOSE HE'LL STOOP TO ANY VILLAINY- JUST THE OTHER DAY HE DROPPED A BRICK FROM THE TOP OF A TALL BUILDING AND I BARELY ESCAPED WITH MY LIFE- I'D GIVE HALF OF AUSTRALIA TO SEE THAT MAN BEHIND BARS- HERE! HERE'S $20,000- TRIPLE THE REWARD FOR HIS CAPTURE- DEAD OR ALIVE-
LATER-
SO! HE'S TRIPLED THE REWARD- A PRICE OF $30,000. ON MY HEAD, DEAD OR ALIVE- WELL- BIM GUMP- YOU'LL NOT GET VERY FAR WITH THAT SORT OF STUFF- IT'S YOU OR ME NOW- AND I'M AFRAID IT'S GOING TO BE JUST TOO BAD FOR YOU-
11-13
HE'S THE ONLY WITNESS WHO COULD APPEAR AGAINST ME ON THAT CROOKED GAMBLING DEAL- HE'S THE ONE WHO QUEERED ME WITH MILLIE- HE'S THE ONLY MAN WHO SAW ME WITH THE STOLEN PEARLS- AND HE'S THE ONE WHO'S PRESSING CHARGES AGAINST ME FOR TRYING TO DO AWAY WITH HIM- IF I CAN GET RID OF BIM GUMP- THEY WON'T HAVE A SHRED OF EVIDENCE AGAINST ME- WITH HIM GONE, I CAN MAKE A CLEAN START- HE'S THE MAN TO GET OUT OF THE WAY- AND IT'S GOT TO BE DONE QUICK-

Pieces of Eight — A Warm-Hearted Pirate — By Charles B. Driscoll

Israel (or Basilica) Hands, Blackbeard's boatswain, was no angel, but he was gentle as a grandfather to Prudence, the captain's unfortunate girl wife, who had seen her pirate husband for only a moment since she displeased him at the wedding supper.

The girl trusted him, perhaps because there was nobody else. He brought her delicacies and fresh fish, and helped her cook them in her tiny cabin, which was her prison. He praised the captain to her, and hoped for reconciliation.

Blackbeard was morbidly jealous of the old bo'sun, whom he had assigned to guard and serve Prudence. One night, when the captain was in an ugly mood and none too sober, he called to his cabin Hands and Mate Richards. "Have a mess with me, men!" commanded the chief.

For some reason, the meal was unusually unpleasant. Blackbeard drank much, ate little, and growled wickedly. "How is the wench behaving, Hands?" he asked at last. Without waiting for an answer, he began to flourish a pair of pistols.

A. L. Pope, 70, Retired Patent Employe, Dies

Former Mails and Files Chief Was in Federal Service 55 Years.

Alexander L. Pope, 70, retired chief of the mails and files division of the Patent Office, died at his home, 627 East Capitol street, yesterday after an illness of several months. He was a native and lifelong resident of the city.

Born November 12, 1863, he was the son of William Henry Pope, manager of the National Republican, and Elizabeth Pugh Pope. He was appointed to the Patent Office in 1878 and served there continuously until his retirement at his own request in June, 1933.

Interested in music, he was one of the first members of the Washington Choral Society. For many years he was a member of the choir of St. Mark's Church. He also served on the vestry of the church until his resignation a few months ago.

He is survived by the widow, Mrs. Jessie E. Pope; a son, Laurence F. Pope; a brother, Hugh L. Pope, of Baltimore, and three sisters. Mrs. Norman Parker, Mrs. William Buckingham and Mrs. Gregar Noetzel, all of Washington.

Funeral services will be held at his home at 3 p. m. Tuesday. Interment will be in Glenwood Cemetery. Honorary pallbearers will be Henry P. Blair, Maj. Joseph H. Wheat, Hull T. Estabrook, Arthur Scott, Samuel Wood and Morris E. Marlowe.

Plans Started For Capital's Yule Festival

Community Celebration, Christmas Tree Ceremony Are on Program.

Although Christmas is still six weeks away, first steps toward preparation for a community yule celebration were taken yesterday, when the executive committee in charge of the Christmas tree ceremony in Sherman square met at the Franklin School Building.

As Christmas eve falls on Sunday this year, efforts are being made to make the tree lighting ceremony especially appropriate.

Senator William H. King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, will be national chairman of the event. Miss Elizabeth K. Peeples, director of the Community Center Department, is chairman of the executive committee.

Other members of the committee are:

Ovid Butler, American Forestry Association, vice chairman; Miss Sibyl Baker, Playground Department; Dr. E. N. C. Barnes, music department, D. C. Public Schools; N. H. Civil Service Reformer Dies

Richard R. Bowker Formed Independent G. O. P. Movement in 1879.

New York, Nov. 12 (AP).—Richard Rogers Bowker, author, editor, publisher and industrial director, died at his home in Glendale, Berkshire County, Mass., today.

Announcement of his death, made here, said he had been confined to his bed since September 4, his eighty-fifth birthday.

Mr. Bowker, long active in independent politics, was credited with having originated the Independent Republican movement of 1879, called the "original mugwump," and with having procured passage of the first civil service reform bill in the New York Legislature. He was president of the R. R. Bowker Co. New York publishing firm.

A native of Salem, Mass., Mr. Bowker was graduated from the College of the City of New York in 1868 with a bachelor of arts degree. The following year he became literary editor of the New York Evening Mail and six years later went to the literary department of the old New York Tribune.

His wife, the former Alice Mitchell, of Cambridge, Mass., whom he married on January 1, 1902, survives him. A sister, Carolyn T. Bowker, lives in New York.

1910 Gas Buggy Chugs Loyally As Owner Worries What It Is Called Truck, Then Car, It Runs on Either Tags and Cares Naught.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 12 (AP).—Back in 1910 when motor cars were called auto buggies and nobody worried about streamlines, Frank B. Fullmer, Scofield resort proprietor, invested in one of the horseless contraptions.

He still has the auto buggy buf he doesn't know for sure whether he has an automobile or a truck. It doesn't look like either.

It was first licensed as an automobile, but in 1924 was certified as a truck. From then until 1932 it was out of service.

Last year the auto buggy once more chugged along the highways, bearing an automobile license. Fullmer obtained new auto plates this year for $4.88 but he was worried.

He wrote to Secretary of State Dammann, wondering whether he was complying with the law and whether he shouldn't have a truck license. Representatives of the company which made the auto buggy were called in and, sure enough, Fullmer was assumed to have a truck.

Now his license will cost him 12 cents more and he may have to pay the ton mile tax levied on trucks by the 1933 Legislature.

Aborn, Musical Producer, Dies

Revived Gilbert, Sullivan Profitably in Midst of Theater Slump.

New York, Nov. 12 (AP).—Milton Aborn, veteran theatrical producer, died today in his home a week after he had been stricken with a heart attack in New Haven, where his Gilbert and Sullivan Opera Company was playing. He was 69 years old.

Aborn, who celebrated his fiftieth year in the theater last May, was best known for his revivals of musical presentations.

He revived Gilbert and Sullivan productions here last season and received a heavy patronage at a time when many theaters were drawing limited audiences.

After two seasons the company disbanded in Chicago because of insufficient public support, and finally went into receivership.

In 1925 Aborn presented a revival of "The Mikado," with the Shuberts, and the next year gave "Pinafore."

Mrs. Marjorie P. Aborn, the widow, survives, with two daughters, Mrs. Alvin H. Sour, of Shreveport, La., and Mrs. Raymond B. Alexander, of New York. The funeral will be held Tuesday, with Rabbi Stephen S. Wise officiating.

W. C. Stratton, Coal Executive, Is Dead

Gary, W. Va., Nov. 12 (AP).—William C. Stratton, 52, general manager of the United States Coal & Coke Co.'s operations in Gary, died today. A heart attack was the immediate cause of death, but Stratton had been ill since suffering a paralytic stroke two months ago.

A member of a family long active in the coal and steel business in the Pittsburgh region, Stratton came to Gary in 1921 as chief engineer. He was named general manager last January.

Stratton, who was unmarried, graduated from Brown University in 1894. Funeral services will be held here tomorrow.

Four Children Perish In Wisconsin Farm Fire

Kaukauna, Wis., Nov. 12 (AP).—Four children, members of a farm family living about 5 miles from here, burned to death and four other children escaped when fire destroyed their home today.

The dead, children of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Evers, were: Rosella, 11; Margaret, 9; Martha, 3; and Norbert, 11 months old.

Robert Angell, Banker, Dies

Roanoke Man Chairman of Virginia G. O. P. in 1928.

Roanoke, Va., Nov. 12 (AP).—Robert Henderson Angell, 65, prominent Roanoke business man and chairman of the Republican party in Virginia in 1928, died unexpectedly today at his home here.

Born in Franklin County, Mr. Angell came to Roanoke in 1886. Although politically a Republican, he held elective and appointive offices under Democratic administrations.

Mr. Angell was president of the Colonial National Bank until the institution was consolidated with the American National Bank. He became chairman of the board of the merged institutions, the Colonial-American National Bank, Mr. Angell also was president of the Liberty Trust Co.

While residing in a normally Democratic community, Mr. Angell was twice elected to the House of Delegates.

Pastor Fears Threat of War In "Old Heads"

Rev. Pinkerton Attacks Propaganda Through Child Minds.

"Unless we can stave off war until the old heads now ruling the world and listening to warlike propaganda die off, and until youth grows up and takes command, I fear for peace within the next decade," the Rev. W. H. Pinkerton said in the National City Christian Church Sunday morning.

"We have blueprint minds. We read an article or hear a speaker and have a thumbprint of the author on our brains. We are governed by mass psychology, determined by the tred of propaganda. In Germany a professor has written a book especially for children under 12 years of age, preparing them for the next war, using the detestable argument that war is inevitable. Militarists have delved deeper down into the innocent hearts of children than ever before with this propaganda.

"The danger of war lies not in the army and the navy, but in propaganda that falls into fertile minds ready to receive it without questioning. I resent the fact that political rulers consider the average American a fool and an ignoramus, yet that is the basis of every political campaign. Our minds are the reproductions of drawings, blueprint minds, and the world is made up of such minds, which will not form and follow their own opinions after deep consideration.

"The money spent on the armies and navies of the world would provide a teacher at a salary of $3,000 a year for every 300 people on earth. 'Why spend ye your money for that which is not bread?'

"Peace is a thing of the mind and the spirit, and if a nation's spirit is bad, that nation is dangerous.

"The sure remedy is universal following of the principles of Christ."

Storms Fatal To 10 Featured By Dust Freak

60-Mile Gale Darkens Area With Dirt Cloud; 20-Inch Snow in Pennsylvania.

(Associated Press.)

A freak dust and snow storm turned day into night in the Northwest yesterday as other sections reported lessening of storms blamed for the death of at least 10 persons. Two others were reported missing.

Huge clouds of dust, whipped by a 40 to 60 mile gale, struck South Dakota. The wind toppled trees and signs in that State and in Minnesota and disrupted telephone communication in some sections. Motorists were forced to turn on headlights and houses were illuminated during the storm.

Seven Die Near Rochester.

Sioux Falls weather observers said the phenomenon was unprecedented in South Dakota. At Pipestone, Minn., dirt was whipped from fields by the lashing winds.

Daybreak ended the severe snowstorm in the Rochester, N. Y., area which accounted for seven deaths. There was a foot of snow in the Adirondack area and lesser amounts over the State of New York, hampering traffic.

Two persons were reported to have drowned at Leamington, Ont., when their automobile skidded off an icy pier.

20-Inch Keystone Snow.

Moderate temperatures were reported in western Pennsylvania, where Saturday nearly 20 inches of snow forced postponement of the Thiel-Allegheny football game.

Los Angeles had a temperature of 92, the hottest November day since 1920.

Raymond L. Ross, 29, of Los Angeles, was killed when the high wind at Clinto, Iowa, blew down a scaffold on which he was working.
